PRESIDENT GUIDES CONGRESS BY MAIL

Correspondence System Used to Spur Legislators in Dull Message Season.

HIS LETTERS GET RESULTS

Three Vigorous Missives to Party Leaders Save Hours of Service Bill from Oblivion.

BY JOHN CALLAN O'LAUGHLIN.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Congress has become unpleasantly aware of the fact that while President Roosevelt has ceased to send special messages advocating legislation, he does not hesitate to write personal letters to leading members which set forth his views in just as plain terms.

It developed today that had it not been for three vigorous letters the president wrote to prominent members of the house, including Representative Hepburn, chairman of the house committee on interstate commerce, the hours of service bill for railroad employés would not have been reported by that committee until too late in the session to reach an agreement in conference.

So, also, with the bill authorizing the government in certain cases to make appeals to the Supreme court. This bill was held up in the senate. Constitutional lawyers were splitting fine hairs at a rate that left considerable doubt whether it would be possible to terminate the debate in time for a vote. President Roosevelt wrote letters to leading senators and an emasculated bill was passed.

Anti-Immunity Bill Weak.

The necessity for legislation of this character developed when Judge Humphrey of Illinois rendered his famous "immunity bath" decision in the beef trust cases and the pending trust prosecution emphasized it. The house acted upon a bill last session which permitted the government in all criminal actions where judgment was in favor of the defendant to appeal to the Supreme court in order to obtain a final decision regarding any question of law involved. The defendant was protected, however, by a provision which required his discharge, if acquitted, either by the action of a jury or the direction of a judge.

The bill as passed by the senate is an entirely different measure. It confers upon the government the right of appeal, but it is claimed that there are only a few cases in which the question may develop. In the judgment of Representative Jenkins, chairman of the house judiciary committee, it prevents consideration of any case that may arise similar to the beef trust cases. Mr. Jenkins believes it would be absolutely impossible for the United States ever to obtain an opinion of the Supreme court on a legal question where the verdict or judgment was in favor of the defendant and against the government. He further expresses the opinion that under the senate amendment the United States is precluded from taking an appeal from the Circuit Court of Appeals should that court reverse the judgment of a lower court convicting the Standard Oil company, for example.

Senate Lawyers Defend It.

The bill permits the government to take a writ of error from a decision of a District or Circuit court setting aside a demurrer to any indictment where the ground is the invalidity or the construction of the statute upon which the indictment is founded, from a decision arresting a judgment of conviction for insufficiency of indictment where the ground of insufficiency is the invalidity of the statute, and from a decision sustaining a special plea in bar when the defendant has not been put in jeopardy.

Lawyers in the senate believe the bill they passed is much better than the house measure, because the house bill only conferred upon the government the "same right of review by writ of error that is given the defendant, including the right to a bill of exceptions," and they say that in a case where decision is made as to the validity of an indictment and on special pleas in abatement the defendant has not the right of appeal.

President Keen for Workday Law.

In his earnest advocacy of the hours of labor bill for railroad employés, the president has been actuated by his desire to have the republican party keep faith with the people. During the last congressional campaign Speaker Cannon, Representative Sherman, chairman of the congressional committee, and Representatives Loudenslager, McKinley, and other members of the committee, went to Oyster Bay, where the president has his summer home, and implored Mr. Roosevelt to do something to assist them to overcome the assaults of President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor and other labor leaders.

President Roosevelt thereupon wrote a strong letter to Representative Watson of Indiana, in which he described the legislation which had been enacted by the republican congress in behalf of labor and stated he hoped, and had every reason to believe, "favorable action would be taken upon the bill limiting the number of hours of railroad employés." The bill was passed by the senate in January and it looked as though it would be buried in the house committee on interstate and foreign commerce.

A few days ago President Roosevelt wrote to Representative Hepburn of this committee, expressing deep concern at the opposition to the bill. He pointed out this was one of the measures promised the people during the last campaign. He stated he most earnestly hoped the bill would pass, and intimated that unless something were done he would send a special message on the subject to congress, in which he would not mince words.

Look Askance at Esch Bill.

The house committee had been considering the bill for several weeks and it was predicted a report would be made "some day" when this letter and others along the same lines which the president had written were received. The result was that the committee held a meeting yesterday, at which the chairman was authorized to report the Esch bill. The senate bill the president had desired was not looked upon with favor by the committee.

The Esch bill provides that railroads shall not require employés connected with the movement of trains to work more than sixteen consecutive hours; that after an employé has worked sixteen hours he shall have at least ten consecutive hours off duty. It further provides that operators and dispatchers shall not work more than nine consecutive hours out of twenty-four.

In the opinion of representatives of the railroad employés, as well as of the administration, the Esch bill does not provide any real relief from the excessive hours for railroad employés.

CUBA TO FIGHT UNITED STATES?

Liberal Leaders Threaten War if Uncle Sam Does Not End Protectorate and Vacate Island.

GEN. CASTILLO DEFIANT.

Conservatives Condemn America for Gorging Insatiable Radicals with the Spoils of Office.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]
[Copyright: 1907: By the New York Herald.]

HAVANA, Feb. 17.—Open signed threats of war against the United States if it does not get out of Cuba are being made now by leaders of the liberal party, to whom everything has been given by the American provisional government except absolute control. The party is insatiable and impatient over the delay of American withdrawal, when, it was promised, they would be left masters of Cuba.

No Guarantee of Peace.

Leaders resent the suggestion of the conservative classes that an American protectorate might be a surer guarantee of peace than the unbridled rule of any embittered Cuban faction.

Over his own signature, in El Rebelde, the liberal organ, Gen. Eloinas del Castillo tells what will happen if the United States listens to the demand for protection by Cubans who want to make sugar in peace and safety.

Castillo Threatens War.

"Welcome peace," says Gen. Castillo, "but with independence and liberty. The only peace possible in Cuba is to strike down the imbeciles who place their faith in a dictatorship or who believe that with a protectorate or annexation they can make sugar. What will be made is war—war, colossal and without quarter, sparing neither lives nor property. These are traitors to the fatherland. What is to be thought of them? We are resolved we shall not see our adorable republic of Cuba ruled by foreigners or a plaything of ambition."

Not an Idle Threat.

This is not an idle threat. The newspapers of Cuba condemn the American government for feeding the liberals so much meat in the form of patronage and abject consideration that they have grown blatant and dangerous.

"What has fallen on Cuba," says the paper, "is not an administration but a régime. The provisional governor legislates, executes, and administers. In him center all powers. With the stroke of a pen he dismisses senators and representatives. With another pen stroke he opens all penal institutions. He will increase the public force, or diminish it, or maintain it in its present status, all according to his own whim.

Will Fight Interventor.

"The intervenor now has the saucepan by the handle, but if the radicals revolt, with them the intervenor will have to fight, and this should convince him that upon the day he ceases to truckle to radicalism in any matter which radicals consider radical to their interests war must ensue between him and those who now seem so friendly.

"The problem, therefore, is simple. Either the intervenor must do all the radicals demand or he must impose a limit on their pretensions. If the former, the intervenor must remain indefinitely in Cuba to protect the nonradical portion of the country, for otherwise peace among ourselves will be precarious, or, rather, there would be no peace. So if the intervenor decides to check the radicals he will do well to prepare to fight them."

"MATERIALIZED" VOICE OF HIS DEAD SON ORDERS DRINKS.

Spiritualism Declared to Have Led a Michigan Man to Make Note on Which Chicagoan Is Suing.

St. Joseph, Mich., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—The "materialized" voice of William Abernathy's dead son is playing an important part in a suit brought against Abernathy by W. G. Carmichael of Chicago to collect on a $3,000 note. A. G. Baker, Abernathy's guardian, objects to payment, but the defendant is anxious to liquidate.

Baker declares he had warned Abernathy to stay away from séances, but that the latter replied that spiritualists were bringing his dead son to see him. Once, Abernathy said, the child asked after his parents' health. When Abernathy replied that he was not feeling well the voice directed that he buy drinks for the crowd. It cost him $5.

Baker further declares the same scheme was used to make Abernathy believe his son advised the signing of the note.

The boys attend the high school where Miss Flora G. Carson has taught for the last year and each was in love with the girl. Miss Carson got to the scene of the duel in time to hear two shots fired, both of which went wild. She seized the youngsters and after bumping their heads together compelled them to shake hands.

MISSING GIRL FOUND DEAD.

Body of Mary Foley Taken from Ice Covered Park Lagoon.

POLICE SEE MURDER SIGNS.

Finger Prints on Throat Lead to Belief Victim Was Strangled.

The ice bound lagoon in Ogden park, Sixty-fifth street and Center avenue, disclosed a murder yesterday when it yielded up the body of Mary Foley, the 18 year old girl who disappeared from the home of her parents, 6732 Laflin street, nearly four months ago.

The peculiar circumstances of the girl's disappearance, the testimony of her girl friends, and the discovery of dark finger marks about her throat leave little doubt in the minds of the police that the girl was murdered. The police are searching for an Italian who, according to Miss Foley's friends, was seen with her at least two weeks after she disappeared from home and while detectives were searching for her.

Park Policeman William Moran discovered the body about noon while walking on the west shore of the lagoon, which already has claimed five other lives. A red hair ribbon protruded from the ice several feet from the shore. The ice was chopped away and the body of the missing girl discovered.

Father Says It Was Murder.

The body was taken to Brooks' undertaking rooms, Fifty-ninth and Halsted streets, and James Foley, the father of the girl, was summoned. Although the continued action of the water had made the features of the dead girl practically unrecognizable, the father recognized the body by the clothing.

It was on Oct. 27, 1906, that the girl left home to go to a drug store but a short distance from the house. She did not go to the store, and she never returned home. The police were notified and a thorough search of the neighborhood was made, but for more than a week no trace of her could be found.

Seen with Man Also Missing.

During the investigation, however, it was learned that a young man living in the vicinity, an Italian, had been seen with the girl on several occasions. Through her acquaintance with him she picked up considerable knowledge of the Italian language. Inquiries were made for him, but he, too, had disappeared.

By a peculiar chance Mr. Foley suddenly announced his conviction that his daughter was dead. He said he had not seen her since her disappearance, nor had he heard from her, but said he had a feeling that she was drowned and that the body would be found in the lagoon at Ogden park.

Suspected Death Months Ago.

The police were not convinced, but they consented to drag the lagoon for the body. This was done on Thanksgiving day, and although every foot of the basin of the little body of water was covered by the men in the boats, the body was not found. It is this fact that convinces the girl's parents as well as the police that she did not commit suicide in a sudden fit of despondency on the night that she left her home.

The present condition of the body will make it practically impossible to discover whether death was the result of drowning or, as is suspected, strangulation. Coroner's Physician Lewke will make a thorough examination of the body today, however, in an effort to discover the exact cause of death.

"Paulina" Case Still Puzzling.

The difficulty which the police had last week in identifying the girl known as "Paulina," believed to have been murdered at 478 West Fourteenth street, was increased during the day by two new alleged identifications.

Mrs. Bertha Schmidt, 64 West Twenty-fourth street, a dressmaker, went to the county morgue with a detective from the Maxwell street station and identified the girl as Paulina Krause, who formerly worked for her. She said the girl lived on Fourteenth street, but she could not give the address. She had not seen the girl for two months, when she was at her house to make a skirt.

In the morning Frank Bennick, 140 West Twenty-first place, went to the Canalport avenue police station to report the disappearance of his housekeeper, Annie Dominick.

Further investigation into the slain girl's identity will be made today.

PRESIDENT WILL CHANGE DESIGNS ON GOLD COINS.

Thinks Specie Now in Use Inartistic—New Emblems to Be Submitted to Him Soon.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—The gold coins of the United States will be changed some time during the coming year, for the first time in fifty years. The work of preparing the new designs has been placed in the hands of a celebrated New York artist. President Roosevelt believes that the gold coins now in use are inartistic, and after discussing the matter with the treasury officials he took it up with the New Yorker in question. As a result, appropriate designs, artistic in effect and beautiful in workmanship, are about to be submitted for approval of the president.

Under the law the president has a good deal of authority in prescribing just what figures or emblems shall appear on specie money. Congress has made certain limitations, however.

It provides that the designs on coins shall not be changed oftener than once in a period of twenty-five years, that on each coin there shall appear an emblem of liberty, the year of coinage, and the words "E Pluribus Unum." Beyond being bound by this general description the president may do as he likes.

AD FOR WIFE TOO PRODUCTIVE.

Connecticut Man Forced to Hang Out Sign to Keep Women Callers from Pestering Him.

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—As results of advertising for a wife, George Moon, a 40 year old widower of Ansonia, has been so overwhelmed with applicants that he has posted a "No Wife Wanted" sign on his front door.

He says he has done this only as a temporary expedient to enable him to give proper consideration to the numerous women who offered themselves as mates.

Moon has had from fifteen to thirty women callers every evening for a week. He has received more than 100 letters, most of them with photographs inclosed. He says he will take several weeks to make up his mind.

FEAR WHIP; HIDE A TRAGEDY

Boys Who See Playmates Drown Creep to Bed with Secret.

TOO MUCH FOR 8 YEAR OLD.

Wakes Aunt at Dawn to Tell Her Missing Lads Went Through Ice.

Dixon, Ill., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Miss Elizabeth Barge was awakened at 6 o'clock this morning and found her 8 year old nephew William Barge, standing at her bedside.

"What is it, Will?" she asked.

"Laurence Nye is dead," answered the boy.

"Why, child, what makes you say that?"

"Because I saw him drown."

"When?"

"Yesterday."

After a few more questions put to the boy Miss Barge learned enough to notify the police that the bodies of three boys missing since Saturday would be found in the Rock river. There they were found later in the day. They were:

HILBERT, JOHN, aged 9, grandson of Mrs. Catherine Hilbert of Dixon.

NYE, LAURENCE, aged 9, son of George H. Nye, a United States mail clerk, whose home is in Dixon.

STERTNER, RALPH, aged 7, son of William Stertner of Dixon.

Fear Whipping; Don't Tell.

Fear of a whipping had kept William Barge and Vernon George, a companion, aged 7, from revealing the fate of their three playmates, who had started out with them for a walk on the ice of the river at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The children had been warned—and the Barge boy particularly, because of his previous experiences—to keep away from the river, and when they returned home Saturday evening, wet to the skin, said nothing of the tragedy they had witnessed, but crept under the covers of their beds and went to sleep, glad to have escaped the dreaded whipping.

At 11 o'clock Saturday night the police, in their search for the missing children, reached the homes of William Barge and Vernon George, but were assured in each case that the children were sleeping soundly, and that if they had been companions of the missing children and anything had happened to the boys they would not have gone to bed without telling about it.

The story told by the surviving boys is that when they were a quarter of a mile down the river the ice gave way and the Hilbert, Stertner, and Nye boys sank into the water.

Run Home in Terror.

Vernon George, who was carrying a stick, reached it to the boys struggling in the water, and himself was dragged in. Thereupon young Barge, who can swim, jumped in and succeeded in helping Vernon George up on to solid ice. When he looked around for the others, he says, they had disappeared.

The two boys, freezing in their wet clothes, stood at the hole in the ice for a while, and, seeing no signs of their three playmates, ran to town, and each to his own home, and said nothing about the drowning.

The police, when notified by Miss Barge, started at once to drag the river bottom, and under a clump of willows at a bend of the river half a mile down from the scene of the accident the bodies of the three boys were recovered.

4 WRECK VICTIMS DIE IN HOSPITAL.

Twenty-two Lives Cost of New York Central Smashup; Little Hope for 3 Others.

CAUSE STILL A MYSTERY.

ONE UNIDENTIFIED GIRL.

Little Hope for Three More.

Mabel Smith, aged 13, Oneonta, N. Y., Elsie Sniffen, Englewood, N. J., and an unknown girl, all at Fordham hospital, are suffering from fractures of the skull and are not expected to recover.

The cause of the wreck is still a matter of speculation. All night Inspector Flood of the police department, Coroner Schwannecke, and Assistant District Attorney Smythe, together with other members of the district attorney's office, looked over the scene and sought to determine the cause of the derailment of the train. The result of their investigation may become known when the inquest is held tomorrow by the coroner.

Train Going Seventy Miles an Hour?

Perhaps the most significant statement of the day was one made by Coroner Schwannecke. He had secured a statement from Motorman Rogers of the wrecked train. In this, according to the coroner, the motorman had stated that he was running on schedule time when the accident occurred and admitted that the speed of his train was seventy miles an hour. Rogers, said the coroner, declares that he did not know anything was wrong until an eighth of a mile beyond the place of derailment.

Tomorrow afternoon an official investigation into the cause of the wreck will be begun by Coroner Schwannecke and attorneys from the district attorney's office. Nine witnesses were subpoenaed by Assistant District Attorney Manley this afternoon to appear before the coroner and it is expected that more will be summoned before the investigation is over.

After midnight Saturday night, when the last of the wounded had been removed from the scene of the wreck and the police had finished collecting the relics of the dead and wounded from the cars, wrecking crews came up from the Mott Haven yards and the work of putting the tracks in shape for the renewal of traffic was pushed through the rest of the night. A crane righted the overturned cars and set them down on temporary trucks. The first car that left the rails was so badly smashed that it had to be carried away in sections.

Morbid Crowd Disappointed.

When the crowds of curious hurried to the gully beneath the Woodlawn road bridge in the early hours of the morning they were surprised to find nothing but clear tracks and gangs of wreckers there to satisfy their curiosity. During the morning several policemen were detailed to make a thorough search of the roadbed the entire distance that the train had been dragged. Some money and valuables were found and added to the collection that Inspector Flood kept in his safe at the Bronx park station.

About the station the interest of the Sunday crowds centered. Here every once in a while a black wagon would drive through the gates and back to the barn behind.

One by one torn bodies that had filled the big assembly room in the station last night were removed to undertaking establishments as the work of identification progressed.

Scenes at the police station were trying for the bluecoats, who had their nerves on edge from the events of last night and who had not been allowed to get any sleep between. With the first train from White Plains and the upper suburban towns there began to arrive anxious faced folk who hurried around to the station and made inquiry for those they had missed.

In many instances the sergeant at the desk would not take the white lipped husband or son back into the stable, where the tattered fragments of men and women lay gathered under sacks on the floor, but he would take the seeker into a little room, where, from a desk, would be taken envelopes marked with numerals. Jewels, trinkets, a handkerchief, or a commutation ticket—these were the things that the envelopes contained, and it was by these that the ones who came on the quest were asked to identify their dead. This was a kinder way in all instances, and in many the only practicable one.

Mrs. Harriet Beale, who lives at Bedford station, was one of those who was asked to say that her daughter lay out in the stable just by the examination of these trinkets in the envelopes. She first found a coat back in the large room, where were assembled all the bulkier scraps taken from the cars. The coat was her daughter Mary's, yes, but then there were many in hospitals whose clothes were there in the large room. The mother was asked to step into the little room and look at some of the jewels which had been taken only from the bodies of the dead.

One Mother Finds Her Girl.

They showed her many things and as each was put away the woman's eyes kindled with the beginnings of hope. But at last the roundsman brought out a silver bracelet, a mere band with a clasp, on which was marked the initial M.

"Yes," said the mother. "Let me take her away soon, please."

Mrs. Beale did not show by the twitching of a muscle that the thin silver band had spelled any message for her, not until she had passed out of the gates, when she fell fainting in the snow.

The body of Mrs. E. F. Newcome was the last to be identified. That came at the close of a long day, when the police began to believe it would be impossible for any one to claim as their own the mutilated thing that had remained simply No. 13 for twelve hours. The only human thing about the torn fragments was one hand. Two diamond rings were on the fingers; the police had not been able to take them off.

Charles Bond of White Plains at last called at the station, seeking Mrs. E. F. Newcome, Pike, Wyoming county. He said she was 60 years old and on her way to visit his family in White Plains. The policeman in charge of the stable took Mr. Bond out there and lifted just enough of a sheet to permit of his seeing the hand with the diamond rings on the fingers. He identified the body.

One Man's Quest for His Hat.

In the large room where the bulky gleanings from the smashed cars were kept two policemen were busy all day checking, tagging, and pointing out to those who came to find their belongings or that of friends in hospitals an assortment of odds and ends that filled two tables and overflowed on the floor. There were piles of hats and bonnets, strings of draggled feather and fur boas, a pailful of rubbers. The conscientious police had tagged a leg of mutton, several cans of condensed milk, and a package of coffee which had not even split a paper bag.

"We have had some trouble with people who came here to find their belongings," said Sergeant William Bauer, in charge of the emergency property room, "but the man that gave us an hour's hot time was a Swede who came here looking for his hat. He said it cost him 75 cents. It took him over an hour to find it, and then the crowd was all gone, anyway."

Officials Can't Fix Cause.

New York Central officials, from President Newman and General Manager A. H. Smith down, were busy all day today trying to find out just what caused the wreck and endeavoring to pin down the responsibility.

They came to the conclusion it was not the fault of any official or any employé, and that the train went to smash either because the truck wheel on the motor locomotive broke down or because one of the new 100 pound steel rails broke, or because both things happened at the same time. They modified this judgment slightly by saying the investigation thus far had not disclosed the exact cause of the accident. The officials denied that excessive speed on a dangerous curve caused the wreck, and asserted the train was running somewhere between forty-six and fifty miles an hour when the smashup came.

The schedule for the Brewster local express provides for a speed of fifty-seven miles an hour for the distance between Fordham and Woodlawn stations, and when the accident happened the train was at least six minutes late.

Pittsburg Girl a Victim.

Pittsburg, Pa., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Miss Anne Katherine Moorhead, who was killed in the wreck on the New York Central in New York last night, was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Moorhead Jr. of 928 Ridge avenue, Allegheny. The Moorhead family is one of the oldest and most exclusive in Pittsburg, and for years has been engaged in the manufacture of iron and steel, although John Moorhead Jr. retired from business some time ago. Before her marriage to John Moorhead, a decade ago, Mrs. Moorhead, as Miss Anne Alston, was a resident of Chicago. The dead girl was 17 years old. In addition there are three other children, John Alston Moorhead, Turner Moorhead, and Miss Margaret Alice Moorhead. The first news received here was to the effect that the girl was not badly hurt. Mrs. Moorhead is completely prostrated. Mr. Moorhead left for New York this morning.

Minneapolis Girl Among Dead.

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Miss Clara Hudson, a victom of the wreck on the New York Central railroad at White Plains on Saturday, was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Hudson, one of the first families of Minneapolis. She was a student at Briar Cliff Manor school, near White Plains. Mr. and Mrs. Hudson were to have started on a trip to California today, and learned of the death of the daughter just before their train left.

REPUBLICAN LEADERS WORRY OVER LEGISLATIVE OUTLOOK.

Confer with Roosevelt as to Ways and Means—Only Two Weeks Until Congress Will Expire by Limitation.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Republican leaders in congress are much worried over the legislative outlook. Several of them discussed the situation with President Roosevelt tonight. The Fifty-ninth congress will expire by limitation at noon March 4, two weeks from tomorrow. Three general appropriation bills, the sundry civil, general deficiency, and postoffice, are still in the house, where they originated. The agricultural bill is pending in the senate, and the navy appropriation bill is before the senate committee.

The situation of the ship subsidy bill is precarious. An effort is to be made to bring in a special order and put the measure through after one day's debate. But unexpected opposition has developed to this plan. Representative James E. Watson of Indiana, republican whip, told the president tonight that any effort to rush the bill through without full opportunity for debate would result disastrously. Mr. Watson said he would be compelled to oppose a special order, and there were many republican representatives who felt as he did—enough to endanger the passage of the bill. The Indiana and Wisconsin delegations in the house are in open revolt against the bill, and there is scattering opposition from other states.

In the senate the situation is as bad as in the house, because all legislation pending in the house is yet to be considered by the senate. The senate has only five legislative days of this week, Saturday having been set apart for eulogies. Consideration of the Smoot case will occupy most of two legislative days, an agreement having been reached for a vote on Wednesday. It is expected that the agricultural appropriation bill will occupy most of tomorrow. The senate probably will be driven to the necessity of night sessions.

O'BRIEN LAUDS DETECTIVES.

Chief of City Hall Force Says Crime Is on Decrease—Efficient Men Responsible.

A general improvement in the work of the detective bureau is declared obvious by Capt. P. D. O'Brien, chief of the city hall headquarters, in his annual report, which he will submit to Chief Collins today. Never before, he asserts, was Chicago so free from the operations of holdup men and safeblowers, while there is a marked decrease in the depredations of pickpockets and confidence men.

Mayor Dunne called attention to the declaration of the Anti-Crime league that there is less crime in Chicago than ever before.

"That's because there is an honest administration now," he said.

HARRISON FORCES CLAIM A VICTORY.

Former Mayor's Friends Say Roger Sullivan Will Be in Their Camp.

COMMITTEEMAN IS MUM.

Democratic Fight to Last All Week; Tom Carey Is "Brewing Trouble" for Dunne.

The Harrison democrats insisted more strongly than ever yesterday that National Committeeman Roger Sullivan would be with them at the showdown and the ex-mayor nominated. The Dunne democrats declared that, while they did not expect Sullivan to declare himself for their candidate, they did expect him to keep hands off, and that was all they were looking for. As for Sullivan himself, he kept on hinting at a third candidate without declaring himself for anybody in particular.

Out of all the claims and counter claims the thing which seems most probable is that the democratic quarrel is not going to be settled until the caucus, which will be held the night before Saturday's city convention. This is Sullivan's plan, and all the indications are that he will have his way about it. In the meantime both sides can keep on claiming his support if they want to for all he seems to care.

Dark Horse Talk Dies Out.

There was not so much talk about dark horses yesterday as there had been. It is generally understood the thing has gone too far as between Harrison and Dunne for any such result. The two names most mentioned have been those of Charles T. Wacker and Andrew J. Graham. Mr. Wacker was approached by a number of democrats two weeks ago, before he went to New York, and he told them he would not be a candidate. He has given a similar answer on two previous occasions in former years when attempts were made to get him to run. It was a knowledge of this which induced James Aloysius Quinn, in whose ward Mr. Wacker lives, to remark yesterday:

"It's down to Harrison and Wacker now, and Wacker won't run."

Mr. Graham was asked last evening as to his candidacy, and replied: "I know nothing about it except what I have read in the newspapers."

"Are you a candidate?"

"No."

Sullivan Favors Delay.

The Sullivan plan to defer everything until the ante-convention caucus is intended, among other things, to save primary fights. He wants the various committeemen to be let alone in their wards on primary day and then, when they have their delegates elected, decide how they shall vote. In this he will not have his way. There will be primary fights in more than half the wards in the city, and if Tom Little persists in his present position it is possible that Sullivan may himself may have to make a fight in his own ward, the Fourteenth. That he could carry it against Little is conceded on all hands, and unless Little is wrongly judged he will probably yield at the last moment and let Sullivan name the delegates without opposition.

In the Thirteenth ward, however, the national committeeman will undoubtedly have to contest for the delegates, but then there always is a contest in that ward.

Harrison Men in Conference.

Carter H. Harrison was at his headquarters in the Grand Pacific in the afternoon and in consultation with him were William Loeffler, John J. Hayes, Tom Carey, and a number of others of his friends. It was after this conference that the claim was so confidently made that when the time came it would be found that Roger Sullivan and what delegates he can muster would be on the Harrison side. It was not claimed, however, that Sullivan would declare himself much, if any, before the caucus of Friday night. Under these conditions, the plan of holding a roundup of the Harirson followers has been abandoned.

Tom Carey Planning Trouble.

It developed also that Tom Carey is planning to make trouble for William O'Connell, Mayor Dunne's commissioner of public works, in the Sixth ward. O'Connell has contracted to deliver the delegates from this ward bodily to Dunne, but Carey thinks he can balk this, if not in whole then in part.

Carey recently moved into the ward from the Twenty-ninth, but has been there long enough to acquire a residence. In the ward are also a number of other statesmen who were prominent in politics in the wards in which they formerly lived, like M. C. McDonald, who, at one time, was the democratic boss of Chicago, "Billy" O'Brien, who ran things in Bridgeport for a long time, and others who, becoming well endowed with this world's goods, moved into a more fashionable neighborhood.

Carey has been organizing these old timers, who are better than green hands at a primary, and also has the active aid of ex-Inspector of Police Hunt, who is none too friendly to Dunne on account of his recent removal from the force. Hunt is considerable of a political power in the ward yet, and altogether Carey thinks he will be able to make a hole in the Sixth ward delegation and consequent trouble for the manager of Mayor Dunne's campaign.

Kunz May Not Deliver.

From the Sixteenth ward comes the sad news that perhaps Stanley Kunz may not be able to bring in the delegates to the convention. For years Stanley has done as he pleased with the delegates from this territory, but this year a primary fight is on in the ward and Kunz may not only lose the delegates to the city convention but the nomination for alderman as well. It is not a Harrison-Dunne contest; it is simply Kunz and anti-Kunz.

Says Dunne Ought to Win.

"If Mayor Dunne does not carry the primaries—even without Roger Sullivan—it is his own fault," said Robert Emmet Burke yesterday with sinister significance at the County Democracy. "He has 3,000 policemen and 10,000 office holders. The primaries are to be of the old fashioned kind—free and easy. All Dunne has to do is to give the right kind of instructions to his police captains. How long do you suppose Dunne would last if Carter Harrison were in his place? About an hour.

Speak Kindly of Harrison.

Vincent Perkins, who in the past always has abused Harrison at the Sunday afternoon knockfests, was merciful.

"I don't feel like saying anything against the stranger within our gates," said he. "Mr. Harrison is our guest. He'll be going back soon to his home in California. The convention on Feb. 23 will be '23' for him."

Spencer B. Pugh told a pathetic story about meeting Carter Harrison alone, with his head down, walking along sadly in Dearborn street. Pugh spoke to him, but Carter didn't remember him. There wasn't a dry eye in the house after this story.

WEST SIDE REVIVAL STARTS.

Services Will Be Held in Union Park Congregational Church Every Night, Except Saturday, for Two Weeks.

"This sin cursed and sin laden city of Chicago is crying out for men and women who have received the spirit and power of God," said the Rev. Dr. James M. Gray, dean of Moody Bible institute, last night, in the first of a series of evangelistic services which will continue at Union Park Congregational church for two weeks.

The meetings, which will be held every evening except Saturday, will be participated in by the congregation of Park Avenue Methodist episcopal church.

Interest in the union evangelistic services, which the Rev. Charles Reign Scoville has been conducting for two weeks in Austin Methodist church, has grown to such an extent that overflow meetings were held last night in the Christian and First Baptist churches.

LEWIS TO SHIELD DUNNE.

CORPORATION COUNSEL TO TELL OF HIS OWN WORK.

Head of City's Law Department to Answer Council Tonight, Recounting His Personal Achievements by Way of Apology for Lack of Results from I. M. O. Followers and Other Supporters of Mayor Who Have Been Placed on His Pay Roll.

Corporation Counsel James Hamilton Lewis, in his graceful manner, will undertake to defend Mayor Dunne tonight in the city council.

He will answer the charge that the mayor has turned into the rich pasturage of the corporation counsel's office a large number of political followers, whose ability chiefly is found in bringing in ward indorsements for the mayor or bolstering up his I. M. O. policy.

It is suspected that the personal achievements of Col. Lewis will be related as something of an apology for the men who have achieved nothing except to burden the pay roll and caused a charge to be made that the office is extravagant and inefficient.

The report by Col. Lewis will be in response to a resolution introduced at a recent meeting of the council calling for a detailed statement of the names and compensation of all persons either on the regular or special pay rolls of the office.

Work Negative in Character.

For the last two weeks subordinates of the corporation counsel have been industriously at work collecting the various vouchers and preparing a list of the hundreds of employés—regular and special—of the department. This has been a voluminous task.

There has not been much difficulty, it is understood, in preparing a statement of the amount of work performed by the I. M. O. followers of the mayor who have been rewarded by fat fees for their political influence. Much of this work was of negative character.

Col. Lewis has refused to discuss his forthcoming report in any way, beyond stating that it will comply with the resolution introduced in the council by Ald. B. W. Snow.

"It would not be proper for me to say anything about it," said he, "until it is submitted to the council."

Results Due to Lewis' Efforts.

From the inquiries that have been made of Col. Lewis' assistants, however, it is known that the report likely will enumerate a number of important cases that have been won by the corporation counsel.

One of these cases, it will be assumed, will be that of the contractors, Weir & McKechney, who had secured a verdict for $350,000 damages against the city, amounting, with extras, to nearly $700,000. The judgment was reversed through the efforts of Corporation Counsel Lewis, assisted by Francis W. Walker and T. J. Sutherland.

In another case a judgment for $650,000 against the city had been obtained by the West Chicago Street railway as damages growing out of the city's attempt to cause the traction company to remove the Van Buren street tunnel. This was taken to the Supreme court of the United States by Col. Lewis, who had the assistance of Granville Browning, who had tried the case in the lower courts under Mayor Harrison. The judgment was reversed by the Supreme court, which held that the railway company had to move the tunnel at its own expense.

Dunne's "Experts" Not Consulted.

In the case against the Illinois Tunnel company, an effort to secure taxes, after the board of review had refused to tax the corporation on the ground that the tunnels were in the streets and there was no law under which they could be taxed, Corporation Counsel Lewis, without "special" assistance, secured a reversal of the decision.

MASSMEETING IS PLANNED IN INTEREST OF TRACTION.

Able Speakers Will Urge on Voters the Importance of Improvement of Car Service at Once.

The work of organizing the campaign in support of the street car ordinances will be undertaken this week by the joint committee of the Commercial association and the real estate board. A great massmeeting and the unification of the efforts of all the organizations interested are the features of the projected plans.

Chairman Frederick Bode has called a meeting of the joint committee for today for the consideration of the campaign work. It is suggested that the massmeeting be held in the Auditorium during the last week of the mayoralty campaign and that the ordinances be made the subject of a comprehensive discussion by the ablest speakers obtainable.

All improvement, neighborhood, commercial, and other organizations will be invited to send delegates to the meeting, and formal action will be taken for the guidance of voters in passing on the ordinances at the polls.

Mayor Dunne views the efforts of the committee in an unfriendly light. He is preparing to oppose the adoption of the ordinances, but in what way he refused to divulge. The degree of his opposition will depend on whether the democratic convention next Saturday leaves him and the traction question in politics together.

There may be some echoes of traction in the city council's meeting tonight. Ald. Kohout is threatening to bring up again his demand that the operation proposition be put on the ballot. His resolution to that effect was sent to the committee on local transportation, where it still reposes.

A resolution introduced in the federation of labor by J. H. Larkin, president of the north and west side street car men's union, awakened a bitter discussion, in which the aldermen who voted for the measures were referred to as "legalized robbers." One delegate suggested that the federation buy "10,000 feet of three-quarter inch rope for emergency purposes." The resolutions urged union men to work incessantly for the defeat of the traction ordinances at the polls.

Another resolution, instructing the legislative committee of the federation to cooperate with the joint referendum committee along these lines, was adopted.

Delegate Herbert Miller of the teachers' union compared the industrial class to an army whose officers "are trying to surrender us to Wall street."

The letter sent to the federation by the real estate board, urging indorsement of the car ordinances, was denounced as an insult to the mental capacity of the delegates.

LINCOLN IN A GREAT DEBATE.

Grand Army Post Told of His Successful Encounter with Stephen A. Douglas.

Lincoln Post, G. A. R., and the Woman's Relief corps connected therewith, were the guests of All Souls' church yesterday. The pastor, Jenkin Lloyd Jones, preached his annual Lincoln sermon, his subject being "The Great Debate, or the Prophet on the Stump."

The speaker told of the great debate between the polished orator and United States senator, Stephen A. Douglas, and the humble, self-educated Abraham Lincoln.

Surprising his friends, who feared his discomfiture, Lincoln spoke with eloquence which held his hearers spellbound. Even the reporters present were so carried away with his oratory that they forgot to take notes of his speech.

Mr. Jones quoted the words of Joseph Medill, then a young newspaper reporter on THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, subsequently to become the editor and proprietor of that paper in its ascendant eras, who said:

"I began taking notes, but I soon forgot myself, joined with the convention in cheering and stamping and clapping to the end. When the calm had come I awoke out of an hypnotic trance and thought of my report for THE TRIBUNE, and there was nothing written. It was some sort of satisfaction to find that I had not been scooped, as all the newspaper men present had been equally carried away by the excitement caused by the wonderful oration and had made no report or sketch of this speech."

BUSSE CAMPAIGN FIRST UNDER WAY

Republicans Plan to Get a Week's Start of Democrats in Mayoralty Race.

OBTAIN MANY SPEAKERS.

Headquarters Will Be Opened for Discussion of the Traction Ordinances.

With the nomination of Postmaster Busse for mayor assured without a contest the republican central committee will devote this week to perfecting plans for the campaign, thus getting the start of the democrats by a full week.

The prospect is that the republicans will make the contest one of the most notable speaking campaigns ever witnessed for a mayoralty election. Stump speakers drawn from the state at large as well as the city will be heard in every ward during the three weeks immediately prior to the election.

The headquarters of the Business Men's Busse organization will be opened to the public today at 122 Clark street. In this hall noonday meetings will be held beginning with the week after the convention. Open discussions of the street car settlement as embodied in the pending ordinances will be the feature of these meetings.

Grooming Minor Candidates.

The republican leaders will be occupied chiefly this week with the grooming of candidates for minor positions on the ticket. Ald. Badenoch and Beilfus and Gen. E. C. Young have been mentioned as possibilities for the city treasurership. The chances of Ald. Beilfus are not considered bright because he voted against the traction ordinances, whereas the republican platform will indorse them. Gen. Young has been suggested by Committeeman Vail of the Thirty-second ward and in the suggestion of Ald. Badenoch for the same place is detected a premonition of the latter's desire to contest the control of the ward with Vail. Others proposed for treasurer are John P. Garner and W. G. Edens.

Judge Ben M. Smith will be named by the republicans as a candidate to succeed himself. For successor to the late Judge Gary William H. McSurely, W. W. Wheelock, and Charles Alling, Jr., have been mentioned. Charles W. Seinwerth has been suggested as a candidate for city clerk.

Ald. Uhlir for Sanitary Trustee.

For successor to the late sanitary trustee, Anton Novak, Ald. Uhlir of the Twelfth ward has been put forward. There is also an inclination on the part of the republican leaders from the northwest side to urge the nomination of Otto Novak, a son of the late trustee. The elder Novak, it appears, mortgaged his residence to raise the necessary money for his campaign assessment. Then he died within a year of assuming office. The mortgage remains unsatisfied. It is urged as an act of political justice to put the son in the father's place, so that with the salary of the position the mortgage could be paid off.

Commercial Employes Active.

One of the organizations destined to take a considerable part in the campaign is the Commercial Employés' Busse club, organized last Saturday, with Frank W. Van Keuren, 356 Jackson boulevard, as president; Ernest P. Mattern, secretary; and Healy J. Dean, treasurer. Edward N. Beale and Claude Doyle were made vice presidents for the west side, William H. Tulett and S. Reich for the north side, and R. H. McAdam and Richard O'Regan for the south side. The executive committee consists of H. W. Ralph, Thomas Sutherland, George M. Smith, A. L. Cranner, E. L. Dunn, John Shaidnagle, James Ronan, E. J. McElroy, Thomas Williams, J. Fred Keeber, J. Grauten, A. C. Landgraf, J. F. Mellen, Michael Ford, Jacob Katz, A. Goldstein, Herbert L. Bell, and S. Fournier.

The Furniture Dealers' Busse club was organized with Andrew McAnah as president; H. M. Mitchell, vice president; John Richardson, secretary, and Joseph Delmel, treasurer.

MANY REPRESENTATIVES PAY HONOR TO MEMORY OF HITT.

Former Colleagues Gather in Meeting to Praise Services of Late Congressman from Illinois.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—The house of representatives today paid tribute to the memory of the late Representative R. R. Hitt, who, for nearly twenty-five years, represented in congress the Ninth, and afterward the Thirteenth district in Illinois.

Speaker Cannon, contrary to his usual custom on memorial days, presided, and there were present at the session an unusually large number of the older members of the house who had been associated with Mr. Hitt for many years.

Speaker Cannon had intended to take the floor and pay tribute to his deceased friend, but owing to the effects of a cold from which he has been suffering for a week was unable to do so.

The session was opened by a prayer by Chaplain Dr. Couden, who repeated the first three verses of the first psalm. The speakers were Representatives Lowden, Clark of Missouri, Lacey, Foss, Payne, Dalzell, Boutell, Fuller, and Cousins, who succeeded Mr. Hitt as chairman of the committee on foreign affairs.

Each of the speakers talked feelingly and gracefully of his personal and official relations with the deceased member, telling of the valuable work he had done for his state and country, not only in congress but in the state department and in the diplomatic service and other fields of activity.

"DRYS" LOOK FOR VICTORY

PASSAGE OF RAVENSWOOD PROHIBITION ORDINANCE EXPECTED.

Temperance Advocates Who Oppose Establishment of Amusement Park and Beer Garden in Residence District Will Bring Pressure to Bear on Mayor and Aldermen—To Attend Council Meeting Tonight—Mrs. Dunne Uses Her Influence.

Confident of victory in their fight against the establishment of the Tyrolean Alps park in the western part of Ravenswood, temperance advocates this evening will storm the council chamber in an endeavor to secure the passage of an ordinance making a prohibition district of a large territory that includes the site of the proposed amusement park.

At a meeting held yesterday afternoon in the parish school of the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes, Ashland and Leland avenues, resolutions were adopted and committees were appointed by the chairman, John E. Kavanagh, to bring pressure to bear on the mayor and aldermen in favor of the ordinance.

Will Appeal to Aldermen.

Printed copies of the resolutions will be presented to each alderman as he enters the council chamber by a committee composed of W. R. Bentley, A. B. Korst, and Thomas A. O'Shaughnessy. A committee which will call on Mayor Dunne at his residence early tomorrow morning and urge his immediate signature of the ordinance is composed of the Rev. Frank N. Perry, John E. Stephan, E. M Heidekamp, Robert Starrs, and John E. Kavanagh.

"We are confident," declared W. R. Bentley, chairman of the committee for the establishment of the prohibition district, "that the measure will pass the council tomorrow night. We are assured of forty-three votes and expect more. We have not the slightest doubt that Mayor Dunne will place his signature upon it at once, but we must give proof of our sincerity to meet the efforts of the opposition.

Mrs. Dunne Uses Influence.

The intercession of Mrs. Dunne in favor of the plan was requested by the Lourdes Total Abstinence society, and in speaking of it Mayor Dunne said:

"Mrs. Dunne constituted herself a committee of one in the interest of the ordinance and waited upon me to urge my signature. She exerted whatever influence she has; but I returned a noncommittal reply, stating that I shall have to hear both sides before making my decision."

The proposed prohibition district is bounded by Western avenue, Leavitt street, Montrose boulevard, and a line 300 feet north of Sunnyside avenue. The amusement park was to occupy twenty-one acres, belonging to the Billings estate, between Montrose boulevard and Sunnyside avenue.

ACCIDENTS STIR GAGE PARK CITIZENS TO FURTHER ACTION

Lack of Lights Held Responsible for Mishaps to Three Persons in Twenty-four Hours.

Three accidents within twenty-four hours aroused the Gage Park Improvement association last evening to a renewal of its efforts to secure street lighting for the neighborhood of Western avenue and Fifty-fifth street.

Saturday evening, R. W. Schultz, a barber, 5114 Western avenue, crossing through the small park, which is unlighted, walked into the lily pond and suffered a ducking. Last evening a stranger who gave his name as J. B. White, left a car at Western avenue and Fifty-fourth street, stepped upon the half melted ice covering a deep ditch at the side of the street and fell through. The water is said to be seven feet in depth at that point. He was extricated by bystanders.

Later in the evening Mrs. Edth Osborn, Fifty-fifth and Leavittt streets, suffered a similar accident and had to be carried home.

A committee from the association will call upon Supt. J. F. Foster of the south parks this week to renew the demands for lights and other safeguards in the neighborhood.

President of Williams College Says There Is No Need for Fear of Epidemic.

Williamstown, Mass., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—President Hopkins of Williams college gave out a statement concerning the scarlet fever conditions tonight in which he said all the cases at the school are light, and that there have been no new cases since Thursday. He has no fear of an epidemic.

DELMAS STAYS AS CHIEF OF COUNSEL

Californian Still to Direct the Thaw Defense at Request of Mother.

FRICTION NOT REMOVED.

Other Lawyers Jealous of His Monopoly in Examining the Witnesses.

New York, Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Delphin Michael Delmas will continue to direct the defense of Harry K. Thaw, as he has done since the first day of the introduction of testimony for Stanford White's slayer, when Attorney Gleason was declared to have mismanaged matters.

This statement was made tonight by one of the four associate counsel, whose dissatisfaction with the Californian's methods led yesterday to a concerted effort to oust him.

Delmas, according to this lawyer, will remain in charge at the express request of Mrs. William Thaw. It is said that both Mrs. William Thaw and Mrs. Evelyn Thaw have been much satisfied with the manner in which Delmas has been looking after Thaw's interests.

Friction Still Between Counsel.

But there is still a great deal of friction between the Thaw lawyers. After the row in the office of Attorney Delmas yesterday afternoon when Hartridge, Peabody, Gleason, and Dan O'Reilly questioned his methods, there was an agreement among the four lawyers who are not satisfied with Delmas that Hartridge should call on Mrs. William Thaw and that Gleason call on Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw. Their purpose was to present to the women the statement which Delmas issued, but later recalled, criticising the methods of some of his colleagues. No definite information could be obtained as to how Mrs. William Thaw took the proposal that Delmas get out of the case.

Some more details became known today of the reasons for the friction between the Thaw lawyers. A friend of one of them said: "The attitude of Delmas and McPike has not pleased New York lawyers. Whenever there was a mistake in handling Thaw's case Delmas has laid it to his colleagues, excepting McPike, of course. Delmas is not overfamiliar with the laws of this state, so when he was tripped up by District Attorney Jerome he blamed the New York lawyers for not keeping him properly posted. He also had some criticism to make of the way the case had been prepared.

Want Share of Limelight.

"On the other hand, whenever a point was made for the defense both Delmas and McPike took the whole credit. This has not been pleasing to Hartridge, Gleason, Peabody, and O'Reilly. They think they at least are entitled to some of the lime light.

"When McPike, in an interview, severely criticised the manner in which District Attorney Jerome had been conducting the state's case, it was a good opportunity for the four lawyers who are opposed to Delmas and McPike to put in their kick. As a result Mrs. William Thaw issued a statement in which she excluded McPike from the case and named the five other lawyers as having been retained to defend her son."

At a long conference yesterday afternoon between Delmas and the four lawyers opposed to him, the New Yorkers made it plain just where they stood. They said that at no time had McPike been a member of Thaw's counsel. They also said McPike made two trips from California to urge that Delmas be retained.

Delmas Forced to Be Quizzed.

Then Delmas came on. Before he was retained he was told it would be necessary for Lawyer Watson of Pittsburg, who represents the Thaw family, to pass on his ability and experience. When Watson made a favorable decision Delmas was selected.

The New York lawyers wanted to be understood about one thing—that Delmas was no more than they were. They had as much authority as he, and they resented the idea that he should examine all witnesses. It is said that Hartridge thinks he should conduct the examination of Mrs. William Thaw.

All the Thaw lawyers, except John B. Gleason, kept out of sight today. Gleason would make no comment. All he would say was that he knew of no change.

Hartridge did not get into town until late tonight. He said he had been at Morris Plains, consulting Dr. Britton D. Evans, whose examination will be continued tomorrow morning. Both O'Reilly and Peabody kept out of the way.

Delmas and McPike left their home in West Seventieth street early in the morning, saying they were going to New Jersey. They had not returned at midnight. There was a report that Delmas would retire from the case voluntarily, but there was little basis for it.

Jerome Subpœnas More Witnesses.

District Attorney Jerome, it was learned today, has subpœnaed as witnesses all of those persons whose names Mrs. Evelyn Thaw whispered to him while giving her testimony. Mrs. Thaw said that these names were mentioned in her recital to Thaw of her treatment by Stanford White.

There are seven in all of these persons. One of the names which young Mrs. Thaw appeared to let fall unconsciously was that of a "Mr. Dillingham." Another name which she gave to Jerome was that of a clerk at the Waldorf-Astoria. He is said to have been a friend of young Mrs. Thaw.

These seven persons have told their stories to Jerome or Assistant District Attorney Garvan. It is said they have furnished information that materially will assist Jerome in his cross examination of the young woman.

Expect Doctor to Be Grilled.

Lawyers have commented on the fact that owing to the way the defense has handled its witnesses Jerome has not had to cross examine most of them right away. In the case of young Mrs. Thaw he has had a chance to prepare for several days. Her story has been gone over carefully. It is probable that Jerome will take more than a day in his cross examination of her.

Both Jerome and Garvan spent today in preparing for the cross examination of the defense's witnesses. Jerome staid in town. Jerome has taken advantage also of the delay to prepare himself to question Dr. Evans. It is expected that the district attorney will give the expert one of the most grilling cross examinations ever known in a New York court.

Although Delmas announced early last week that it would take only two more days to finish the defense's direct case, it is known that several witnesses have yet to be called. It is doubtful if the defense's case will be in this week.

Springfield, Mass., Feb. 17.—The Rev. Dr. F. L. Goodspeed, pastor of the First Congregational church, as a prelude to his sermon this morning, spoke on the topic, "Should the Testimony in the Thaw Trial Be Printed?" He said:

"The publication of this revelation of salaciousness is even more to be feared, for, although the plague of disease affects only the bodies of its victims, the story of the disgusting incidents of this case attacks the minds and imaginations of those who read it."

DEATH TAKES A PRODIGAL

STRANGE STORY OF J. E. RINGROSE TO BE TOLD AT INQUEST.

Too Proud to Return to His Wealthy Father, Who Is Said to Have Been a Friend of King Edward, Man of Remarkable Mental Ability Expires in the Furnace Room of House Where He Was Employed as a Caretaker.

An unusually pathetic story of the prodigal son, who tasted the husks and preferred to die in poverty rather than return to his father's house, will be related this morning at the coroner's inquest over the body of John Edward Ringrose, caretaker at Hyde Park Villa, 95 Fifty-first street.

He was found dead in his chair in the furnace room of the house Saturday evening. The inquest will be held at Bilger's undertaking rooms, 5133 Lake avenue.

Ringrose was 57 years of age. The mental burdens of a misspent life, it is said, had borne down heavily on him of late, and it may be he committed suicide. His friends think he died of heart failure.

Man of Remarkable Memory.

As Ringrose was a descendent of a wealthy family in England, named Edward after the present king of England, with whom his father is said to have been on friendly terms, was a man of refined bearing and tastes and the possessor of a remarkable mind, his ignoble end comes with especial tragic meaning. He claimed to be the only man alive who could repeat the entire poem of "Paradise Lost."

He prided himself on his remarkable memory. He could repeat the entire service of the Episcopal church, and was remarkably well versed in the history of his native country. In the quiet of his recluse life he made the long hours tolerable by reciting the stretches of Milton's poem that he loved the best.

Unto the end Ringrose had one friend. It was Dr. Francis Eaton Burnett, who lives at Hyde Park hotel. Dr. Burnett will bury the body today in Mount Greenwood cemetery and will be the principal witness at the inquest. Ringrose told much of his past life to Dr. Burnett, and it has been corroborated by the doctor through correspondence with English relatives of the man.

Relatives to Be Notified.

"He promised me always he would write to his brother in Hull, England, and perhaps return to his old home," said Dr. Burnett, "but he kept putting it off from day to day until now it's too late. I shall communicate with his relatives as soon as possible."

Ringrose left his home in Hull, England, shortly after his father's death thirty-six years ago. His father was Sir Christopher Ringrose, a wealthy shipbuilder. Practically the entire estate fell to the eldest son, Lionel.

The brothers quarreled and John left home. After traveling about through France, living riotously on the support his brother continued to give him, he came to America. Three years after he left England his brother told him unless he would return to England the support would cease. John's pride was aroused, and he declared he never would return. He lived in Chicago twenty years. He drifted to the scale of a house servant.

Stays Near His Dog's Grave.

Four years ago he asked Dr. Burnett for a lodging place. When Dr. Burnett moved from 95 Fifty-first street a year ago to his present address Ringrose refused to go.

"Two years ago the old man's dog, Jack, died and was buried in the flower garden back of the house," said Dr. Burnett. "The old man refused to move with me because, he said, he could not leave the scene of Jack's grave. He grew to be eccentric. He seemed to have the heart of a woman."

In the maze of romance and tragedy of the old man's life is woven a pretty love affair, which had much to do with his wanderings. When a young man, a student for the ministry, he was about to marry a young woman when his father interfered. The girl was sent to a convent and died there. Ringrose never married.

GIRL ATTACKED ON BRIDGE; ALLEGED ASSAILANT CAUGHT.

Nearly 100 Persons Join in Chase Which Results in the Capture of the Fleeing Man.

After a chase in which nearly a hundred persons participated and several shots were fired, James Vergillio, 35 years old, 44 Crosby street, was arrested last evening for attacking Tessie Tamburrino, 16 years old, 73 Vedder street, on the Halsted street bridge over the north branch of the river.

The girl said she was walking home with her sister, Maria, 14 years old, and Philip Blasi, 17 years old, 71 Vedder street, when Vergillio caught her by the arm and dragged her into a dark corner of the bridge near the bridgetender's shanty. She screamed and Vergillio drew a stiletto, with which he threatened to stab her.

One of the bridgetenders heard the girl's cries, and as he rushed out of the shanty to investigate, Vergillio threw the dagger into the river and ran north in Halsted street. The bridgetender gave chase, firing three shots at the fleeing man.

Passengers jumped from a passing street car and joined in the chase, which continued to Division street, where Sergeant Nolan arrested Vergillio. The girl said she never had seen the man before.

USE OF ANTITOXIN URGED ON DIPHTHERIA'S FIRST DAY.

Health Department Says No Child Has Ever Died When Treatment Has Been Promptly Given.

In the weekly bulletin issued by the health department for the week ending Saturday particular stress is laid on the value of antitoxin in fighting diphtheria. The bulletin says:

"No child ever did die—no child ever will die of diphtheria to whom a full dose of antitoxin is administered on the first day of the disease.

"Reports for the week show a continued decrease in the number of infectious diseases. The number of cases of diphtheria reported was 150, being sixty fewer than was reported the previous week. Scarlet fever cases reported numbered 386, a reduction from the previous week of 294. Of measles 130 cases were reported—a decrease of fourteen. The total number of infectious diseases for the week was 704—324 fewer than was reported the preceding week."

The death rate for the week was 17.27, the total number being 698. Pneumonia caused 150 deaths, consumption 72, influenza 16. One person committed suicide and 21 were victims of violence.

$200,000 BLAZE IN ALLEGHENY; DRY GOODS FEED THE FLAMES

Explosion in Basement Starts Fire That Threatens Four City Blocks and Burns for Hours.

Pittsburg, Pa., Feb. 17.—A fire late tonight which threatened the destruction of several city blocks in Allegheny, across the Allegheny river from Pittsburg, destroyed five business buildings and three dwelling houses, causing an estimated loss of $200,000. Four fire companies were sent to Allegheny from this city to fight the flames, and a number of firemen had narrow escapes from falling walls.

The fire originated from an explosion in the basement of Kenyon's dry goods store and meeting hall, a five story structure, and quickly spread to the other buildings. What caused the explosion is not known.

The Kenyon building is located in the block bounded by North Diamond, Erie, Federal, and West Diamond streets. Within an hour the Cornelius Express company's building, Strasberger & Joseph's dry goods store, Kohn's dry goods store, and Randolph's furniture store were burned to the ground. At midnight the firemen had the fire under control.

After an investigation Deputy Building Commissioner "Andy" Hughes said no blame could be attached for the accident.

HEALY PROBES A BEATING

WILL INVESTIGATE ASSAULT ON ORLAND SCHOOL TEACHER.

Robert and Frank Doyle, Sons of Former Chief of Police, Summoned to Appear Before the State's Attorney and Answer Charge of Thrashing B. A. Beinlech—Case Likely to Be Taken Before the Grand Jury for Legal Action.

A grand jury investigation probably will follow the beating administered to B. A. Beinlech, a teacher in the school at Orland, by Robert and Frank Doyle, sons of Austin J. Doyle, former chief of police of Chicago, now living in that village.

Both young men have been summoned to State's Attorney Healy's office and a conference is to be held this afternoon between Mr. Healy and the Orland school trustees.

The school trustees of the village will hold a meeting this morning, at which it is expected Miss Edna Berg, the only other teacher of the school, will be dismissed. The trustees assert that Miss Berg knew that the two Doyle boys and their mother had appeared at the schoolhouse for the purpose of beating Beinlech, yet she did not warn him and prevented the pupils from summoning help.

Child Blamed for Trouble.

The affair grew out of Beinlech's attempt to discipline Meriam Doyle, 10 years old, a sister of the two boys. Members of the Doyle family say the teacher had a spite against the child, but Beinlech, the school trustees, and most of the townspeople say she persisted in causing the teacher trouble.

During the noon hour last Tuesday she and other children were making a disturbance where the teacher was at work and he ordered them into another room. The little Doyle girl is said to have turned up her nose at him and snickered. The teacher slapped her and when she still laughed he slapped her harder.

The next morning, Mrs. Doyle and her two sons, between 20 and 25 years old, went to Beinlech and demanded an apology.

"I have nothing to apologize for," he replied.

"If you don't apologize you'll get the worst beating you ever had," Mrs. Doyle is quoted as saying.

Teacher Is Beaten Severely.

Robert Doyle then struck the teacher a terrific blow on the jaw. The pedagogue was stunned and admits he put up a poor defense. He was severely pummeled.

"Take off your glasses," Robert Doyle demanded, and when the teacher, who was so stunned he did not know what had happened, did not do this, it is said the boy seized him by the hair of his head and pulled the man out in front of the class, where the beating continued until the teacher was unconscious.

In the meantime, Mrs. Doyle and her other son, it is charged, guarded the doors to prevent the children getting out. A few did leap through the windows, but they were promptly corralled by Miss Berg, who made them go into her room.

Notice has been served on Mr. Doyle by the school board that neither Mrs. Doyle nor her two older sons will be allowed hereafter on the school premises.

GIRLS IN CARRIAGE SHAKEUP.

Daughter of H. J. Patten and Friend Escape Injury When Vehicle Is Overturned—Injured Cab Driver Dies.

Two little girls were shaken up late yesterday afternoon when the carriage in which they were riding was overturned at Sherman avenue and Davis street, Evanston. They were Violet Patten, 12 years old, daughter of H. J. Patten, 1028 Greenwood boulevard, and Gladys Neely, 12 years old, visiting at 1247 Hinman avenue. Neither of the girls was injured.

Mathew Gary, 2635 Wabash avenue, a cab driver, died yesterday at the People's hospital.

FIGHT OVER MONEY; ONE SHOT.

Angelo Deluca Probably Fatally Wounded by Cousin in Quarrel Over an Inheritance.

During a fight over money to which they were heirs, Angelo Deluca, 47 years old, was shot in the stomach by Joseph Demefrell, his cousin, last night. Demefrell was living with Deluca at the latter's residence, 116 De Koven street, where the shooting occurred. Deluca was taken to the county hospital. It is said he will probably die. Demefrell escaped.

CHURCH PAYS GIRL'S DEBT

SHORTAGE IN TREASURER'S ACCOUNT RAISED IN SERVICE.

Second Christian Congregation at Bloomington, on Appeal by Pastor, Subscribes $1,900 to Cover $1,300 Missing from Accounts of Young Worker in Gleaners' Society—Prisoner Breaks Down in Jail and Physicians Are Called to Her Aid.

Bloomington, Ill., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—The members of the Second Christian church today contributed $1,900 to cover the shortage of $1,300 in the accounts of Helen Dixon, the young woman custodian of the organ fund.

Miss Dixon, who was indicted by the grand jury yesterday for embezzlement, forgery, and larceny, took $1,300 which had been raised for the purchase of the new church organ.

The pastor of the Second Christian church, the Rev. J. H. Gilliland, surprised his congregation this morning by announcing there would be no sermon.

Appeal Causes Weeping.

After a communion service he pointed to the new organ just installed and said in a voice marked by deep emotion that it had cost $2,800 and that this sum would have to be raised to pay for it. He did not directly state that Miss Dixon had made away with the $1,300 raised for this purpose, but simply said that shortage existed and that as the congregation was well aware of the reason he would not go into details.

He then asked for subscriptions from the congregation to make up the shortage caused by the breach of trust of an unfortunate treasurer. He announced that he would head the subscription list with $100 from his own pocket.

While his pathetic appeal was being heard there was intense silence and many wept. Upon his conclusion, collection boxes were passed and the sum of $1,900 raised, the largest offering ever raised at one service in Bloomington.

Girl Breaks Down in Cell.

Miss Dixon, who previously betrayed little concern relative to the charges of embezzlement, gave way to hysteria tonight and one convulsion followed another. Two physicians who were called had little success in quieting her, and it required the strength of several attendants to restrain her.

Nothing has been heard as yet from her mysterious "brother" or other relatives.

KELSEY WILL NOT RESIGN ON HUGHES' DEMAND; FIGHT.

Governor Expected to Recommend Removal of Insurance Superintendent in Message to Senate Tomorrow.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Otto Kelsey, state superintendent of insurance, in a letter to Gov. Hughes in Albany, has declined to accede to the governor's request that he resign. That Gov. Hughes will send to the senate, probably on Tuesday morning, a special message recommending Kelsey's removal is expected.

The attitude of the senate toward the governor's expected recommendation is the subject of much conjecture. The chief feature of uncertainty lies in the question of the attitude of the nineteen democratic senators.

A conflict between the senate and the governor would be fraught with far reaching legislative and political consequences.

FOUND UNCONSCIOUS ON GRAVE.

Well Dressed Young Woman, Apparently Victim of Whisky, Begs Physicians to Conceal Her Identity.

Crying and imploring the physicians and attendants at the German-American hospital to suppress the facts, a fashionably dressed woman, about 25 years old, who was found unconscious yesterday afternoon lying across a grave in St. Boniface cemetery with an empty whisky bottle at her side, is causing the police much concern as to her identity.

She refuses to tell her name, saying the publicity would kill her parents, although they knew she had been using whisky for several days in the hope of getting relief from the toothache.

The young woman was found by Charles Bigelow, superintendent of the cemetery, who at first believed she was dead. After discovering the empty whisky bottle, however, he notified the police of the Summerdale station, who removed her to the hospital. She did not recover consciousness until late at night.

CRIME TAUGHT TO YOUTHS

Scenes Exhibiting How Men Are Slugged and Robbed and How Thieves Work and Escape Are Witnessed Daily by Thousands of Boys and Girls in Chicago—Pastor Well Calls for the Suppression of This Vicious Class of Entertainments.

Cheap moving picture shows in which children are taught through vivid pictures how men are robbed, how they are slugged, and how thieves work and escape were condemned in vigorous language yesterday by the Rev. Fred Alban Weil in Third Unitarian church. The wide open saloon and gambling in cigar stores and barber shops were mentioned also as evils which menace the characters of the coming generation in Chicago.

"What we need in this city today," the minister said, "is something more than surface tactics, whitewash reform, or anything in the shape of agitation against crime in order to help some political movement. We need men and women who feel responsible for the next generation.

"These things concern every one of us. We are all part of society, and our attitude and actions make it better or worse. Meanwhile, in caring for the coming generation, we shall endeavor to suppress the cause of crime in the present,".

Selfish Men Are Denounced.

Dr. Emil G. Hirsch, in his sermon at Sinai temple, scathingly arraigned the average American man of affairs for his attitude toward religious thought and the organized church.

"The American man," said Dr. Hirsch, "is possessed of a passion of self-aggrandizement. And joined to this megalomania—a part of it, indeed, is an active, sneering contempt for religion. Everything must be arranged—must be certain—if his mind is to accept it. These men represent a low degree of poverty; they will not receive, therefore they cannot give. They can read books as well as take the trouble of listening to a preacher. But the trouble is, books are dead unless they are vitalized, and the supposition is that the men on the pulpit and the platform have trained, vitalized minds.

Function of the Preacher.

"And what is the function of the preacher? A good many of them look upon it as to flatter or voice the ordinary sentimentalities or inanities that pass nowadays for religion. But some of us feel that it is more than to flatter—to echo the congregation and the congregational bosses. We need to read continuously and omnivorously. But these men are self-sufficient. And these men are the poorest of all!"

RAYMOND BAKER'S TROUBLE IS LAID TO DERANGEMENT.

Secretary of Live Stock Exchange Takes Steps to Have His Son Sent to a Sanitarium.

Charles W. Baker, 7157 Princeton avenue, secretary of the Chicago Live Stock exchange, has taken steps to have his son Raymond, 27 years old, sent to a sanitarium for treatment for mental trouble.

Young Baker, who is under arrest in Rochester, N. Y., on a charge of grand larceny, wired his father on Saturday requesting $50, and saying he was in trouble. Subsequently the police called. His mother said Raymond formerly ran an account at a Chicago bank, and possibly had drawn a check on the exhausted fund to pay a hotel bill.

Young Baker was arrested on a charge of passing a bogus check for $50 on John F. Burke, secretary of the New York Pressed Brick company of Rochester, N. Y. The check was drawn on the Illinois Trust and Savings bank of Chicago.

MET AT HOME BY A BURGLAR.

Harold Gee of Kenilworth Returns from Church Just in Time to See Intruder Escape.

Harold Gee, Cumnor avenue, Kenilworth, returned to his home with members of his family after attending church last evening, and when he opened the front door he met a burglar in the hallway.

Mr. Gee stepped back on the porch as the burglar made a lunge at him, then, before he or members of his family could follow, the intruder fled through the house and escaped with silverware valued at $50. Chief of Police Schramm was notified, and he with Policeman Joseph Littiger went in search of the burglar but failed to find any trace of him.

Three men held up Samuel Cohen, 24 years old, 119 West Fourteenth street, last evening at Loomis and West Monroe streets. They took his watch valued at $60.

LABOR IS ROUTED BY 'REDS' ORATORY

Delegates of Chicago Federation Hurry Away from Sunday Meeting.

ARE CAUGHT BY STRATEGY

Discourse of Margaret Haley Is Interrupted by Plotter Who Favors Anarchy.

The federation of labor delegates, breathless, and with their overcoat tails standing out stiffly behind them as they ran, fled wildly from Brand's hall last evening, scurried across the Clark street bridge, and did not stop until they had reached safety on the south side of the river.

There they drew a long breath and shook hands. Their hands trembled. They had just escaped from an anarchist meeting of a particularly "red" hue.

Behind, in the hall, 100 other delegates of the federation, practically imprisoned, alternately perspired, groaned, wrung their hands, figuratively speaking, and listened to anarchistic doctrine, served hot by Mrs. Lucy Parsons and others.

Caught by Strategy.

Their predicament was due to the fact that the entire federation of labor had been captured through a bold anarchistic plot, corralled in Brand's hall by a clever strategy, and then had the doors locked upon it.

The federation meeting was progressing smoothly and conservatively at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Miss Margaret Haley was calmly addressing the delegates on the subject of referendum petitions.

Suddenly a delegate arose and made a motion, which few people heard. It was to the effect that the federation should adjourn and go to the hall in North Clark street, where a "protest" meeting in behalf of the Western Federation of Miners was in progress.

A few minutes later the delegates were marching up Clark street.

Secretary E. N. Nockels was the first to reach the hall. Treasurer J. J. Brittain and Delegate Edwin R. Wright were close behind him.

Nockels Pales at Sight.

Nockels grew pale. The federation delegates halted at the door.

"Anarchists!" said Nockels, under his breath.

A speaker with pompadour hair and a flowing red tie was pacing excitedly up and down the platform.

"The Nevsky prospect sends a message to Clark street today. Do you hear it?" the speaker was saying. There was a loud burst of applause.

Nockels and the other unionists attempted a retreat. It was too late, however, and the next moment they found themselves in a conspicuous position on the platform. They squirmed in vain. The meeting was just getting good.

"We need 100,000 socialist ballots to teach the capitalistic class a lesson," shouted an enthusiastic partisan, who was talking in German.

Mrs. Lucy Parsons interrupted him.

"Tell the truth," she said. "We need not ballots but——"

Retreat in Disorder.

Mrs. Parsons probably meant to say "bullets," but the chairman cut her off. This brought three cheers from the gallery for the "social revolution."

At this point the chairman called on Secretary Nockels for a speech, but Nockels could not be found.

CLOSE MINES TO CHECK UNION.

Eleven Hundred Men Laid Off in Arizona on Advent of Labor Organizers.

Bisbee, Ariz., Feb. 17.—Eleven hundred miners have been discharged since last Tuesday by the big mining companies of the Warren district. It is generally understood that the discharge is due directly to the advent of organizers of the Western Federation of Miners. Before the close of this week, it is believed, all the mines in this district will be closed down.

SKULL OF PEARL BRYAN FOUND NEAR CINCINNATI?

Mystery Regarding Disappearance of Head of Girl Slain Ten Years Ago May Be Cleared.

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—C. H. Glandorf, a contractor, who has the contract to fill in the ground between Newport and Dayton, Ky., across the river from Cincinnati, today discovered a skull that is believed to be that of Miss Pearl Bryan, the beautiful Greencastle (Ind.) girl, who was murdered and her body decapitated on Feb. 1, 1896, by Jackson and Walling. Cincinnati medical students, who were afterwards hanged. Her headless body was identified by her mother, but the head was never found.

The evidence which points to the fact that the skull was that of Pearl Bryan is this:

The skull was found in the soil which forms part of the roadway that a carriage, en route to the proved scene of Pearl Bryan's murder, near Fort Thomas, Ky., would take from the residence of a doctor in Newport, where, the testimony at the trial showed, Miss Bryan underwent treatment just before she was killed.

The skull alone was found. No other parts of the skeleton to which the skull belongs has been or can be found by the workmen.

The measurements of the skull tally with the measurements of those of Miss Bryan's skull. The exact size and shape of Miss Bryan's head was unknown to the doctors and lawyers at the trial of Jackson and Walling.

"REDS" ON PARADE AS TROOPS WATCH

Anarchists, Socialists, Anti-clericals in Demonstration at Rome.

SOLDIERS READY TO ACT.

Display Intended to Aid Cause of Separation of Church and State.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

ROME, Feb. 17.—The anti-clerical demonstration on the occasion of the dedication of the monument to the philosopher, Bruno, who was burned at the stake by order of the inquisition, did not prove such an imposing event as was expected and heralded by the radical papers.

The procession was made up of about 15,000 persons, with 120 flags and twenty bands. The paraders were socialists, anarchists, students, and the usual contingent of loafers, who participate in all demonstrations and started from the station at 3 p. m., headed by bands playing republican airs. Many banners were carried. Included among the paraders were the anti-clerical associations, carrying wreaths intended to be placed on the statue of Bruno.

Shout "Death to Pope."

The procession crossed the city, shouting "Death to the pope," "Down with the vatican," and "Hurrah for socialism." The demonstrators were flanked at regular intervals by squads of police, who marched with them. Great crowds lined the streets, but they were indifferent to the spectators. Great precautions were taken by the government to prevent disturbances. All the garrisons were under arms, but there was no untoward display of force. Soldiers were hidden along the line of march. The vatican was guarded as usual, but as it was outside the route taken by the procession no apprehension was felt of a hostile demonstration there.

The paraders arrived near the statue in the Piazza Campo del Tiori, deposited their wreaths, then went to the capitol, where Sig. Ferri, socialist deputy, intended to make a speech. The mayor prohibited access to the capitol's loggia, celebrated owing to Rienzi having addressed the Romans from it, but the flagbearers attempted to mount the staircase leading to the loggia. Forty policemen held the crowd back, and a struggle ensued, which, becoming alarming, the carbineers drew their revolvers. The crowd, swelled by new arrivals, dislodged the police, four of whom were badly injured by being trampled upon and kicked. Then they rushed up the staircase and reached the loggia, hooting the police, who withdrew.

Serious Conflict Averted.

A company of infantry with fixed bayonets arrived late, but fortunately refrained from any action, as a serious conflict would have resulted. Sig. Farri mounted the platform and made a speech which nobody understood, but he nevertheless was applauded and cheered. Subsequently the crowd dispersed.

A majority of the population is indifferent to the anti-clerical movement, and today's demonstration contributed no change to the situation nor hastened in any way the attempt to follow France's example in separating the church and state.

NOTES FROM FOREIGN LANDS.

ST. PETERSBURG—A large force of mounted police surrounded the great hall of St. Petersburg university and arrested many social revolutionists, who were holding a meeting to decide upon a course of action to be taken in Wednesday's elections. Fifty of the leaders were taken to prison.

CONSTANTINOPLE—An imperial irade orders the banishment of Feehmi Pasha, chief of the secret police of the palace, whose punishment was demanded by Germany as a result of his seizure of a ship's cargo intended for Hamburg.

BERLIN—The German exhibiters at the St. Louis exposition gave a banquet in honor of Dr. Theodor Lewald, who was commissioner general from Germany to the exposition. Speeches lauding President Roosevelt were made.

MANAGUA, NICARAGUA—The people of Nicaragua demand reparation from the government of Honduras for the invasion of their territory by Honduras troops and have offered financial aid for a conflict with Honduras.

TOKIO PAPER SAYS THAT IS AT BOTTOM OF WHOLE TROUBLE.

Nichi Nichi, Regarded as Authority in Diplomatic Affairs, Declares San Francisco School Fight Is Only Side Issue—Exclusion Too Big a Price for Settlement—Expect Measure to Pass House Today—Japs Gathering in Mexico.

TOKIO, Feb. 17.—The Nichi Nichi, which is regarded as an authority in diplomatic affairs, declares that the proposed exclusion of Japanese by the United States is too much to pay for the settlement of the San Francisco school differences. The school trouble, it says, is only a side issue. It objects particularly to restricting Japanese entering the United States from Hawaii, which it thinks is practically unavoidable.

The whole question, it says, hinges on the admission of laborers. It suggests the removal of the disability of the Japanese to become naturalized.

If this be effected the Nichi Nichi thinks that the last source of difficulty between Japan and the United States will cease to exist.

Expect to Rush Bill Through.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—After an hour's conference with President Roosevelt tonight Representative James E. Watson of Indiana, the republican whip in the house of representatives, said that there is absolutely no doubt regarding the passage of the immigration bill, including the amendment to exclude coolie labor from continental United States.

"The president is anxious," Watson said, "that the bill be taken up the first thing tomorrow.

"I sent out tonight special notices to all the republican members to be in their seats tomorrow in order that we may reach a vote an an early hour."

Schmitz's Explanation Received.

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 17.—At a meeting last night of the executive committee of the Japanese and Corean Exclusion league the following telegram from Mayor Schmitz at Washington to President O. A. Tveitmoe was read:

"Amendment to immigration bill is only forerunner of what is to follow. Cannot make public full details until later. Have not relinquished any of our rights. Agitation at this timbe may complicate satisfactory settlement."

The telegram was listened to without comment and ordered filed.

STEAMERS CRASH; FOURTEEN PERISH

British Vessels Collide in Heavy Seas Off Coast of Cardiff.

ONLY SIX GET TO RAFT.

One Dies from Exhaustion Before Rescue Is Made by Tugboats.

CARDIFF, Feb. 17.—Fourteen persons met death in a collision on Saturday at midnight between the British steamer Heliopolis and the British steamer Orianda. Among the dead was the latter vessel's captain. The Orianda, which was bound outward from Penarth, sank. The Heliopolis put into this port with its bows damaged.

The night was clear, but a gale was blowing with a heavy sea running. The Orianda, which was coal laden for Spezzia, was struck between the engine room and the stoke hole and so badly damaged that it immediately began to fill. It heeled over and sank within half an hour. The Heliopolis drifted away without rendering assistance.

Thirteen Go Down with Steamer.

The captain mustered all of the Orianda's nineteen men on deck. Each was given a life belt and jumped into the sea. Six of them reached a waterlogged lifeboat, the only boat it was possible to launch. The others had been smashed in the collision.

All of the men, with the exception of one who died from exhaustion, were rescued by a pilot boat after suffering greatly from exposure.

The Orianda was built in 1879 at Liverpool, was of 1,500 tons displacement, and belonged to the Oriental Steamship company of Liverpool.

The Heliopolis is under charter to convey 2,000 Spanish emigrants to Honolulu. In a letter to Lloyds Shipping Gazette the ship brokers said they had arranged the charter on behalf of the American government, but it was stated elsewhere that the Spaniards had been engaged by Hawaiian sugar interests to replace Japanese laborers.

The Heliopolis on Saturday was at Barry, Wales, whence it was to proceed to Malaga for the emigrants.

Election by congressional districts would change this by giving five to the west side, two to the north side, three to the south side, and one to Evanston. But that is not the principal thing it will do. Election by congressional districts in Chicago would mean the almost certain election of five of the nine republican candidates.

This, with a republican at Evanston, and the five from the country towns, normally always republican, would make the board stand eleven republicans and four democrats.

To Prevent Limit on Auto Speed.

Some legislators are objecting to certain provisions of the automobile bill introduced early in the session by Senator Humphrey. Opposition is heard particularly to a portion of section 13 of the bill, which provides that "no city, town, village or other municipality shall have power to make any ordinance, by-law or resolution limiting or restricting the time or speed of motor vehicles, and no ordinance, by-law or resolution heretofore or hereafter made by any city, village, town or other municipality or corporation within the state, by whatever name known or designated, in respect to or limiting the use or speed of motor vehicles, shall have any force, effect or validity, and they are hereby declared to be of no validity or effect."

EMPLOYMENT AGENTS ACTIVE.

Fighting Hard Against Bill to Stop "Blind" Advertisements and Exact More Fees.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Committee hearings will occupy a large part of the attention of the legislature this week. The most important subjects up for consideration will be the reciprocal demurrage bill by the railroad committee, the local option bill by the judiciary committee, and the employment agency bill by the license committee, all in the lower house.

The last named bill, with its important interest to persons seeking employment, and the aid of agencies to secure it, is endangered in some vital points because it would stop the practices of several large agencies which have considerable influence in Springfield.

One of these agencies is fighting a provision to prevent the publication of "blind advertisements," which deceive a person seeking employment into believing that an actual position is open, whereas the advertisement is merely a trick on the part of the agency to get hold of the unemployed.

Another large agency with branches all over the country is fighting a provision which would stop the practice of charging its subscribers, in addition to the regular registration fee of $2 allowed by law, a $3 fee in the shape of a subscription to a magazine.

The principal opposition thus far has come from these two sources. A great majority of agencies, according to the statement of Supt. Cruden of the South Side Free Employment agency in Chicago, are willing to have the bill passed.

Managers of both of those agencies, which are the chief opponents of this remedial legislation, live in the district represented by Chester W. Church of Chicago. It was largely due to his efforts that the license committee refused to pass the bills out of committee last week.

Church, saying that both managers have requested him not to permit their interests to be injured without a hearing, asserts that he is not opposed to the measure, but that he only insists that they shall be given a chance to make their arguments.

Chairman Brady has announced his desire to get the bill out with a favorable report. Representative Ton is fighting vigorously to get immediate action. Unless Church is given countenance by other members of the committee in a scheme to nullify the principal provisions of the measure, or to kill it, there is a chance that it may succeed in getting out of the committee this week.

GRAND OPERA TROUPE HERE; COMEDY OF ERRORS AT DEPOT.

San Carlo Company in Special Train of Eleven Coaches Reaches Chicago for Week's Program.

The San Carlo Grand Opera company, which will fill a week's engagement at the Auditorium theater beginning tonight, arrived in Chicago at the Illinois Central station last evening in a special train of eleven cars. The train left Cincinnati at 11:45 a. m. over the Big Four railroad.

Mme. Nordica arrived in her private car twelve hours in advance of the company and took a day's rest at the Auditorium Annex. She spent part of the afternoon driving and receiving friends.

There are 160 persons in the company, including everybody from the stage carpenters to the prima donnas. Just what the arrival of a train load of grand opera persons means to the average corps of station porters can hardly be appreciated by the outsider, especially when scarcely any of the visitors speak English. With the exception of the executive staff and some of the principals, practically all the San Carlo troupe speak only Italian.

The result was that the advent of the train almost simultaneously with another well loaded passenger train caused the grand opera people to enact a veritable "Comedy of Errors" on the busy depot platform.

In his effort to be expedient, one cab driver called down wrath on his head by bundling one of the Italian tenors and a stage electrician into the same hansom. A red capped, colored porter, with his hands full of shawl straps and valises, became separated from the owners of one bundle. There was confusion generally.

The confusion was enhanced because the singers will not open their mouths while in the night air for fear of contracting a sore throat.

One depot porter, after it was all over, wiped his brow and exclaimed breathlessly: "I thought they were singers. Every one I tackled was dumb as a post."

One of the chorus girls was taken from the train on a stretcher and taken to Michael Reese hospital, ill with pneumonia.

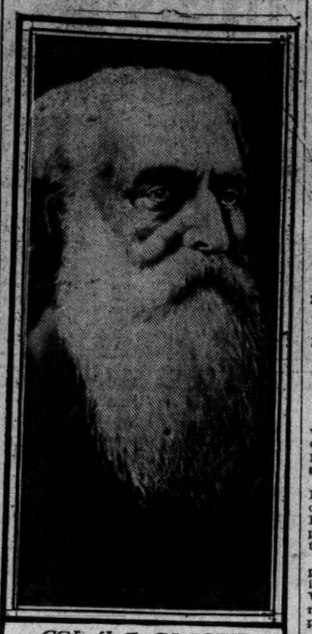

The company will appear here under the auspices of the Alumnæ association of the Bryn Mawr college. Nat Roth, manager, says the week's engagement will add about $10,000 to the association's endowment fund.

Alleged Bogus Policeman Held.

Charged with representing himself as a city policeman for the purpose of extorting money from women, Shirley W. Newton, said to be employed by the International Detective agency, with offices in the Monon building, was arrested last evening by Detectives Tierney and Brennan of the Desplaines street station.

Theosophy's Head Dies in Far East.

COL. H. S. OLCOTT

COL. HENRY S. OLCOTT DIES

HEAD OF THEOSOPHICAL SOCIETY SUCCUMBS IN INDIA.

Cable from Presidency at Adyar Announces Death of Co-founder—End Caused by Attack of Pneumonia—Local Society Hears News with Sorrow—Was 76 Years Old—Had Resided and Done Much in Far East.

Col. Henry Steel Olcott, president of the Theosophical society and who with Mme. Blavatsky founded the organization, died yesterday morning at the presidency at Adyar, Madras, India. A cable message announcing his death was received in Chicago in the afternoon by R. A. Burnett, local treasurer of the society. It had been transmitted to him by the general secretary of the American section from New York.

Col. Olcott had been ill since last June, having never fully recovered from an attack of pneumonia in Paris. His enfeebled condition was apparent when he came to Chicago last summer to preside at the national convention of the society.

News of the death was announced last evening at a meeting of the Chicago Theosophists at their headquarters in the Athenæum building and was received with sorrow, for Col. Olcott, even more than the Russian woman, Mme. Blavatsky, was given the credit for the growth of theosophy throughout the world, and it was said to be due to his capacity for organization as well as his mental and physical vigor.

Founded Order in 1875.

Col. Olcott, who was 76 years old, founded the order and became its president on Nov. 17, 1875, in New York. Three years later he and Mme. Blavatsky went to India for the upbuilding of the association. Mme. Blavatsky died in 1891.

Col. Olcott was born in America and was a lawyer by profession when he became a soldier in the civil war. The formation of the Theosopical society was the outgrowth of a friendship formed during the exploitation of the "Eddy" ghosts in Vermont, just after the close of the war. Col. Olcott, on account of his interest in psychical research, was sent to the Eddy farm by one of the New York newspapers. The published statements brought a pilgrimage of hundreds of people to the farm, and Mme. Blavatsky was among them. Later the organization was suggested at one of the gatherings in Mme. Blavatsky's parlors.

Leave London for India.

A lodge was subsequently formed in London, but progress in commercial centers it was found was so slow that Col. Olcott and Mme. Blavatsky decided to go to India and work back into the busy world. In the atmosphere of the east the society thrived.

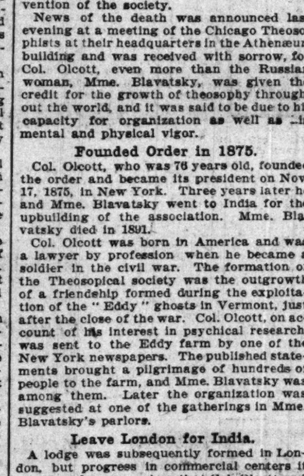

The headquarters of the organization include twenty acres on the banks of the Adzar river, which is a mile and a half from the Bay of Bengal. There are theosophical societies in forty-two countries, but perhaps the most effective work of Col. Olcott was in uniting various Buddhist sects in the orient. He supported himself entirely from the sales of the Theosophist magazine and contributed to the extension of the society by gifts of money. He was credited with some remarkable cures.

Death Claims Dean of Divinity School.

ERI B. HULBERT

Eri Baker Hulbert, dean of the University of Chicago Divinity school and head of the department of church history, died early yesterday in Wesley hospital. His death followed an attack of gall stones, complicated by pneumonia.

Funeral services will be held at Mandel hall, University of Chicago, tomorrow at 1:30 p. m.

Prof. Hulbert was born July 16, 1841, where the Masonic temple now stands. He was graduated from Union college in 1863 and from the Hamilton Theological seminary in 1865.

His successive pastorates were at Manchester, N. H., 1865-1868; Rolling Mills mission, 1868-1870; First Baptist church, St. Paul, 1870-1874; First Baptist church, San Francisco, 1874-1878; Fourth Baptist church, Chicago, 1878-1881.

In 1881 he accepted the professorship of church history in Baptist Union Theological seminary, now the University of Chicago Divinity school. He was elected dean upon its transference to the university in 1892.

For several years before his death Dr. Hulbert was the sole survivor of the teaching staff of the seminary of twenty-five years ago. In 1869 he married Miss Ethelyn Spencer. Two of the three children survive. His daughter, Louise, is the wife of Dr. A. R. E. Wyant, who was pastor at Morgan Park for over ten years. His son, Charles Eri, married Miss Esther Linn, niece of Miss Jane Addams. Both families reside in Chicago.

Saturday's Wreck

Sharp Curve Probable Cause of Accident on New York Central.

Again scores of human lives have been sacrificed, and scores maimed as a penalty for the mistakes of railroad construction.

It is yet too early to determine the exact cause of the accident at Bronx Park Saturday evening, but two things are certain—it cannot be attributed to high speed or to the fact that the train was propelled by electrical power.

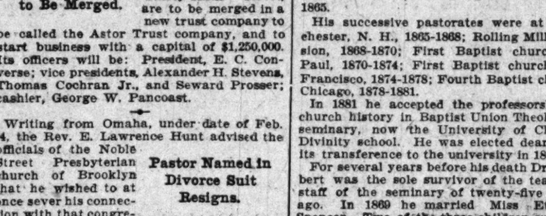

Passengers during the exciting moments immediately following the disaster have made conflicting estimates concerning the rate of speed at which the train was moving, some placing it as high as 70 or 80 miles an hour. Even if these are true it would not alone be sufficient cause, because such speed is attained regularly by railroads throughout the country every day of the year.

A most significant fact is that the accident occurred on a sharp curve. We have repeatedly called attention to the fact that the trackage of the old steam systems is not suited to electrical equipment, because he frequency of curve on these lines does not permit of the high speed which electrical power is capable of making with safety.

Editorial after editorial, and statement after statement, will attempt to explain this accident, but how few of these will strike the real cause.

They will talk again of "speed madness," despite the fact that the speed was much less than is daily attained by hundreds of trains, and some will even so superficially view the matter as to assign the responsibility to the recently installed electric motive power by which this train was propelled.

It was not the motive power which caused this latest accident, and not the speed, but the track over which it was attempted. Curve, Curve, Curve! Let these words burn in—winding, snake-like curves that twist in and out. Think of it! One hundred miles an hour upon a straight track would mean only a fraction of a per cent of the hazard that a speed of 50 miles an hour around a curve would entail.

We want to repeat here, and emphasize by this terrible demonstration the same statement we have so often made: "High speed with safety is only possible with the most governable motive power and the best constructed track, but above all, by the elimination of curves."

The public are awakening, and sooner or later the railroads must yield to their conviction. The existing railroads were planned when 20 miles an hour was considered high speed and the public demanded no greater expedition. Curves of this sort didn't then matter, neither were direct or shorter lines required.

To repair these unforeseen mistakes today means to abandon miles upon miles of right-of-way and road bed, but to build right in the first place without serious grades or curves, means no such sacrifice to the builders of the Chicago-New York Electric Air Line Railroad, who are today constructing a great modern, direct railroad between these great centers.

Consider well the following statement: The existing trunk lines may by electrification economize much in operating expenses, in time required to start and stop trains, and even gain in bursts of speed upon short stretches of straight track, but it will never mean to them what it does to the Chicago-New York Electric Air Line Railroad, which over its unswerving tracks, building now to meet conditions as they exist now, reaches from New York to Chicago with from 160 to 350 miles less of track than the existing steam lines.

Because of the absence of curves the trains of this railroad will be able to make the trip in ten hours with perfect safety. Its organizers foresaw the urgent need of such line and the fact that thousands of people throughout the land have responded to their invitation to join them as stockholders shows that the public is alive to existing conditions.

Our advertisements of yesterday and previously have explained the project fully and to those interested we shall be pleased to send copies of Air Line News, which deals in an interesting way with the enterprise and its progress.

Value in Decoration

The projected decoration of one's home is more than a matter of purchase—rather is it an occasion for prayer.

The mere buying of paint and paper, fabrics and articles of vertu, however fine, is nothing—any one can do that.

It is only cultivated skill in the assembling which can guard good materials from unfortunate conjunctions—and it is the spirit in which the task is essayed that alone can determine whether certain inanimate "goods" shall form a pitiful and merely expensive chaos, or shall merge into a living symphony.

This trained skill and this spirit of approaching the work are the factors in beautiful decoration that are best worth paying for, yet we take our only compensation for them in the serious satisfaction that ensues on work well done. We do not charge for our prestige.

On the material side, however, we can definitely fix—and prove—our values.

We either manufacture or import directly the finest decorative materials in all lines. We control the American sale of many distinguished things in papers, hangings, etc. We design and make things when that seems to promise the highest results. This purchase of things at first hand means, for you, the payment of but one profit, and that a moderate one.

The decorative exhibits are grouped on our fourth floor, known as

The Cowan Galleries.

RAILWAY DENIES GRAFT CHARGES.

Pennsylvania Report Proves Vindication for Officers of Company.

SEES GRAVE WRONG DONE.

Fidelity to Public and Stockholders Claimed for Army of Employes.

New York, Feb. 17.—"A mistaken public opinion, misinformed as to the facts because of the publication of portions and not the whole of the testimony of the witnesses before the interstate commerce commission, and, therefore, basing its conclusions upon insufficient premises, has done grave injustice to the whole service of the Pennsylvania railroad company."

This, in brief, is the report of the special committee appointed by the board of directors of the Pennsylvania railroad company nearly a year ago to examine into the facts connected with the acquisition and ownership by officers and employés of the company of stock or other interest in any company the holding of which could affect the performance of their duty or the company's duty to the public. The alleged acceptance of gratuities by employés of the company was also inquired into by the committee.

As a result of its examination of 2,505 officers and employés, including every officer of the several companies whose individual action or whose order to any subordinate could effect any discrimination, the committee reports it found that 266 had interests in coal or other corporations or firms or with individuals. With the exception of fifteen all of these had acquired their interests by purchase. The fifteen admitted that they had received gifts of shares or interests in various corporations, and their names have been reported to the presidents of the several railroad companies for appropriate action.

Vindication for Officers.

On the whole, the report vindicates the officers and employés of the Pennsylvania system. It is found that in the development of the company between the year 1899 and 1907 the interests of the stockholders in every instance have been properly safeguarded. It is declared that the terms on which increases in share and debt capital have been marketed have received the commendation of competent and independent financiers; that as effective competition as possible in work of such magnitude was obtained in placing the thousands of contracts for maintenance of way and new construction; that no favoritism was shown in the purchase of supplies or equipment; and that the officers of the railroad companies in all engineering and construction work have been as faithful as they were skilful. The committee expresses itself as satisfied that the purchasing department had been administered with marked ability and with unswerving fidelity to the interest of the shareholders.

Allegation of favoritism to certain shippers of freight, mainly coal, are treated at considerable length by the committee, which sums up the results of its investigation of this subject with the statement that "there is not and has not been on the part of the railroad company any discrimination as between shippers in the facilities given for the exercise for that legal right."

Individual Cars Cause Trouble.

Much of the trouble which led to the allegations, the committee believes, was due to the so-called individual cars. In 1906 there were 27,500 individual cars in service on the Pennsylvania railroad. For the use of these cars the railroad pays 6 mills a mile, loaded or empty, and charges the regular freight on the loaded cars. The individual cars cause suspicions of preference and lead to "unfounded, but vexatious" charges of discrimination. While recognizing all the disadvantages, however, the railroad company has not yet seen its way clear to do away with the individual cars. The principal reason given for inability to discontinue the individual car service is that equipment cannot be provided rapidly enough to meet the growth of business.

On charges of discrimination to favored shippers in the bituminous coal fields the committee quotes the report of a company of expert accountants, who made an investigation of the matter. The accountants' report declares that "the officers of the railroad company have fair operating or other reasons to present in explanation of such seeming preferences and discriminations."

With regard to the charges of favoritism in car distribution to the Berwind-White Coal Mining company, the committee's report says there is no basis for the alleged discrimination.

JOY OVER WIRE VICTORY.

TELEGRAPHERS NOW TO SEEK ADVANCE FOR WOMEN.

Propose to Use Present Advantage in Making Stronger Body—Plan for Equal Salary to Weaker Sex—Aid Will Be Offered Operators in Smaller Towns—Congratulations Are Received from Unions Throughout the Country—Wear New Buttons.

At a massmeeting of local No. 1 of the Commercial Telegraphers' union of Chicago, held in Handel hall yesterday afternoon—a meeting which was called a week ago in expectation of taking a strike vote on the wage question which was settled during the week—national officials of the union announced that the cudgel would be taken up for the women of the organization in the hope of placing women operators' wages on an equal scale with those of the men.

It was pointed out that in many cases men and women operators of equal ability, working by turns on the same wire, the wages of the woman would be $60 a month, while the man would receive $75. The women belong to the union now and received their share of the 10 and 15 per cent increases which were granted by the Western Union and Postal companies respectively during the week, but the proportionate wages were not affected. Among other things that the union men decided they would fight for at some future time was an increase in wages at the branch offices and in the small towns.

The operators packed the Randolph street hall and turned the meeting, which a week ago promised to form a crisis in the history of their organization, into a jubilation. From all the sentiments expressed it was gathered that the union men will seek to increase the strength of the organization to a greater degree than ever, now that the first victory is won.

Telegrams were read from cities all over the country, and many from foreign countries, congratulating the Chicago men and announcing that they were ready to support the Chicago local in any stand it takes. Speeches were made by Vice President John C. Newman of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers, National President S. J. Small of the Commercial Telegraphers' union, and Secretary Wesley Russell of the same body.

A boycott on the Missouri, Kansas and Texas and the Santa Fé railroads was urged by Mr. Newman, who said that these roads were on the unfair list of the railway union and the federation of labor.

When the operators appear for work today they will wear the blue buttons adopted by the union.

The fabrics used in these garments are imported and domestic woolens. The imported were made specially to the order of this shop by English mills, and bear, on the inside linings, the importer's guarantee.

Every garment was individually cut, tailored, and finished by hand.

The prices are from $20 to $50.

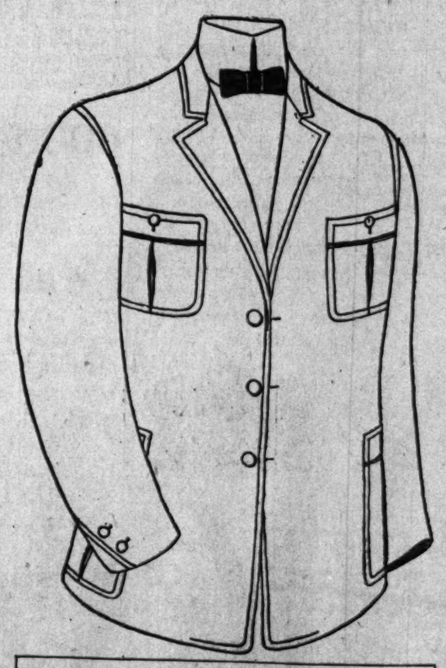

At twenty dollars and at every intermediate price to fifty dollars the stock is complete, as to sizes, styles and fabrics, both for men and young men. At any point in this range of prices these clothes are the finest offered in the United States.

It is made in flannels and worsteds and may be had in either two or three piece suits.

THIS two piece outing suit was designed for fashionable summer wear. It is unlike the ordinary outing suits and will always attract favorable attention. It is just the garment for wear at resorts and in the city during the hot period. Hand tailored and finished with bellows plaited pocket. Made in flannels and cheviots.

New Decorative Work in American Glass Mosaics.

This new method of making beautiful art objects at very small expense from transparent or opaque Glass Mosiacs promises to be one of the most interesting innovations we have ever introduced in our Fancy Goods Section. The planning and executing of artistic designs is not only fascinating and instructive but very simple. Second Floor.

From the transparent Mosiacs beautiful shades may be made for lamps, electrics and candles. Small windows in the home may also be decorated with these richly colored Mosaics—giving them much the appearance of stained glass. Pieces are made to fit together in almost any design, and the small open spaces are filled in with specially prepared cement.

Among the Washington Birthday Favors in Fancy Goods Section are Paper Lunch Sets, Napkins, Doilies, red, white and blue Garlands, Balls and Crepe Paper for decorating.

NO MORE TOY SOLDIERS.

A warning voice has come out of Boston. A warning woman has come along with the voice to depict to Chicago mothers the terrors of permitting their children to play with toy soldiers and toy cannon. Because, she argues, the pretended battle of the soldiers throws the glamour of romance about war for the child and warps his imagination, and perhaps when he grows up that boy may kill a man.

The spectacle of glamour warping the imagination must be indeed profoundly interesting, and one worth seeing if only for the novelty involved. But even more interesting is the theory that by permitting a small boy to play with tin soldiers, thereby warping his imagination, he is so accustomed to sanguinary scenes and his youthful mind so filled with bloody thoughts that he may eventually grow up and kill a man. What a world of peril is suggested by this unhappy reflection. What wretched temptations continually beset the small boy. Permit him not to watch the hired man burning garbage or the cook consigning refuse to the flames, lest when he grows up he is tempted to fire the Ephesian dome or its modern commercial representative.

Child training is an exceedingly difficult problem. In spite of many strenuous efforts to banish Santa Claus from childhood, that dissipated looking purveyor of gifts bobs up annually as cheery and unabashed as ever. And to add to his sins he is largely responsible for the toy soldiers and cannon that are so repulsive to special feminine contemplation. But when at last Santa Claus and the tin soldiers and the toy cannon are discomfited and dispersed the small boy's danger is not wholly averted; he must be hustled into the closet when the troops march down from Fort Sheridan. He must not be allowed to witness parades of the militia, and, above all, he must be restrained from viewing the naval reserves as they pass down the street drawing the horrid emblem of war. For his imagination may be warped by these grewsome spectacles, with such other disastrous results as advancing years may portray.

It is assumed that the small boy is a little savage who must be brought up in the sweet and peaceful atmosphere of a perpetual Hague conference. To accomplish this the entire policy of parenthood must be overturned; the tin soldier that suggests murder, the bonfire that may lead to arson, the decanters and glasses in the store windows that may stimulate a thirst for liquor—all these must be scrupulously kept out of the range of his observation. Then, when he arrives at manhood, he will be full of sensibility and imagination, knowing nothing of that which is evil and fully equipped to go forth into the glorious battle of life. This is not merely possible, it is absolutely certain, based as it doubtless is on practical and successful experience in Boston.

A NEW TRAINING SHIP.

Several members of the Illinois delegation in congress are now serving their last term. Before they leave the house they have an opportunity to render a service to the people of this state. Other representatives of Illinois look forward to continuing their labors at Washington after the fourth of March next. They should be glad to get one important matter out of the way before then so as to leave time free for other questions which will come up during their new term. All representatives from this state, including Mr. Foss, chairman of the house naval committee, should bring their united influence to bear upon the navy department to secure needed changes in the equipment of the Illinois Naval Reserve.

The Dorothea, which has served as training ship for several years, has been increasingly inadequate to the needs of the naval militia. Within a year two ships have been assigned to Maryland, whose naval reserve is two-thirds the size of that of Illinois, but this state cannot get one decent ship. The value of the Illinois Naval Reserve to the navy department and to the nation is in no danger of exaggeration. It is great. It was tested in the war with Spain. In the event of another war with a naval power, either upon the Atlantic or the Pacific, one of the first things would be a call upon Illinois for men to fill the vacant places in the battleships of the United States navy. These men must have not only zeal but knowledge, practical knowledge as well as theoretical. They cannot obtain it without better facilities.

Taken by itself the propriety of satisfying the needs of the Illinois Naval Reserve is beyond question. When the matter is taken up in Washington it is necessarily only one of many matters requiring the attention of the navy department. Yet even among other important matters this is not one to be overlooked or postponed. It is as important as any. In fact, in its relation to the future needs of the navy it is probably more important than many other matters which are likely to receive earlier attention unless concerted action of the Illinois representatives compels recognition of the situation.

THE JAPANESE QUESTION.

The Japanese school children have rescued the immigration bill. But for them it would have remained in the possession of the conference committees, for the conferees would have been unable to agree on a report. When the administration had worked out a plan for the exclusion of the Japanese coolies it could find no better way in which to get congressional approval than to resuscitate the immigration bill and attach it to that measure. That would be killing two birds with one stone—disposing of the Japanese question and making the immigration law a little more stringent.

If the house shall concur in the report of the conference committee, as the senate has done, the administration will have extricated itself from an unpleasant situation. That situation was partly of its own making. When the Japanese government complained of the separate schools at San Francisco the administration fell in at once with the Tokio claim that there was a violation of a treaty. The admission was an imprudence. The better opinion is that the treaty does not confer on Japanese children a right to common school privileges. The conduct of the San Francisco school officials is open to severe criticism on many grounds, but hardly on the ground that a treaty was violated.

If the bargain which is being made satisfies the Japanese government because the Japanese children are not to be segregated; if it satisfies the people of San Francisco and California because no more of the coolies, whose competition they dread, are to be allowed to enter the country, and if it is acceptable to congress because it disposes of the vexatious Japanese question, there is no special reason why any one should find fault with the curious and complicated method of reaching an agreement. The theory that the national government can have any voice in the management of the public schools of a state has not been established by the reversal of its action by the San Francisco school board. There are reasons why the immigration of Asiatics, who do not become a homogeneous part of the body politic, but remain an alien element, should be discouraged.

Whether the method of excluding the Japanese coolies which is to be tried will be so effective as to satisfy the nervous and suspicious people of California remains to be seen. At the best it is a mere makeshift to tide over the time until some permanent arrangement can be made. The question may claim the attention of the next congress.

OVERTAXED MAIL MACHINERY.

There are many things which seem to warrant the conclusion that the machinery of the United States postoffice is being taxed almost to the point of breakdown. When conditions are normal there is constant complaint on the part of postmasters and citizens that the service is inadequate to the demands made upon it. It is a common newspaper item that the officials of a city are seeking more clerks and carriers or larger appropriations for some needed improvement or other. It is equally common to find mention of complaints of business men that a community is slighted by the government. There seems to be a constant pressure upon the Washington authorities for larger outlays.

Any disturbance of the normal conditions brings congestion and delays. The swamping of offices in December by what is called "the holiday mail" is generally recognized as a sort of inevitable accompaniment of Christmas time. Even such an occasion as Valentine day sometimes upsets the whole routine of the postal system. As population increases in the country the interest in the observance of such a day becomes greater. With thousands of dealers engaged in the sale of the little tokens of remembrance the number of buyers is so large that the carriers and clerks cannot possibly handle the increase in the mail thus occasioned.

In San Francisco it is said that the delivery of 25,000 valentines was delayed a day because the overworked clerks refused to handle them until the postmaster called all the employés before him and threatened discharge for every one who failed to work in clearing up this surplus mail. The same dispatch which told of the incident gave the added information that overtime work is not rewarded by the government. Hence that work is unpopular.

The same condition of overtaxed machinery is illustrated by the attitude of the carriers of Butte, Mont., who find it impossible to make the pay allowed by the government meet the actual expenses of living. Their ultimatum, "More pay or we all resign on March 1," might be repeated in many another place where discontent is rife and where the staff of workers is constantly shifting because of the resignations of those who cannot make a living out of the government work. Such a condition is not due to agitation or unrest. It tells of postal appropriations which are too scanty for the needs of the rapidly increasing population of the country and the enormous development in business attendant upon the national prosperity. The mail service is of such vital importance to the welfare of the people that its needs should be abundantly provided for.

NO SIGNS OF PENITENCE.

Mr. Shonts, being practically out of the canal commission and the government service, feels at liberty to make a plea for the distressed railroads of the country. They need money, he says, to make necessary extensions and improvements, which should have been done before this, but find it almost impossible to get money because of the alleged inflamed state of the public mind. The small investor holds aloof. Perhaps he is discouraged, though Mr. Shonts does not suggest that, by the ruling high prices for railroad securities. It may also be, though Mr. Shonts does not mention it, that at this prosperous period the demand for money is so great as to explain the inability of the railroads, which are suddenly asking for a great deal, to get with ease what they want.

Mr. Shonts cries, "Let us have peace." He thinks there is a fair compromise measure by which it can be obtained. He would have the "eminent financiers and captains of industry coöperate with the president to bring about better corporate practices." The financiers and captains, having acquired great wealth through practices which Mr. Shonts says were legally right but morally wrong, are to agree on their own behalf and that of their successors to abandon practices which they no longer need. Mr. Shonts has a lively imagination. He can see in his mind's eye Mr. Ryan, Mr. Rogers, Mr. Morgan, and other eminent citizens sitting down with Mr. Roosevelt and elaborating reformed and purified methods of corporate management.

The unimaginative man cannot, like Mr. Shonts, hear these eminent citizens saying to the president, "We will uphold your hands not merely in enforcing existing laws but in asking such others as are necessary to prevent wrongdoing." The public has heard from them no expressions of sorrow for their past offenses. Whenever they have visited the president it has been for the purpose of asking him to refrain from what they called "unfriendly" legislation, which the public has regarded as salutary legislation. If they had accepted cheerfully the laws devised to put an end to objectionable corporate practices, popular feeling would have subsided and the agitator and demagogue have been disarmed.

Mr. Shonts says the question whether the outstanding securities of the railroads are watered or not "depends largely on the point of view." From his point of view they are not. From that of the public they are. But most men are willing to condone the stock watering offenses of the past, provided they are not repeated. There is no assurance that they will not be repeated if the roads remain in the hands of unscrupulous eminent financiers who use them for speculative purposes. That is why legislation to prevent stock watering is so much needed.

That such legislation would be hurtful to the roads—would make it harder for them to raise money when they need it in order to handle the increasing volume of traffic—cannot be admitted. One trouble with Mr. Shonts is that he is not an impartial observer. He sees the subject exclusively from the point of view of the veteran railroad manager. He cannot rid himself of the notion that if the railroads are not allowed to have everything pretty much their own way the consequences will be disastrous. But the disasters which have visited the American railroads in the past have not been due to legislative interference. They have been largely due to the reckless methods and the lack of foresight of the men who controlled the roads. The restraints of salutary legislation cannot be harmful.

THE STATE AND THE ORANGE.

Moved by an emotion of commendable pride in its products the state of California has decided to set apart the first day of March as Orange day. On this day every loyal Californian will be expected to eat one or more oranges, and it is earnestly requested that friends in distant states follow the same rule in compliment to the commonwealth and in evidence of their good feeling. While there may be some persons who do not like oranges, or are disagreeably affected thereby, it is assumed that for one day in the year they will forget their dislike and temporize with their tastes.

The fact that the hue of the orange suggests the oriental yellow has not apparently diminished the extent of the honor accorded to it. The Californian is extremely proud of the products of his state, and having adopted an orange colored flower, the eschscholtzia, as the state floral emblem, it is quite natural that he should set apart a day for the further glorification of the orange. Such evidences of local pride are always commendable, and while the Californian has his native wine, his olives, his monstrous beets, and other prolific products to glorify, it is fitting that he should select the succulent and harmless orange as the object of special adoration.

It is felicitous also that this tribute to a notable product should be proffered at a time when the public mind has been rent and distracted by emotions of a violent and disagreeable nature. How much more harmonious and agreeable to popular reflection is Orange day than Japanese exclusion day or a period of time set apart for recalling the memories of earthquakes or other disagreeable disturbances. Who can fail on the first day of March, although unhappily for the superstitious it falls on Friday, to eat an orange in pleasant commemoration of the beneficence of nature, assuming, of course, that dealers will not take advantage of loyalty and fellowship to advance the price and thus in an unholy manner increase the revenues?

Orange day bids fair to become to the golden fruit of the tree what Easter day is to the modest and nutritious egg. It must be taken as meaning something more than an economic attempt to dispose of a surplus crop. It is recognition of nature's golden gift to the Golden state, dutiful homage of an appreciative and grateful people. On this day may the oranges be ever sweet and the prices reasonable.

LAST year the Chicago City railway cars carried more than 156,000,000 passengers, of whom, at a conservative estimate, not less than 56,000,000 secured seats.

LETTER OF MARQUISE DE FONTENOY

Copyright: 1907: By the Marquise de Fontenoy.

KING OSCAR'S new minister plenipotentiary at Washington, M. Saderkrantz, comes to this country with experiences that are assuredly unique among the members of the foreign diplomatic corps accredited to the United States. For after serving for a time as subaltern in the smartest regiment of Swedish cavalry he retired in order to join the Salvation army. He remained with the latter a number of years, attained high rank under Gen. Booth, and had charge for a time of the operations of the army in India and in China. Some of his missionary experiences in the interior of China were strange, not to say exciting, and his career in the far orient was replete with adventure. Finally he quarreled with Gen. Booth, resenting the attempts of the home office in London to interfere with his course of action without a proper knowledge of the conditions of the country, threw up his commission, and returned to Sweden, completely severing his connection with the Salvationists.

King Oscar and the crown prince, both of whom had known him well as a cavalry officer, were much interested with all he had to tell of conditions in the orient when he reached Stockholm, and, believing that the knowledge of Asia which he had acquired as missionary would be of advantage to the government, secured for him an appointment in the diplomatic service. There his promotion was extremely rapid. He was found to be an exceptionally useful man, and now is sent to Washington as one of the most capable and rising members of the diplomatic service of King Oscar.

It must be borne in mind that in Sweden more than in any other country of the world the Salvation army secured a hold upon the wealthy and titled classes. The queen, if not an actual member thereof, is at any rate one of its warmest friends, an attendant at its prayer meetings, and a generous subscriber to its various enterprises. Her favorite son, Oscar, Prince Bernadotte, who sacrificed his status and prerogatives as a prince of the reigning house in order to wed his mother's maid of honor, Miss Ebba Munk, is, however, a regular member of the Salvation army, and with his wife frequently conducts public prayer meetings of the regular Salvationist order, not only in Sweden but also abroad, notably in Denmark, much to the annoyance of his fellow officers in the Swedish navy, who are of the opinion that before becoming so active an officer of the Salvation army he should resign his commission as admiral.

Let me add that M. Saderkrantz belongs to an excellent family, has some small fortune of his own, recently inherited, and is likely to prove a most desirable acquisition to Washington society.

Prince Louis de Faucigny Lucinge et de Coligny, whose death has just taken place at Paris in his eightieth year, was a grandson of the ill fated royal duc de Berry, and a great grandson therefore of King Charles X. of France. It may be remembered that when the duc de Berry was assassinated in February, 1820, at the Opéra at Paris, he confided just before he expired the two daughters born to him of his union with Amy Brown to his uncle, King Louis XVIII., and to his father, afterward Charles X. The king settled handsome fortunes upon them, creating one of them Countess Yssoudun and the other countess de Vierzon in their own right. They were respectively 13 and 14 years of age at the time of their father's assassination, and were by his side when he died.

Charlotte, countess of Yssoudun, subsequently became the wife of the prince de Faucigny Lucinge, while her sister Louise, Countess Vierzon, married shortly afterward Baron Athanasius de Charette, father of the now living Gen. Baron de Charette, who played so gallant a rôle in command of the pope's troops prior to 1870, and afterward at the head of his Breton Mobiles in the Franco-German war. He is married to Miss Polk of the well known Tennessee family of that name, which furnished to the United States its eleventh president. Gen. de Charette always has been treated by the Bourbon Orleans as a near and dear kinsman, and Princess Helene, sister of the duke of Orleans, prior to her marriage to the Italian duke of Aosta, was wont to make long stays with the general and with his American wife, accompanying them on several occasions to Rome.

Charlotte, Countess Yssoudun, who married the prince de Lucinge, had five children, the second of whom, Prince Louis, has just died. His elder brother, Prince Charles, the head of the Lucinge family, still survives, and has a number of children, his son, Prince Guy, being married to Mercedes Terry of New York, daughter of the late Antonio Terry, and stepchild, therefore, of Sybil Sanderson. Princess Guy's own mother was Miss Grace Secor of New York, and after her father's death was a ward of Francis Egerton Webb and of Henry L. Sprague of New York until her marriage.

The house of Lucinge-Faucigny is one of the oldest of the nobility of Savoy, and its family tree shows many matrimonial alliances with the now reigning dynasty of Italy. The original name was Fuciniaci, which has been Gallicized into Faucigny, and the name of Lucinge came to it 300 years ago through marriage. The princely title in reality is a Sardinian one, and it was only in 1828 that King Charles X., for the sake of his granddaughter, consented to recognize her husband's foreign title as a French one.

One of Prince Guy's brothers, a nephew and namesake of the old prince who has just died, is now married to the daughter of the Odessa-Parisian-Jewish corn broker and speculator, Michael Ephrussi, a granddaughter, therefore, of the late Baron Alphonse Rothschild of Paris. His previous marriage to Raphaela Cahen, daughter of the Paris banker of that name, was an unhappy one, which, after all kinds of domestic and financial squabbles, ultimately culminated in a separation, the prince having taken the high and lofty ground that it was perfectly preposterous to contract a mésalliance by wedding the daughter of a plebeian banker if the latter would not even pay his daughter's bills.

As to Amy Brown, to whom reference has been made above, she was the daughter of an English clergyman, the Rev. John L. Brown, and contracted a secret ecclesiastical marriage with the royal duc de Berry during the latter's exile in England. This marriage was not recognized as legal in France after the Bourbon restoration, owing to its having failed to receive the sanction of the duke's father and of his uncle, King Louis XVIII., and he was compelled, therefore, for dynastic reasons to wed, during the lifetime of Amy Brown, Princess Caroline of Bourbon, daughter of the king of Naples, who a few months after his assassination gave birth to a son, known throughout his life as the duke of Bordeaux and as the comte de Chambord, and who as a child reigned for a few hours over France as King Henry V. after the abdication in his favor by his grandfather, Charles X. Amy Brown survived until a ripe old age, dying as recently as 1876, that is to say, more than half a century subsequent to the murder of the duke.

Besides these two daughters, to whom I have made reference above, Amy had three sons by the duke. The youngest of them used to be known by the name of George Brown, and died a Catholic in 1882 at Passy, in the suburbs of Paris, in the enjoyment of a handsome annuity settled upon him by his half-brother, the comte de Chambord, leaving no children. His two elder brothers, John and Robert, were registered for some mysterious reason under the maternal grandmother's name of Freeman, and grew up under the care of their mother's father, the clergyman in England, as Protestants and as English subjects. Robert died, but John, after serving in the British navy, retired with the rank of lieutenant, and married in Switzerland a daughter of the baron de Blonay. He died at Zurich in 1866, leaving six children, one of his sons being married to the daughter of Prince Louis of Bourbon.

In one word, the descendants of the union of the duc de Berry and Amy Brown have contributed not one but several chapters to the romance of the illustrious and historic house of Bourbon.

MR. HOPKINSON.
A Farce in Three Acts.
BY
R. C. CARTON.

Presented at the Grand opera house, Chicago, by a company headed by Dallas Welford, Feb. 17, 1907. The cast:

Duke of Braceborough	Henry Stephenson
Earl of Addleton	Cecil Burt
Lord Gawthorpe	Howard Sturge
Hon. Otho Dursingham	George M. Graham
Mr. Smethurst	Edwin H. Brooke
Parbury	Lewis Fielder
Samuel Hopkinson	Dallas Welford
Lady Thyra Egglesby	Olive Temple
Eliza Dibbs	Roxane Barton
Duchess of Braceborough	Elinor Foster

If you wish a good, hearty laugh, see "Mr. Hopkinson" at the Grand opera house. It is the farce by R. C. Carton which has kept London amused for two years and which last season performed the same kind office for New York. That it will find favor with the Chicago public also is reasonably certain, if last evening's audience at the Grand may be taken as a criterion. For that audience sat keenly alert for full three hours and received the performance with the chuckles, the broad grins, and the roars of laughter which mean success for any farce.

The play itself has to do with people none of whom is especially admirable if the standards of common honesty and true morality be applied to them, but they are folk who are clever, who dress well, who observe all the outward forms of elegance and refinement, and who talk and act in exceedingly entertaining fashion. In a word they are the high class society folk as the stage knows them—people who live according to laws and principles entirely of their own framing, who break the majority of the ten commandments, but who, whatever else they may do, never become ill mannered or common.

Into a circle of such fluttering, soulless, gorgeous society butterflies a blundering beetle in the form of a dull witted, small souled clerk who suddenly has come into large wealth tries to make his way. He is received with gladness because of the golden wings that bear him, but he is robbed of his gold just as rapidly as is possible, and only when he finally rebels, and all the plans for further despoiling of him fail, does he realize his mistake, and his showy associates flit away from him.

Mr. Hopkinson is the name of the young clerk, and it is into the circle led by the duke and duchess of Braceborough that he is introduced by an admirer of the duchess. He is a true "bounder" in his hopeless commonness and social impossibleness, but the titled folk accept him because he has an income of $750,000 a year, and the duchess hopes to find in him a suitable husband for her niece, Lady Thyra, who has been "out" for three seasons under her chaperonage, but has not yet landed a marital mate. The bleeding of Mr. Hopkinson and the attempt to make him approximately acceptable in society go on for six months, and his marriage to Lady Thyra is set for the morrow, when the young woman herself loses all patience with his outlandish commonness and elopes with an old time friend and lover. Mr. Hopkinson is deserted by all who have fleeced him, and finds consolation and happiness with Eliza Dibbs, the lady's maid, with whom he had had a "past" before he came into his money, and who has pursued him even into the so-called good society into which he had tried to force himself.

The farce is intensely amusing not alone because of the brilliant manner in which it is written and the exceptionally finished style in which it is enacted by the present company but because it is so skillfully conceived and fashioned that it bears the outward semblance of actuality. Analyzed, its improbabilities become evident, but during the performance the onlooker has the impression of watching live people and real events. The fun is derived almost wholly from the contrasting of the stupidity and the awkwardness of the common born clerk with the cleverness and the polished manners of the titled folk with whom he tries to associate. Everybody on the stage except this Mr. Hopkinson is essentially to the manner born—even the butler and the lady's maid are faultlessly schooled in outward demeanor. This one source of fun is worked to its limit, but so deftly that the spectator does not tire. Mr. Carton, the author, has written wonderfully well and the company does the rest.

For the performance is in every respect excellent. The company is virtually faultless, every rôle from the most important to the least being in hands that not alone are capable but highly proficient. Mr. Welford, who plays Mr. Hopkinson, makes it a character study complete in every essential and worked out in the finest detail. He makes the little bounder a living personage and the only possible fault that could be found with his work is his inclination to overelaborate his fun making—keeping the audience laughing through the employing of bits of stage business until the progress of the performance is delayed. Many of the best lines are lost through this indulgence on his part, and always to the marring of the artistic worth of the performances. His biting of his finger nails in the last act is a piece of stage business which could well be spared, for it is unpleasant to say the least, and it would seem when the audience is as insistent as it was last evening after the second act that the bringing forward of the entire company would be a gracious thing to do, instead of taking the recalls alone.

The Duke of Braceborough of Mr. Stephenson is a masterpiece of elegance and good breeding, the Gawthorpe of Mr. Sturge is so likable that no matter what the man's past demeanors may have been, he is gladly seen and heard, the Earl of Addleton of Mr. Burt is immensely amusing and yet is kept within the bounds of comedy characterization. Miss Temple looks remarkably like Margaret Anglin and plays Lady Thyra so that only sincerest commendation is due her. Miss Foster makes a virtually ideal duchess, and Miss Barton is excellent as the pursuing Eliza. The play is handsomely staged and faultlessly stage managed.

At the Garrick last evening there was not a seat to be had for love or money when the doors opened, and enough people to fill a good sized theater were turned away unsatisfied. The performance was one given by Mme. Oda Nielsen, a Danish actress, who in her native country—and throughout all Scandinavia for that matter—is regarded as an artist of exceptional powers. Seen last evening she proved to be a woman of lithe, graceful figure, fine sensitive face, with large expressive eyes and a wealth of golden hair. She bears her fifty years with a lightness which makes their number seem impossible, and her art is such that she held her auditors spellbound no matter what she was doing. For she did many things last evening. She appeared in a little problem play called "The Liar's Look," in a monologue entitled "Emily's Heart Throbs," and sang folk songs and ballads in English, French, Danish, Swedish, and Norwegian. Her dramatic powers are those of a thoroughly schooled, refined, imaginative artist of the best European type, she is comedienne as well as emotional actress, and she sings with remarkable vocal purity, sweetness, and finish, and with masterly interpretative skill. She was given a banquet by her countrymen last evening after the performance, and today starts on her further progress to the Pacific coast. It is understood that she will appear here again when returning eastward.

Yesterday was an afternoon with two piano recitals—two recitals with one piano and one recital with two pianos. In Music hall Miss Germaine Schnitzer, a young woman said to hail from Austria, gave a recital using one piano; in Orchestra hall Josef Lhevinne, the Russian, gave a recital in which he played upon two pianos—not simultaneously, of course, although his technical abilities are such that it would seem he easily could accomplish such a feat. He had the coöperation of his wife in two selections on his program—Chaminade's "Morning" and a Gavotte by Raff—written for two pianos, and for these selections he gallantly gave up his own instrument to his fair spouse and, seating himself at the other one, which until then had stood an idle but apparently attentive listener to his excellent playing, he joined her in a two piano performance. Thus the two instruments came under his hands in the course of the afternoon.

Mr. Lhevinne's recital began with the F minor Sonata of Brahms, and a finely illuminative and complete interpretation was accorded the rarely played work. The composition is not easy to grasp either by performer or listener, much of it being in the peculiar Brahmsian manner and idiom, which means that some of it is cryptic. But the pianist has made not only its notes but its spirit fully his own, and his performance was a remarkably fine one, especially admirable being the beautiful Andante and the strongly virile Scherzo.

The Chopin Nocturne, op. 62, No. 1, was accorded a technically faultless and interpretatively sympathetic performance, and the A flat Valse, op. 42, was given even more brilliantly than Rosenthal recently played it here, with more of fleetness and with finer grasp of its poetic and musical content. Then came the two piano numbers. Mme. Lhevinne is a dark haired, petite young woman, who plays the piano unusually well, so far as could be judged. She and her husband thoroughly understood each other so far as musical intent was concerned, and their performance deservedly found warm approval at the audience's hands.

Music hall was reached just in time to hear Miss Schnitzer play the "Marche Militaire" of Schubert-Tausig, and after this, her last number on the program, add a showy encore. She impressed as being a pianist who is young both in years and artistic development, who has fleet fingers, abundant temperament, who can play loudly and softly, but seems to have little between these extremes.

SOME EXPERIENCES THAT HAVE MYSTIFIED.

Readers of The Tribune Relate Incidents in Their Lives Which Have Seemed to Them to Border on the Supernatural.

These experiences, which are being printed from day to day in THE TRIBUNE, as the opportunity presents, are weird and in many cases apparently unexplainable. Doubtless, in most instances, the solution of the problem would be found simple if all the facts were known. All contributions used will be paid for. Those not used will be sent to the Society for Psychical Research.

Dead Man Acts as Factory Guide.

I AM superintendent of one of the larger factories in this city, and at the time of which I will speak we were operating part of the plant day and night. One evening late in the fall I left my house at about 8:30 and walked to the factory to see how things were going. Not having my keys with me, I pushed the call button at the main entrance gate of the factory, which button was connected with a bell in the engine room, and waited for some one to let me in. After having waited a moment the side door of the engine room opened and a man came towards the gate with a lantern in his hand. Coming close to the gate, he lifted up the lantern to see who it was that wished to get in, and, the light shining in his face as well as my own, I saw that it was the night watchman. As he opened the gate I said "Good evening, Harry; I am going upstairs." He did not answer at all, but went on ahead of me with his lantern as if to light the way, the main part being in darkness. When we got to the elevator he left me and went back.

Meeting the night foreman, I stopped to talk to him. While we were talking a door from the workroom into the bridge leading to the warehouse opened and one of the men whose usual work was to clean machines came in with a watchman's lantern in his hand. As soon as the foreman saw him he said to me: "O, I forgot to tell you; Harry did not come tonight and I had to put Tom to watching."

"Why," I said, "Harry is here. He lighted me in from the gate to the elevator."

"Is that so?" said the foreman; then calling to Tom, he said: "Tom, Harry is here and you had better go down and find him and then go to your own work."

The man went downstairs, but came back in a few minutes and said that he could not find Harry and that both the night engineer and the night fireman said they had not seen him. I immediately went downstairs and questioned the men as to who it was unlocked the gate, but they both disclaimed all knowledge of the matter and both said that they did not know I was in the factory until Tom had told them so.

The next morning the first news I heard was that the evening before as Harry left his house to go to work his feet slipped on an icy step of the house and he struck his head on a stone curb with sufficient force to fracture the skull and that he died from the effects at about 8:30 that evening. Dead Man's Laugh Heard by Friends.

ABOUT ten years ago I worked under a foreman who was about 60 years old. For his age he was as full of life as anybody, he would enjoy a joke as well as any one, and it was great pleasure to him if he could tell the boys a new one.

At that time I was working nights and our supper hour came about 12:30 a. m. After eating our lunch we would all gather round and listen to what the other fellows had to say. Mr. Jerry C., my foreman, when he heard a real good joke, would stand in the middle of the room and laugh so loud that he could be heard from one end of the room to the other. The boys became so used to it that when they heard him they would say: "Well, Jerry has a new one."

In the early fall of 1899 Mr. C. contracted a cold, which ended in his death. At the office gloom took hold of everybody and the night passed in sadness. On Thursday the body was taken to the vault and the boys all paid their last respects, the family wishing the burial itself to be private.

After Thursday night's work we were all gathered as usual when some one remarked: "How much Jerry's hearty laugh will be missed." We had just finished commenting on the remark and every one was silent, when we were startled to hear Jerry's laugh just as plain as if he were in the room. We stared at one another without a word. The next night we listened more attentively and heard it again. For five nights in succession "Jerry's laugh" was heard by all the boys in the room. C. J. F.

Dream Shows Forgotten Men in New Places.

ABOUT the year 1870 I was employed by the Iron Mountain railroad as night telegraph operator at a town called then Carondelet, Mo., since which time it has been annexed to St. Louis and is now a part of the city. Mr. W. was the day train dispatcher, Mr. S. was the conductor on the passenger train, and Mr. C. was the conductor on the freight train. These gentlemen had passed from my mind and I had no occasion to think of them until after my dream, twenty-three years later.

I dreamed that my wife said to me that she intended to leave me, that she had met a man by the name of Mr. S., who was a railroad official, and that he had offered her a position. I awoke and was so disturbed that I asked her if she was acquainted with a man by the name of Mr. S. She said, "I never heard of him." I looked at the clock and I found it was just 12:15 a. m.

The next morning I read in the papers of a terrible wreck on the C S. railroad. The story continued, "General Manager C., together with Supt. W., has gone to the scene of the wreck. Conductor S. is raving like a madman because his brakeman left the switch open last night at midnight and caused the wreck."

I had not thought of either of these gentlemen in twenty-three years, and I had lost all trace of them. J. F. L.

"Spook" Dog Attacks Horse; Not Hurt by Whip.

MY wife and I were returning from a visit with friends in the country. We were chatting when suddenly my wife exclaimed: "Look there, that dog will scare the horse!"

I could see plainly a large dog making frantic leaps towards the horse's head, evidently trying to seize him by the throat. The dog made no sound, and the horse did not seem to notice him, but I rose to my feet and struck at the dog with the whip. The lash cleft the supposed animal as so much vapor, and clipped the blooms from some dandelions at the roadside.

I at once stopped the horse, and, jerking a revolver from my pocket, leaped to the ground and looked about for the dog. There was no trace of him, not even footprints in the dust. Thus we had an unobstructed view in all directions, and a real animal as large as our "spook" could have been seen plainly at a distance of a hundred yards in the bright moonlight. L. B. M.

Shoots Three Men with Gun Five Miles Away.

SOME years ago I was associated with a mining and ranch company in Arizona, along the Santa Cruz. I was sent to bring a small pack of supplies to another camp eight miles away, and as my gun holster was ripped I decided to leave my gun and placed it on a shelf. I then mounted, and found my gun in the saddle bag. "I have no room for this, Archie; put it in the tent," I said, giving my gun to a man.

I rode a few yards, got off to cinch up my saddle, jumped on again, and there was my gun!

"Katie," I called, "I don't want to be bothered with this thing. I've got too much load and no place for it; put it in the tent," I said, as I rode back and gave her the gun.

About five miles away my pony stopped, placed his ears, looked steadily, and by the movement of his nostrils I saw he located danger. This was on a clear day, before noon. I gave a gentle spur to the horse and a pat on the neck; he walked a couple of rods, then broke into a dead run.

Two shots came—one past my ear and the other cut a chip of rawhide from my saddle horn. Instinctively my hand clutched for my gun and then leveled on three men; in quick succession three reports responded, and the three men fell.

I rode up to them, dismounted, and found two shot through the heart and one through the head. They were three well known desperadoes upon whose heads a good reward had been placed, "dead or alive."

I then returned to my first camp and said: "Katie, where is my gun?" She went into the tent and procured it. "Who has fired these three chambers?" I asked. "Why, I don't know," she said. "It was fully loaded when I placed it on the shelf, for I looked at it, and no one has had it."

This is the first time in years I have told this tale. It seems too absurd for any rational man to either tell or believe. Nevertheless, I took no gun with me, yet, as far as my own evidence is concerned, I shot three men and, two hours later, helped to bury them. And my own gun, five miles away, had been used—by whom and how? J. H. M.

Solves Hard Geometry Problem While Sleeping.

DURING my days of study at Ann Arbor the professor of mathematics gave his class a theorem in geometry, asking the students to work out an original demonstration of their own. "This is a hard one, boys," was his remark, "but do the best you can; it will do your brain good to try hard at it, even if you do not succeed in bringing in a solution."

That evening I worked hard and continuously on the theorem from 7 till 12 o'clock. Then I went to bed, setting the alarm clock at 5 in the morning, when I had determined to go at it again. About 3 in the morning I suddenly awoke with every detail of the demonstration clear as day before my thoughts. Arising from bed I put down on paper the figure, the special construction lines, the full demonstration, with the Q. E. D., went back to rest and slept soundly until 7 a. m.

In class the next day as my demonstration was given by me the professor said: "G—, where did you get that? I think it is the most concise demonstration of that proposition I ever saw. As it is your own work I want to ask if I may have it for the geometry which some day I expect to publish under my own name."

Of course the source of the demonstration was frankly explained to the class, and excited much comment. Whether this be a psychic power which I have to a peculiar degree I do not know. But many times since then I have retired at night with some sermon in my mind which I proposed to prepare for the next Sunday, and in the early morning I have awakened with argument and illustration and scriptural texts all arranged in my thoughts. Picture of Soldier, Far Away, Appears to Her.

AT one time I was in correspondence with an army officer, a cavalryman, stationed in New Mexico, and although he scoffed at occult mysteries we were in sympathy, so sometimes at night I attempted to reach him by mental telepathy. In this I failed, but I did succeed in producing a phase of the occult unknown to me. I remember that there were two windows in my room, and one night the linen shade at one of them began rustling mysteriously, becoming so pronounced the sound penetrated to other rooms. The shade was still rustling to and fro, swinging against the window, when suddenly, with a curious sliding motion, a picture plain and strange was flashed upon the curtain, self-lighted apparently, and perfectly circular in form, and it showed me the soldier I knew.

He was sitting on his horse on slightly raised ground in a landscape unfamiliar to me. It seemed an oddly living picture. In the full moment it was there I saw the waving of the horse's mane and the rider turning in his seat. Then it was gone, sliding downward out of sight. It was a distinct picture, the likeness was perfect, and I was thoroughly awake.

My military man, however, chose to scoff when I told him, but admitted that he often road alone, that my description of the barren slope and peculiar knotted clumps of grass I noted was exact, and that the color of his horse was as I had seen. Well, I know I saw the picture, but never since have I been able to capture the elusive force producing it. E. P. C.

Remakes Garment While Sound Asleep.

WHEN I was first married I had an ambition to have as far as possible all things "home made." In pursuance of this idea I cut and made a garment for my husband which, when tried on, proved to be too large in every respect. Worried over my failure, I threw the garment on my work table and went to bed, out of sorts with everything and everybody, myself included.

In the morning when I stepped out of my bedroom the rejected garment lay on the floor of the sitting room, but it had been cut as it lay and the fragments thrown to one side. I picked it up and out of curiosity basted the newly cut pieces together and tried it on, to find a perfect fit. What could have made me do in my sleep what I failed to do by trying my best wide awake? I have never found an explanation. A. J. W.

Elevator Ignorance.

The proportioning of elevators, as to number, speed, and size of cars, is a matter involving considerable technical knowledge. The study, however, is usually omitted by the architects of new buildings in favor of the adoption of the practice of some other buildings, often quite faulty in this respect, or in favor of the opinions and recommendations of manufacturers or contractors. More often still, the main feature is decided by subservience to some architectural detail, or a desired arrangement of the interior or of the steel framing, whereby the most extraordinary arrangements as to numbers, location, and shape of cars result.—Engineering Magazine.

Picture of Soldier, Far Away, Appears to Her.

mber that there were two windows in my m, and one night the linen shade at one of r began rustling mysteriously, becoming pronounced the sound penetrated to other oms. The shade was still rustling to and , swinging against the window, when sud- ly, with a curious sliding motion, a pic- e plain and strange was flashed upon the rtain, self-lighted apparently, and per- tly circular in form, and it showed me soldier I knew.

e was sitting on his horse on slightly sed ground in a landscape unfamiliar to . It seemed an oddly living picture. In full moment it was there I saw the wav- of the horse's mane and the rider turn- in his seat. Then it was gone, sliding nward out of sight. It was a distinct ture, the likeness was perfect, and I was roughly awake.

y military man, however, chose to scoff en I told him, but admitted that he often d alone, that my description of the barren pe and peculiar knotted clumps of grass I ed was exact, and that the color of his se was as I had seen. Well, I know I saw picture, but never since have I been able capture the elusive force producing it.

WHEN I was first married I had an am- bition to have as far as possible all things "home made." In pursuance this idea I cut and made a garment for husband which, when tried on, proved to too large in every spect. Worried over failure, I threw garment on my rk table and went bed, out of sorts th everything and everybody, myself in- uded.

Remakes Garment While Sound Asleep.

In the morning when I stepped out of my droom the rejected garment lay on the or of the sitting room, but it had been cut it lay and the fragments thrown to one de. I picked it up and out of curiosity sted the newly cut pieces together and tried on, to find a perfect fit. What could have ade me do in my sleep what I failed to do by ying my best wide awake? I have never und an explanation. A. J. W.

Elevator Ignorance.

The proportioning of elevators, as to num- r, speed, and size of cars, is a matter in- lving considerable technical knowledge. he study, however, is usually omitted by the chitects of new buildings in favor of the loption of the practice of some other builde- s, often quite faulty in this respect, or in vor of the opinions and recommendation of anufacturers or contractors.

More often still, the main feature is decided subservience to some architectural detail, a desired arrangement of the interior or the steel framing, whereby the most ar- dinary arrangements as to numbers, lo- tion, and shape of cars result.—Engineer- g Magazine.

MEN PLEAD FOR SUFFRAGE

DR. HIRSCH AND DR. BIGELOW GIVE JOY TO WOMEN.

Former Carries Off Palm in Arraignment of His Sex for Keeping Ballot from Fair Ones — Says Militarism Has Caused Male Population to Depreciate Femininity — Dr. Bigelow Epigrammatic—Anna Howard Shaw Slated to Head Association.

Mere man had his day yesterday in the national woman suffrage convention. And with a courtliness worthy of the days when ladies fair sat on cushions and consumed strawberries and took no thought for the political morrow, mere man took advantage of his opportunity by saying nice things.

The honors were carried off by Dr. Emil G. Hirsch, who concluded the session held in the afternoon at the Studebaker theater with an address which appeared on the program as "Why Not? A Study in Prejudice and Superstition."

Has Defense for Men.

"I propose to defend my sex," began the speaker. "Why have we been so slow to grant to women the rights which we have ourselves? There are a good many reasons. In the first place, our institutions, many of them, are founded on the theologies and superstitions of a remote day. We say that out of the east comes light—'ex oriente lux.' Well, certain notions came out of the east, and one of these was that the world was pretty perfect until, in a rash moment, man felt lonely and woman, with her bewitching whisper, came to him, bringing all the darkness and woe that have since been his lot. Woman was considered in those days only a side issue."

"Militarism," Dr. Hirsch went on, "has fostered this attitude. Militarism has long been the basis of the state. And because woman has not been occupied as much as man in fighting, we are told that woman should not have a part in the government.

"What we need is a thorough system of housekeeping in our large cities, and it's the women that must give it to us. It is merely ignorance and superstition, indolence and inertia, that are in the way of your movement."

CLUB FOR COLLEGE WOMEN

ALUMNÆ DELEGATES SAY 'HOME' IN LOOP IS ASSURED.

Will Be to Femininity What University Organization Is to Men—No Cards or Billiards to Be Permitted —Mrs. Thomas Balmer in Charge of Preliminary Work—Downtown Building in Prospect for First Quarters for Present.

A downtown club for "college women," where the scholastic atmosphere will not be perturbed by the presence of mere man—brothers and husbands of members excepted—is a vision of several Chicago "college women," which, they say, is about to be realized.

Following the meeting in Handel hall on Saturday of delegates from the various women's college alumnæ associations, the promoters of the scheme yesterday announced that the success of the undertaking is practically assured.

The club will be to women what the University club, 116 Dearborn street, is to men, with exceptions that will identify it with college women's tastes.

Vassar Woman at Head.

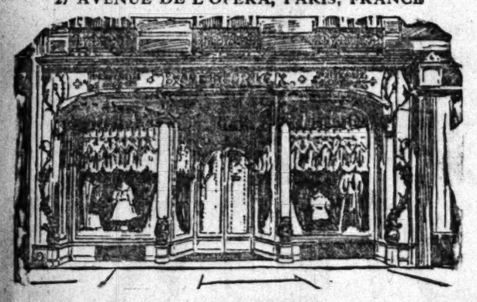

At the Saturday meeting Mrs. Thomas Balmer, 1827 Hollywood avenue, a Vassar alumna, was made chairman of the executive committee to succeed Miss Elizabeth Telling, 840 North Park avenue, who had headed the movement since its inception here two weeks ago. The other members of the committee are: Miss Grace Jackson, Wellesley; Mrs. Barrett Poucher, Rockford; Miss Isabelle Lynde, Bryn Mawr; Miss Gertrude Gane, Smith; Miss Ester Witkowski, Vassar; and Mrs. P. S. Peterson.

"We have ascertained that there are 2,000 women in Chicago eligible to membership," said Miss Witkowski. "Almost all the women's colleges have local alumnæ associations in various states of existence, but none of them have clubhouses. It will be impossible for us, for many years at least, to have a clubhouse. We intend to rent a suite of rooms in the loop district."

Eligible Colleges Specified.

The regulations of the club specify that to become a member one must have attended some college of either the women's or "coed" type mentioned on the list made up by the National Association of College Alumnæ. The running expenses at the start will be $3,000 a year. The committee intends to get either 600 pledges for $5 a year or 300 pledges for $10 annually. Three possible locations for the club, which wants about 1,600 or 2,000 square feet of floor space—the Mentor building, Monroe and State streets; Willoughby building, Michigan avenue and Madison street, and the Powers building, 156 Wabash avenue—are under consideration.

No. 3—Selecting a Piano Under the Best Conditions.

You can shop among many stores and see many pianos.

But you cannot form an accurate judgment of their respective merits because you try them under varying conditions.

You may play a good piano under circumstances where its tone may not please you as well as that of an instrument of less merit tried under favorable conditions.

Then, also, when going from one place to another, you cannot retain a clear recollection of the individual tone qualities of the pianos you have seen. You lose the subtle points that make the vital difference between one piano and another. You form confused impressions and you cannot choose with absolute clearness of judgment.

The best method of selecting a piano is to try all under the same conditions. Then, each stands on its own merits and you can decide without difficulty just which you like best —and this without the fatigue of a "shopping" tour.

One of the advantages our store offers to piano buyers is found in the great variety of instruments we carry. All reliable grades and many styles of each grade are displayed where you can try them side by side.

You can begin at the low-priced piano and go through the entire range of medium grade, high grade, and artistic instruments. You can try them all and compare them, one kind with another, and form an accurate judgment of their respective qualities.

You can select here from all the different styles in Mason & Hamlin, Conover, Cable, Kingsbury and Wellington Pianos. If you are interested in player pianos you can try the Inner-Player, a high-grade piano containing a player device inside of its case.

ILLINOIS TOURNEY BEGINS APRIL 13.

Bowlers Plan for the Event and Re-elect Frank Pasdeloup President.

RACES IN CITY LEAGUES.

Numerous Ties One of the Chief Features of the Sport Last Week.

Delegates to the annual meeting of the Illinois Bowling association at Mussey's yesterday afternoon found the legislative runways smooth and all business was transacted on schedule time.

It was decided to set the date for the opening of the state tournament for April 13, the entry list closing on April 4. No location was settled upon, although it was ordered that all bids should be made on eight alleys.

All of the old officials, with one exception, were reëlected and in addition a new office of auditor was created, with Charles G. Wilson as the pin on this particular spot. Several changes in the constitution were made, none being of particular importance. Two members were added to the executive committee, giving room for three from outside points.

Frank Pasdeloup was chosen for the fifth time to lead the organization, the officials being as follows: President, Frank Pasdeloup, Chicago; first vice president, Oscar W. Schmidt; second vice president, M. Binzen, Joliet; secretary, G. B. Howard; auditor, C. G. Wilson; treasurer, G. A. Popplebaum; directors, C. W. Swanson, Rockford; G. H. Randall, Aurora; E. Hall, Peoria; J. W. McCoy, J. C. Mueller, and J. Gruver, Chicago.

Dr. G. A. Thomas, who has been treasurer since the inception of the organization, was renominated against Mr. Popplebaum, but stated he would not have time to fulfill the duties of the position.

Task for New Auditor.

Auditor Wilson will have charge of the statistics of the annual tournament and will publish the results in book form.

At a meeting of the executive committee the date for starting the annual tournament was fixed for April 13, entries closing April 4. The location will be decided later, but it was made conditional there must be eight alleys abreast.

Secretary Howard submitted a plan for a four sheet paper to be known as the Illinois Bowling Association News. This was adopted and 3,000 copies will be distributed to the bowlers of the state. The back sheet of the publication will contain the combination entry blank.

Ties in Bowling Races.

Ties occurred in many of the local league championship races last week, the Monroe having three teams on even terms in the Eclipse, Blue Islands, and Lipmans, while in the Tournament league the tie occurs in the individual contest, where Johnny Rosendal and Dave Woodbury rolled into a tie at 195 flat for forty-eight and fifty-four games, respectively. The latter occurrence is an unusual one among local players and shows the hard fought race at Schindler's.

Mattie Luecker heads the individual race in the Monroe, although he took a slight drop during the week and is now only a trifle ahead, Jimmy Blouin jumping up during the week. Gunthers still lead the Chicago league, with the Nationals only one game behind, with a good prospect of catching them in the next two weeks. Al Toemmel tops Bob Alfeld by over three points in the singles.

Other ties around the city are the Rovers and Winneconnes in the Sheridan league, Toemmel being on top in the individuals, and the Garlands and Southwests in the Southwest league. Hank Ruther picked up a lot of pins on Scully, who is still leading by a margin of some two points. Jens Johnson's phenomenal work in both the Coöperative and Columbian Knights leagues was another feature of the week, the veteran setting a new series mark for the secret society men with 235⅔ Friday night. Fred Esau in the Belmont and Lake View leagues also rolled some good series and climbed well up the lists.

GROUP THE STAKE RACES.

NEW ORLEANS FEATURES NOT STRUNG OUT THIS SEASON.

City Park Jockey Club Gives Two Cup Events, Both Trophies Being Won for Corrigan by Alma Dufour and Goldie—Fair Grounds to Cut Down Badge List for Session Which Begins Today—Davis After Reinstatement.

New Orleans, La., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—In the winter racing here it has been the custom to string out the list of important stakes to cover all the season. This year the two racing associations have so bunched their stake offerings that the most important features are being grouped, and those decided in the last two weeks at City park will be followed by renewals of several of the old time fixtures in the fortnight session beginning at the Fair grounds tomorrow.

Two cup races were given during the meeting at the new track, and another of equal interest will be run at the Fair grounds next Saturday. At City park Corrigan won both cups. The first, that won by Alma Dufour, was his solely because his mare outclassed her company, but in winning his second one with Goldie on Saturday Mr. Corrigan was treated to an exhibition of merit in his colt that even he hardly expected, although he is reported to have profited considerably in the betting ring.

Next Saturday will bring the annual running of the Bush cup, offered by C. S. Bush, the president of the Crescent City Jockey club. Because of the distance, two and one-quarter miles, it does not bring out horses of class, but still it carries with it enough sentiment to make it one of the important numbers of the season.

With a continuation of the present fair weather the coming meeting at the Fair grounds doubtless will be the banner one at that track to date. Some part of the eastern Mardi Gras visitors will be missing, but there are a number of out of town people in town and the tracks draw them almost as regularly as they do the crowds that come here solely for the racing.

As the season goes on there is more and more of a disposition on the part of the associations to draw still tighter the strings on badge privileges. At the Fair Grounds meeting tomorrow the list of free badges will have been considerably curtailed. In this scheme of economy the club has seen fit to withdraw the badges to the minor officials of the other track, which of course will result in a retaliatory measure when the new track again takes up the running. When this fact became known there was a disposition in some quarters to take it as another outburst of ill feeling between the two managements, but there is little or no foundation for such a belief.

James Davis, who for several years has been denied the privileges of the tracks, with the exception of those racing under the jurisdiction of the American Turf association, will leave within a few days for California in an effort to have his case reopened by the Pacific Coast Jockey club. Davis was ruled Pacific Coast Jockey club. He wound up the meeting just closed at City park a good winner.

GOOD TRIAL BY CONVILLE.

Cella's Derby Candidate Is Given Six Furlong "Prep" at Montgomery in About :50.

Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Another weekly prep was asked today of L. A. Cella's Conville, in training for the Crescent City Derby, by Trainer Henry McDaniels, who left the Hot Springs division of the stable to direct the work. Breaking at the three-eighths pole at Montgomery park, Conville stepped six furlongs in handy fashion, covering the first half in about :50, regarded by local railbirds as good.

Marathon was the running mate, but horsemen who imagined this Derby possibility had a chance expressed a different opinion after today's trial. Many horses were on the Montgomery park course, and trainers are evidently preparing to start the season here in the absence of any official announcement by the jockey club officials of an abandonment of the announced dates. The passage of the antipool selling law, it is said, may not interfere with the plans of the Memphis club, which is expected shortly to announce a meeting "without betting being sanctioned" by the club.

The good handicap horses, Lubin, Don Hamilton, and Stand Pat, property of W. W. Elliott, reached the track from California, signalizing the first shipments here from the coast. Clemencia, a member of the stable, was attacked with a car fit in Texas en route and was left at San Antonio.

SUIT AGAINST HOLTMAN FAILS.

Louise Bullock, Who Sued Race Starter for Alimony, Claiming He Married Her, Comes to Grief.

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Louise Bullock, or, as she calls herself, Louise Holtman, has come to grief in her suit for alimony against Jake Holtman, the race starter. She instituted suit in the Kenton county, Kentucky, court last fall against the race track man, claiming to have married him in Los Angeles on Jan. 23, 1906, and that he deserted her.

According to letters filed in court received from Earl Rogers of Los Angeles, who she declared was her lawyer, it is proved by Rogers' depositions that the woman wrote to Rogers to send her a fake marriage license so she could win her suit against Holtman. The woman's letters to the lawyer were filed with the depositions, and in them she requested the lawyer "For God's sake to come to her assistance," saying that she would win her suit by his aid against Holtman.

The California lawyer denies he ever had any dealings with the woman.

ED HELM IS NOT AN AMATEUR.

Cleveland Player Declares Mistake Must Have Been Made in Entering Him in Billiard Games.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Although the name of Ed Helm of Cleveland was included in the list of entrants of the national amateur billiard tournament to be held at Liederkrantz hall, New York, on March 4, a mistake must have been made, as Mr. Helm is not an amateur and does not claim to be such. In fact, he has been the owner of a large billiard and pool parlor in Cleveland for a number of years.

"I cannot understand," said Helm tonight, "how the managers of the tourney ever happened to send it out. They have been after Martin Mullin and Frank Dreher for the last two weeks. Mullin of course has not the time to spare and I did not know that Dreher had entered until I read it this morning.

"They certainly will have to count me out, as men who make their living by billiards and pool are professionals, and that is my case."

Billiard Notes.

It is not thought Dreher, one of the Cleveland entries to the national tournament, will be dangerous to the other competitors, but Rolls of Philadelphia, is regarded as a big factor.

Bensinger's balk line tournament has been postponed for one week and in its place this week George Wheeler and Fred Conklin will play an 1,800 point match in blocks of 300 points, Wheeler playing 18 inch to Conklin's 14 inch balk line.

Local billiardists are not surprised at the report that Ed Helm of the Cleveland entries to the national tournament, has been declared "ineligible." It was supposed the Helm referred to was the well known room keeper, formerly of this city and now of the Forest City. His capacity as room keeper would make him ineligible.

Hoffman Wins Endurance Event.

Fred Hoffman won the ten hour endurance bowling contest at Hackett's alleys, West Madison street and Homan avenue, yesterday, rolling a total of 3,918 pins. In winning, Hoffman repeated his performance of a month ago, when on the same alleys he won a similar event. Twelve bowlers competed in the event, which was not won until the last game had been rolled. Hoffman also won the prize for high game, his best count being 289. The scores were as follows:

Fred Hoffman	3,918	L. Jones	3,659
Ray Ringwald	3,878	C. Scheffner	3,650
Ray Bliss	3,851	W. Rusch	3,579
Otto Scergel	3,771	George Ditt	3,559
A. Johnson	3,675	Andy Hall	3,549
A. W. Hostler	3,650	W. Martinson	3,534

THINK NEW YORK RACING IS SAFE.

Eastern Turfmen Believe Effort to Pass Hostile Bill Will Fail.

BAD CONDITION IN WEST.

Returning Turfmen from South Says New Orleans Public Is Robbed.

New York, Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Turfmen who have looked over the ground say there is practically no chance for an anti-race track bill to find favor at Albany. They declare there is no popular demand for the suppression of the sport in the state of New York, and the Jockey club has won the support of so many different powerful influences that at present there appears to be no cause for alarm.

The composition of the Jockey club, by the way, has caused many influential breeders and owners who will be seriously affected by the closing of western tracks controlled by the gambling element, to declare openly that if the sport is to be allowed ever to run again in the west the government of it must be turned over entirely to men who enjoy the respect and confidence of not only the law makers, but also the public at large.

Within the last few days several well known soldiers of fortune have returned here from the tracks at New Orleans and Hot Springs.

"If they do not kill the game in both places in the course of time," said one of these persons today, "I shall be surprised. It is the closest corporation down there you ever saw. The books have to give up big money each day to the racing associations, and naturally they expect something. As a result the public and form players haven't got a chance on earth to win. Now and then some jockey who is not in good standing with the combine gets into trouble and is punished, but that is only done to throw dust into the eyes of the public. Some of the rawest deals ever attempted have been put through successfully on these winter tracks, and there hasn't been so much as a peep from the officials who are supposed to check such things. But that is because the fellows who have pulled off the tricks were in right. It is a case of the gambling syndicate getting hold of everything, with the public naturally the chief sufferer.

"In many years of winter campaigning I never saw so many men broke as there are at these winter tracks at present. The gambling syndicate is getting all the money, no matter by what means so long as the coin can be gathered in. It is a tough proposition to beat, and the time is not far distant when the law will be invoked in Louisiana as it has been in Arkansas and Tennessee."

ILLINOIS-Y. M. C. A. MEET OFF.

Director Huff of State University Drops Event with Central Athletes Because of Michigan Contest.

The dual indoor meet between Central Y. M. C. A. and the University of Illinois scheduled for Champaign on Saturday has been called off. Coach Gill of the university said that, having closed with Michigan for a meet at Ann Arbor, his men will have their hands full preparing for the three college meets on the Illinois card.

There has been some indefiniteness in the prospect of the college-Y. M. C. A. indoor meet, because it was understood when the date was fixed that, should Illinois sign with Michigan, the Central meet would be dropped. It was thought until last night that the Y. M. C. A. men surely would make the trip, but Director Huff writes he wishes to postpone the date until the outdoor season opens.

In his letter to the local club the Illinois coach suggests May for the meeting, but Coach Wilson of the association says it will be impossible to get his men in shape for outdoor work so early in the season. Wilson believes in giving his men a rest between the end of the gymnasium schedule and the beginning of the field work. The A. A. U. club's athletes suffer more from the length of the season than do the college men, because they work later into the summer than do the college men.

The Y. M. C. A. will be represented by a full team in the First regiment handicap on Thursday as a result of the Illinois meeting being called off.

Harry Beuchler, the star Y. M. C. A. half mile runner, is sick and will not be able to compete in the First regiment handicap meet which is carded for Thursday night. Beuchler is among the fastest distance runners in the west, holder of the A. A. U. Central half mile and mile records and champion at these distances. The Central man, although heavily handicapped, was expected to prove one of the strongest contenders in the big chasing program.

MACKAY RETAINS HIS TITLE.

Defeats Brooke for Amateur Racquet Championship of Eastern States in Straight Sets.

Tuxedo Park, N. Y., Feb. 17.—Clarence H. Mackay of the New York Tennis and Racquet club, by defeating George H. Brooke, ex-amateur champion of the Philadelphia Racquet club, today in three straight sets on the courts of the Tuxedo Tennis and Racquet club, retains his title as amateur champion of the eastern states for the gold racquet. Mackay today won the third leg on the gold racquet, which now becomes his property. The scores were 15—8, 15—8, and 15—12 for Mackay.

Favor the "Loaded" Ball.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—After a heated meeting of the Cleveland Bowling association today the local bowlers decided in favor of the loaded or "phony" ball.

KLING IS AFTER A RAISE.

RETURNS UNSIGNED CONTRACT TO PRESIDENT MURPHY.

Chicago National's Star Catcher Declares There Is More Money in Billiard Business at Kansas City than Offered Him by Local Club, and That if His Salary Is Not Boosted He'll Stay There—Magnate Declines to Discuss Matter.

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Johnny Kling, who sometimes catches for the National league champions, and at other times plays pool, received the first harbinger of the coming season yesterday in the nature of a pretty, fancy lettered, spic and span 1907 contract.

"Aha! Aha! Methinks I have a document of some importance here," quoth Kling, as he ran a penknife down the spinal column of the bulky envelope.

"Humph," he muttered as he scanned the contract. "Not for John; there's more money in the cue parlor. It's a heave in the salary line for this one, or a permanent summer berth in Kansas City."

Kling evidently wasn't highly elated with the terms of the contract, for he bundled it up and sent it back to Magnate Murphy without comment.

"I'll write him next week and tell him he'll have to come across with an additional pad of the wage roll if John goes on the spring training trip," Kling said.

[President Murphy declined to talk of Kling's reported demand for more money last night. He declared he had not heard from the catcher and would have nothing to say until he did.]

Reds Will Not Secure Hitt.

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Roy Hitt of San Bernardino, Cal., who was drafted by the Reds last fall, has announced he will not join the team. Hitt wrote to a man in this city stating he would not be a member of the team. He does not give any reason, and President Hermann is at a loss to understand his action.

Yale to Play Princeton at New York.

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Yale and Princeton today settled a three months' dispute over the date for the final baseball game of the annual series, the Tigers agreeing to Yale's proposition to play it on Tuesday, June 18, at New York City.

Win at Indoor Baseball.

The Central Turners' indoor baseball team easily defeated the Norris Athletic club at the former's gymnasium at Wicker Park hall by a score of 11 to 4 last evening. Pitcher Burdt of the winning team struck out eighteen men. Wallace, the opposing pitcher, fanned five men. This is the seventh game played this season by the Turners, who have lost but one contest. Score:

Central Turners	2	1	0	0	1	5	2	0—11
Norris Athletic	2	1	1	0	0	0	0	0—4

Batteries—Burdt and Schmidt; Wallace and Enders.

SEVENTH GAME IS A DRAW.

Champion Lasker and Marshall Consent to Even Break—Contest Took Up Six Hours.

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 17.—The seventh chess game of the championship chess match between Dr. Emanuel Lasker and Frank Marshall, which was adjourned Saturday night on the forty-ninth move after six hours of play, ended in a draw when the game was resumed at 2 o'clock today at the rooms of the Franklin Chess club. Marshall's last play on Saturday, 49 K-B 2, had been sealed that Lasker might not have the advantage of time in which to study his next move. When Marshal's move was unsealed Lasker immediately asked for a draw and Marshall assented. The opening was a queen's gambit declined. The men will play again Tuesday. Lasker will take the white pieces, which means he will make the opening move.

HYDE PARK C. AND A. OFFICERS.

H. Lounsbery Is Elected President by Cricket and Athletic Club—Ready for Soccer.

At the annual meeting of the Hyde Park Cricket and Athletic club officers for the year were elected as follows: President, H. Lounsbery; vice president, Sam Darwent; second vice president, Walter Sheppard; secretary, Jack Evans; treasurer, George Heath; directors, H. Churchill, J. Morrow, W. Parker, G. Cameron, and F. Tuck.

Reports of officials show the club to be in a flourishing condition financially, while it is expected to display its usual strength in the spring championship series of the Association Football League of Chicago.

Should the weather continue mild it is expected a number of the local soccer teams will resume practice on Sunday, as play in both leagues will start in the middle of March.

DAGGETT FIRST AT NASSAU.

New York Boat Wins the Motor Race from Miami to Bahama Island Port.

NASSAU, Bahama Islands, Feb. 17.—The second, or official, division of the contestants in the "flag to flag" motor boat race from Miami, Fla., to Nassau has finished here. The racers got away Thursday morning, and made a splendid run to this port, arriving as follows: Daggett, entered by John Haggerty, New York, at 3 o'clock p. m. Saturday; Whiz, entered by Thomas E. Norton of New Haven, at 3:30 p. m.; and Klondike, entered by Charles Ball of Miami, which was leading, but ran into a fog, at 6 p. m. Lee S., entered by A. P. Gerlach of New York, has not yet been heard from.

The United States gunboat, Scorpion, which accompanied the racers, allowed the little boats to take care of themselves. The British cruiser, Indefatigable, was here on Friday to greet the racers, but, believing the race had been abandoned, left.

Muriel, belonging to the New York Motor club, which arrived here Friday at noon, having got away from Miami last Tuesday, owing to a misunderstanding, claims first prize.

La Salle Monarchs Win Two Games.

The La Salle Monarchs won two basketball games yesterday, defeating the Alien A. C. five in the first game, 43 to 24, and the Northwest Settlement team in the second, 29 to 26.

A. A. U. TO FIGHT LOCAL SKATERS.

Anderson Barred and Men Who Raced with Him May Be Blacklisted.

STATE MEET THE CAUSE.

Union Will Attempt to Bring Ice Sport Under Its Absolute Control.

The Amateur Athletic union has decided to push to a finish its fight against the members of the Western Skating association who disregarded its disapproval of the outlaw skating meet held at Montreal on Feb. 2. Not only is Adolph Anderson, the star westerner, who recently has been such a brilliant performer, to be barred by the Athletic union, but twelve skaters who competed against the western champion in the Illinois state preliminaries last Thursday night also are to be blacklisted unless they immediately join the A. A. U.

Skating races are to be held shortly by the Central association of the A. A. U., and all over the country there will be made a concerted attempt to bring skating under absolute A. A. U. jurisdiction and to secure the firm control maintained over other branches of sport. The erring athletes will be barred from competition in these races and all other branches of A. A. U. sport, and men who compete against them will be inflicted with the same penalty.

The following men, among whom are found basketball and baseball players, track athletes, and football workers active in local Y. M. C. A. and school circles, were in Anderson's heats on Thursday: Axel Foss, New Viking A. C.; C. A. Stensrud, Sleipner A. C.; Arick Bowles, Northwest Skating club; Al Weidmayer, Ideal A. C.; William G. Herzog, Maroon A. C.; W. H. Jacobus, Western Skating association; Charles N. Jacobson, unattached; Christ Olsen, unattached; Merrill N. Bernbrock, unattached; Burt J. Johnson, Western Skating association; Alfred Neilson, Northwest Skating association; William D. Foy, Northwest Skating association.

SKI PRIZE WON BY FEIRING.

Duluth Expert Winner in Tournament at Eau Claire—Evanson Is Best in Long Jump.

Eau Claire, Wis., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—More than 6,000 persons attended the ski tournament here this afternoon, held under the auspices of the Eau Claire Dovre Ski club. First prize was won by Ole Feiring of Duluth. John Mangeth of Duluth was second; Ole Westgaard, Ishpeming, third; T. Hemmestwedt, Ashland, fourth; Ole Jonnum, Colean, Minn., fifth; John Evanson, Duluth, sixth; Aasmund Melgaard, Hibbing, Minn., seventh; Peter Lund, Eau Claire, eighth.

Feiring won on points because of his graceful performing. In the contest for the longest standing jump John Evanson was the winner. He tied with Mangeth at 95 feet, but in jumping off he won, with the longest jump made at any tournament this winter, the distance being 98 feet.

In the contest for special prizes Lund was first, Chris Anderson second, Thomas Running third, and Ed Peterson fourth. In the boys' event Ingold Hendrickson won, with Ralph Volkman second, Jolly Erickson third, and Carl Hotvedt fourth. The best jump was 74 feet. The prize for the twin jump went to the Mangeth brothers.

Ring and Wrestling Notes.

Jack Curley has several offers of matches for Benny Yanger. Matchmaker J. B. McKee of the Hot Springs club wants Yanger to fight twenty rounds with Andy Bezenah. Curley last night wired to McKee, and if the terms and 130 pounds at the ringside and accepted by Bezenah the match is as good as made. A Milwaukee club wants Yanger to give Charles Neary a return date. Curley also expects to hear today from Kohl and Johnson, the Reno (Nev.) promoters. If they are unwilling to allow Kid Herman a later date to fight Young Corbett Yanger may be given the chance to fight the Denverite.

When "Packie" McFarland and Steve Kinney hook up for fifteen rounds before the Tricity Athletic club at Davenport on Wednesday, a contest which will practically decide the lightweight championship of the middle west will be staged. A strong objection to this claim will be made by "Kid" Herman no doubt, and a meeting between the "Kid" and the winner may result.

The draw wrestling bout with Carl Pons at the C. A. A. Saturday night convinced John Rooney that if he defeats Charles Hackenschmidt at Brooke's Casino next Friday night he must train hard for the battle. Rooney returned from a trip through the southern states last Friday, and the absence from training quarters did him no good.

Tommy Mowatt and Young Kid Farmer hook up tonight at Peoria for a ten round tilt. Tom has had a lot of trouble getting to the weight—133 pounds—and seems to have grown considerably during his layoff. Farmer weighs 127 pounds, is quick and agile, and doubtless will try long range sparring.

Tommy Burns, the heavyweight champion, will do his best to deliver a speech at the exhibitions of the O'Brien-Burns fight films at the Casino, beginning next Sunday. He will also spar with George Memsic.

"Reggy" Barrett seeks a return match at Peoria with "Kid" Sheridan, who is under the management of John Rowe. Barrett will fight at 105 pounds before the Peoria Athletic club.

Dave Barry will leave today for Benton Harbor to act as one of Tommy Ryan's boxing partners to train the latter for his coming fight with Hugo Kelly.

Manufacturing Property.

TO RENT—MANUFACTURING SPACE—2,500 to 25,000 sq. ft., with power, heat, elevator service, and watchman. Unobstructed light on all sides.

You can save half your rent.
You can save half your power cost.
You can save 90% of your cartage expense.
You can save 20% of your labor expense.

We have 25,000 sq. ft. excess space in our plant at Elkhart, Ind., which we will sublet to small manufacturers at one-half Chicago rent. We have our own siding in the building, connecting with the Lake Shore and Big Four roads. We get low rates and twelve hour service to Chicago.

The class of labor is excellent and averages 20% less in cost than Chicago, owing to the lower cost of living.

Elkhart is a healthful, hustling manufacturing city of about 25,000 people, with 50 small factories and no one large factory dominating the labor supply.

It is the terminal of four different divisions of the Lake Shore Ry. The shipping facilities are unequalled by any city within 200 miles of Chicago.

ROAR OF BULL SUBSIDES.

WHEAT VALUES DECLINE SHARPLY ON BEARISH AGGRESSIVENESS.

Russian Situation Loses Much of Its Stimulating Effect—Increased Domestic Movement Rejuvenates Bearish Endeavor—Cash Demand Less Urgent, with Premiums Narrowing—Sound Tone to Corn—Oats Easier—Provisions Work Lower.

Much of the bull roaring in the wheat market subsided to a mere whimper last week. At the close of the period scarcely any trace of its previous gusto could be distinguished in the noise made by the bears. The believers in higher prices, confident of their position in the previous week of good results, were compelled to watch the pessimists forge ahead at marked strides, tearing down what they had built, and apparently becoming more and more enthusiastic in their work as the sessions slipped by. The week end quotations witnessed declines of 2¾@2¾c for May, 2c for July, and 1¾@2c for September, as compared to those of the week before.

The loud cry of Russia furnishing strong tonic to the American situation lost much of its ring. The exports from the czar's realm were large enough to dispel immediate fear of that country's removing itself from the shipping nations, but developments in continental European markets lent considerable color to the talk of Russia's pronounced needs. Professional prognosticators have figured it out that Russia will continue to export wheat for some time to come, notwithstanding the dire straits of its famine districts. Broomhall on Saturday estimated that the world's exports for the week would aggregate 11,200,000 bu, with a big increase in the supplies on ocean passage. One of the hardest blows to bullish confidence was the enormous shipments from Argentina—within 160,000 bu of that country's largest exports.

Domestic Movement Increases.

The domestic situation was more generous in its consideration of the bears. Weather conditions in all directions were more favorable and the general movement to market gave signs of good increases. The receipts of wheat at leading northwestern markets on two or three days showed in excess of those of the corresponding days last year and men close to the surface declared that North Dakota, now getting out of the cruel grasp of winter, had not begun to ship. "When that state gets busy, and it will soon get busy, the northwestern markets will be flooded with wheat." Kansas City and St. Louis have been receiving much more grain than they received last year at this time and indications are that the movement will continue to increase. The generally larger movement, combined with the weight of the big local stocks, has shifted many a mild bull to the bear side of the market, and has taken much starch out of the confidence of the more radical believers in higher prices.

Crop Damage Complaints Arrive.

There were at times damage reports from Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, and Kansas, but the trade in general did not pay much attention to them, holding that it is too early for anything definite concerning the progress of the winter plant. According to many correspondents, the growing wheat has sustained injury in Michigan, setbacks in some sections being quite pronounced. The more important sections of the winter regions, however, continued to report the situation as favorable and promising.

Much of the export business done in the course of the week was in durum and Manitobas, although there were workings of hard winter by the southwest via the gulf. The real extent of business done with Europe is being variously guessed at. Some exporters declared that it has been grossly exaggerated, others that it has assumed moderate proportions, and others that it had been considerably more pretentious than the general trade has been led to believe. The cash situation in the northwest tamed down considerably last week, millers, apparently, expecting a larger movement to market, being less urgent in their demand and premiums narrowing. The inquiry in the southwest also was said to have lost much of its snap, and locally there was not much done to bolster the hopes of the bulls.

Corn Displays Sound Undertone.

Notwithstanding the weakening tendency in wheat and the more favorable weather for moving the corn market throughout the greater part of the week displayed a sound undertone. Receipts were not up to expectations, but the bears insisted that only a lack of cars stood in the way of a deluge of grain from the west. The car situation was quite as unfavorable as heretofore, although the roads were said to be trying their best to improve matters. Some of the shippers declare that the eastern demand will take care of much of the increased offerings from the west as soon as the cars become more available. The car situation east was said to be more serious than at any time in the past, and the board of trade started vigorous efforts to get relief.

Most of the advices from Argentina indicated that the long drought had wrought irreparable damage to the corn, and that that country would not cut much of a figure in exporting operations later on. One cable estimated that the crop had suffered more than 50 per cent in damage. There are many bulls in corn, not of the flighty, demonstrative sort, who believe that despite the admittedly large holdings in the country conditions favor a higher level. Some of the best interests in the trade have been adding to their lines on all suggestions of easiness and at no time recently has the pressure on the market been marked. The week end quotations showed declines of 1-16@⅛c, as compared to the final prices of the previous week.

Oats Quiet and Easier.

There was not much out of the ordinary in the week's oats market, trade being more limited and fluctuations ranging within narrower bounds. At times there were suggestions of easiness, due not so much to any direct pressure as to the sympathetic influence of wheat weakness. Receipts of the grain were scarcely sufficient to care for the current local requirements, and the inquiry from the east showed continued good color. Shippers say that their business with the east is limited only by the supply of cars. To date the demand from abroad has been light and students of the situation see but little on the surface to indicate an early improvement in it. They figure, however, that if Europe suddenly should come to America for its oats the domestic markets would be given a good boost.

Provision List Works Weaker.

While there were no unusually notable features in the provision market, sentiment seemed to be a little more bearish as to the immediate future of the market.

Deposits of successful bidders will be applied in partial payment of the amount of the loan awarded them. It is distinctly announced, however, that no allowance will be made for interest on deposits from the time of opening bids to the time of settlement. Should there be more than one proposal at the same price a pro rata award may be made.

Settlement in full for the loan awarded must be made with the City Treasurer on or before Friday, March 22, 1907.

The Mayor reserves to himself the right to reject any or all proposals or to award only a portion of the loan for which bids were received, as he may deem best for the interest of the City of Philadelphia.

TALK OF BULL CAMPAIGN AFTER CONGRESS ADJOURNS.

Some Doubt Whether a Successful One Can Be Conducted Because of Halt in Growth of Business—Local Bank Share Market Fails to Show Any Improvement—Weather Conditions Stimulate Wholesale and Retail Trade—Metals Rule Firm.

There is considerable evidence that it is the intention of prominent market interests to conduct if possible a bull campaign after the adjournment of congress. This is taken as a favorable opportunity for inviting public buying by giving the reason therefore. But other conditions indicate that unless the next campaign be successful it may be doubted whether there will not be considerable declines later on.

From whatever cause, the railroads since the latter part of 1906 have been showing a falling off in net earnings, although the gains in gross have been normal. The cost of operation has increased through both increase in wages and increase in cost of material. These are legitimate sources of increased expenditure, and it may be doubted whether net is falling off through any form of bookkeeping intended to show reduced profits. It must be admitted that this is not a favorable time for a great showing of earnings. State legislatures are only too willing to begin probing 2 cent fares, and this necessarily must be disturbing. What with the falling off in the agitation for 2 cent fares and the fact that prosperity is not expected to reach a higher level than at present there are lacking conditions favorable to a great bull movement.

It is an established fact that building throughout the country is falling off, and the continued rise in the price of copper is having a restrictive influence on lines of industry in which copper is employed as a principal raw material.

Money Situation.

The money situation has steadied, but there are no symptoms of what may be called ease. From 5 to 6 per cent time money is the best that now appears to be in sight.

The commission houses which have not renewed time loans, depending on the present call money market, will be obliged later to seek time funds.

Bank Statement.

The New York bank statement on Saturday made a poor showing. There was a loss in cash of approximately $1,000,000 and a decrease of $8,016,300 in deposits. Owing to this latter fact there was a gain of $1,085,075 in the surplus reserve. The figures follow:

Local Bank Share Market.

The local bank share market fails to show any improvement. Although the banks had a record year and area gain running into firm rates in 1907, still the investment demand for bank stocks halts. There was little trading in the new Forgan bank stock. But after a spurt in the price there was a recession at the close of the week, when the shares were 141 bid and 145 asked, against sales the previous week at 150. Quotations follow:

Trade in Wholesale Lines.

Trade in wholesale and jobbing circles was more active last week as the result of improved weather conditions and better roads. Retail business in practically all lines has been stimulated by the same factors, and this has been an influence in more confident buying at distributing centers. The movement of cereals has been on a slightly larger scale to primary markets, and the movement of general merchandise has resumed the proportions which existed before the inclement weather impeded traffic.

Further advances in the prices of a few staple commodities were noted. The improvement in staple prints and printed flannels was substantial, quotations for the latter being advanced 12½ per cent for fall delivery. The market for these lines was active. A sharp increase in the price of petroleum and petroleum products was announced during the week, the advance in some of the better grades of illuminating oil being 15c per brl.

A significant feature of the week also was the sharp demand for agricultural implements of all kinds at interior points. Crop prospects so far are unimpaired, except in isolated instances.

Iron and Steel in Good Demand.

Metal markets have ruled firm, with no appreciable decrease in the volume of business, although there was little particular feature to the trade. Pig iron continues in good demand, and among the makers of finished product a particularly brisk inquiry is reported for steel cars. It is understood that the steel car manufacturers have orders on hand for $150,000,000 worth of product, a sufficient volume to keep the mills employed on present orders for more than a year. No change was made in copper prices, but current orders are large enough to sustain the present high level of values.

The chief feature of the Chicago coal market has been the urgent inquiry for smokeless mine run. This has been occasioned by the small supply on hand, due to the recent floods. There was a slight falling off in the demand for hard coal. Many dealers are unwilling to increase their stocks owing to the fact that the season is so nearly over. Supplies of chestnut are small.

Mercantile collections have been more prompt during the week.

WILL J. DAVIS TO DENY GUILT IN DANVILLE COURT TODAY.

Manager of Iroquois Theater at Time of Holocaust to Answer Indictment Charging Manslaughter.

Will J. Davis, manager of the Iroquois theater at the time of the fire of 1903, will plead not guilty to the indictment of manslaughter returned against him before Judge Kimbrough in the Circuit court at Danville in Vermilion county this morning. He will be accompanied to Danville by his attorneys, Levy Mayer and Alfred Austrian, it is expected.

Assistant State's Attorney James Barbour left Chicago last night to be present at the pleading and block any more moves for delay that the defense may seek to make. None is expected, however, as it was announced last week that no plea to quash the indictment would be made by Mr. Mayer. The line of the defense has not been divulged by Mr. Davis' counsel.

The case is set for trial March 4 and all preliminary motions will be disposed of today, unless there are extended arguments on some point that has not yet arisen.

SHAW TO BE GUEST AT DINNER.

Secretary of Treasury Will Deliver Address at Interdenominational Banquet at Auditorium Tuesday.

Bishop William F. McDowell will deliver the invocation.

A musical program has been arranged for the event.

From the statements made to us by the officers of the Company we have obtained the following information:

The Schwarzschild & Sulzberger Co. has been in continuous operation since 1853. The Company owns (free and clear) and operates extensive packing plants in New York, Chicago and Kansas City, which, as appraised by Messrs. R. V. Harnett & Co. of New York and by Mr. James Miles of Chicago, are valued at $8,697,886.

The Schwarzschild & Sulzberger Co. is one of the four largest packing concerns in the country, doing a business of upwards of $75,000,000 a year. It has facilities for killing over 100,000 cattle, sheep and hogs per week. The Company makes a specialty of hotel and club trade, and buys the heaviest and best grade cattle sold at the stock yards. Its business is almost entirely in fresh meats; in fact, its sales of canned goods amount to less than 1% of the total business done by the Company.

Appraised value of real estate and plants, 1906	$ 8,697,886
Paid in Capital	4,373,400
Surplus (entirely accrued from earnings of the business) Dec., 1906	5,714,798
Quick Assets at close of business Dec., 1906	13,663,168
Current liabilities at close of business Dec., 1906	5,589,274
Excess of quick assets over current liabilities at close of business Dec., 1906	8,073,894
Average earnings (subject to interest charges) on a constantly increasing volume of business for eight years ending Dec., 1905	943,792
Interest requirements of debentures, 1907	360,000
Net earnings for 1906, as obtained from preliminary statements (after providing for all expenses and interest charges, including interest on these debentures)	922,758

Being over 20% on the outstanding capital stock of the company.

The quick assets of a packing concern are exceptional in the rapidity with which they can be converted into cash. The trust indenture under which the Debentures were issued so protects the quick assets of the Schwarzschild & Sulzberger Co. that they cannot be utilized for dividends or for extension or improvement work to an extent which, in any contingency, could, in our opinion, endanger the security of the Debentures. The trust indenture further provides that the company shall not create any mortgage on any of its packing plants above mentioned during the life of any of the Debentures.

The legality of this Debenture issue has been approved by our attorneys, Messrs. Hornblower, Byrne, Miller & Potter, and by Messrs. Steinhardt & Goldman.

Application will be made in due course to list these Debentures on the New York Stock Exchange.

A part of the above-named Debentures having been sold at private sale, we now offer the unsold balance for public subscription at 100% and accrued interest, deliverable and payable on or before February 25, 1907, at either of the New York offices of the undersigned, in New York Funds.

THE SUBSCRIPTION WILL BE OPENED AT THE OFFICES OF THE UNDERSIGNED AT 10 A. M. ON TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 19TH, 1907, AND WILL BE CLOSED AT 3 P. M. ON WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 20TH, 1907, OR EARLIER, THE RIGHT BEING RESERVED TO REJECT ANY APPLICATION AND TO AWARD A SMALLER AMOUNT THAN APPLIED FOR.

TANTALIZING TRINITY

MAY YET END IN A

TRAGEDY

Since the day Trinity was created the Boston News Bureau has continuously and malignantly attacked the company, the property and the stock by printing and circulating statements which it knew to be false. The Boston News Bureau has thereby caused great loss to hundreds, if not thousands, of investors. The Boston News Bureau is C. W. Barron, today the most malicious influence in the American financial world.

Every corporation power in America had bent to this man. I refused to do so, and, thereafter, publicly and upon every possible occasion, exposed his great and peculiar power in finance. Hence his pursuit of me and those corporations in which I am interested. In such a cause the law can or will do nothing. If it were not for the law this power would meet its death as does a skulking hyena. Some day, following disaster caused by the Boston News Bureau—disaster like that of Saturday, for instance—some victim, less considerate, perhaps, than I, will kill this power as he would kill a mad cur.

"Barron" power can be easily shown and the source of this power can be as easily explained.

A few years ago Barron was a financial news gatherer and boarding house keeper in Boston. He then conceived the idea of issuing every few minutes a small square sheet, purporting to give the very latest news in finance, such happenings as might affect the stock market. The idea was excellent. Such an enterprise, honestly conducted, could not help but be a great benefit to brokers, investors, and speculators. Dishonestly conducted, it contained, from the first, potentialities for a terrific power in finance. As it grew—and it did grow—brokers, investors, and speculators came to feel that they could not be without it, and the daily press throughout the world dropped into the habit of quoting its items verbatim. In time, Barron worked his news sheet into a business which has an organization and plant in many cities and a system of telegraphing to the other papers the statements which it prints itself. In his advertising and otherwise Barron boasts that his only source of income is the $1 per day from each of his subscribers, including hotels and banks, who take his sheets, and the five cents a day for each of a few thousand copies of a sort of summary, issued and mailed daily at the close of business. It was upon the claim that it makes no advertising, and cannot be controlled by any man, syndicate, corporation or thing, that the Boston News Bureau secured the great hold in finance which it has today.

The income of the Boston News Bureau from the sources which it says are its only ones would not pay the cost alone of obtaining and distributing its alleged news. Yet in a few years Barron has grown immensely wealthy. He has just finished a town palace on Beacon Street. He has great estates at the seashore. He is the only man in New England who keeps five yachts equipped and afloat each season. He has innumerable automobiles, active stock accounts in many brokers' offices, and he is recognized in financial centers as one of the stock market powers.

The source of the power is: corporations' aid, corporation managers are laid under tribute—money, stock privileges, and advance information which can be turned into cash in stock market deals. If the demand is refused, damaging statements about the corporation and the stocks in which the refusing party is interested are printed daily and copied in the press throughout the world.

So great has this power become that great corporations like the ——— company keep him subsidized the year round not only to print no damaging statements, but to invent favorable ones. So great is Barron's power that it is believed at the present time that no stock or corporation can succeed without his good will, and that any man active in finance whom he opposes must go under.

In all of my various campaigns he has trailed me with vicious malice. Nothing in the English language has been too vile for him to say of me, my associates and my properties. About Butte he daily printed the statement that it was a fraud and under no circumstances could ever be worth $2 a share. It was the same in Tri-Mountain and Copper Range. Day after day he railed against these. He is responsible for nearly all the statements damaging to Trinity which have been printed since its creation. He has printed that it did not have any ore, that the contents of its treasury had been stolen, and that its entire working force consisted of a $10,000 superintendent and two watchmen, and other equally false and cowardly stories. In 1900 in print over my signature and in a speech before the Massachusetts legislature I gave his vile history and invited him to hale me into court. He could not dodge the issue. He brought suit, attached my property, and caused to be printed broadcast the things he would do to me. Year after year he has printed statements as to why his suit has not been tried, but today, at the end of seven years, it is in exactly the same condition as when it was bought, and I have not been able to force him into court. It is because of this that I say it is impossible to get redress under our present laws.

Finding that I could not have the suit tried, I again gave his history in magazine and book stories, and again dared him to bring me into court. He went through the motions of attempting to make me answer in the Criminal Court, but the Grand Jury instantly dismissed the case. This is the man and the power which in the last few days has brought about the drop in Trinity from 38 to 30, and this is how he did it.

The present movement in Trinity began when, after an exhaustive examination of its property by the great rival copper combinations, it entered into a most advantageous contract with the American Smelter-Balaiala, a contract where it was able to save its stockholders an expenditure of one million to two million dollars for a smelting and refining plant. As soon as the announcement of the contract was made and Barron saw his repeated statement of "no ore" had been emphatically given the lie by the greatest authorities in copper, he published what he said was the contract, but which was a tissue of falsehoods.

I saw at once that we had at least an opportunity to bring him into court, but the Massachusetts laws give the maker of false statements the privilege of retracting within twenty-four hours after receiving notice of suit, and Barron, with extreme nimbleness, took advantage of the law. After Trinity's counsel had served notice upon him he retreated by publishing an entirely different statement, but, furious at being compelled to do this, he began a daily—and sometimes five times daily—series of attacks, which for viciousness have been unequaled in stock affairs. Finding that he still had made no headway against the Trinity movement, he prepared a coup. He printed the following false statement and caused it to be widely circulated:

TRINITY.

Boston—As the Trinity Copper Company is now in need of money to take the water out of its iron mine, the question arises as to how its future requirements are to be financed. If the company is to pay for the recent advertising to assist in the sale of its shares, it ought to mean more stock to issue, unless stock was put in the treasury when cash was taken therefrom.

This new form of attack is one which always strikes terror in a copper market. With the charge that the company was out of cash aid, the monstrous statement that Trinity Company's funds were being used to pay for my advertising and my campaign, and with these followed up by most vicious selling, the price broke to 32½ on Friday, but quickly rallied to 33½. Then came a new and daring move. Barron's News Bureau sheet is the recognized record of the Boston Stock Exchange trading, and it has wide circulation in financial matters from the fact, as I before stated, that it is quoted everywhere in the press. Up to this new move of Barron's no one would have dreamed that even a Barron would dare falsify the stock exchange record.

In this record he made Trinity close with a slumping rush straight down to 32½, placing against fourteen different transactions a false statement which all other records showed to be false. The fact, shown by all other records, is that Trinity closed on a rally in fourteen separate trades to 33½. At the same time, to emphasize his first false statement, he printed this additional one:

TRINITY.

Correction—The endeavor of the Trinity management to borrow money is not, we understand, to take the water out of the mine, as it is a tunnel proposition; but is to pay for labor to begin taking out the 400,000 tons which constitute the known ore body of the mine.

At the opening of the Exchange Saturday the wide distribution of these falsehoods created a pressure of selling orders. There followed a stream of smashing sales as lively as have ever been witnessed in the Stock Exchange. The transactions were 25,000 shares in two hours, but, as I said in my advertisement, Trinity stood up to these combined attacks like a grim campaigner—like an indian with a face-to-the-enemy-walk-backward retreat to 30.

To Trinity stockholders, to the financial public, and to the Boston Stock Exchange, without whose aid and countenance Barron could not exist, I say now:

How much longer will you stand this kind of black-jacking?

It is not necessary for me to say it, but I will say:

Trinity is not seeking to borrow money. Trinity has a large amount of cash in bank and securities in its treasury and Trinity will not have to borrow at any time.

The Trinity Company has nothing whatever to do with my advertising or with my campaign or expense. Its finances are, and always have been, entirely in the hands of others. Since the creation of the company I have refused to have to do with Trinity's finances and have never directly or indirectly had any handling of them. For years Trinity's finances and its other affairs have been audited by outside auditors previous to each annual meeting.

In each and every part Barron's statements were false, and, more than that, were known to be false by Barron at the time he published them. Yet, with a unanimity which was at least significant the press Saturday and yesterday said that the break in Trinity was because the company was in urgent need of funds.

I will add that able counsel are now engaged in endeavoring to draw suits which will hold Barron and all his associates, open and disguised, and his New York, Philadelphia, and Boston bureaus, liable for the damage done to each stockholder by the false statements and the conspiracy of Barron and his associates. If it is decided that these suits will stick, I will ask each of the thousands of stockholders for authority to bring one in each of their names at my personal expense and with no liability to them. I will cause to be attached in the different suits all of Barron's and all of the open and hidden properties of his open and disguised associates, and also his stock gambling accounts at the different brokers. While most of these affairs are hidden in the names of dummies, and in other ways, I have had prepared for me a diagram, by following which I think I will be able to drag him into the open by the attachment for millions, for the direct loss to the different stockholders by his last attack has been something over $2,000,000; and as such suits can be brought, if brought at all, in state and federal courts of the different states, it makes me feel that perhaps I have at last secured on this monstrous machine a grip which will hold.

In the meantime I advise Trinity holders against letting the work of the different Barrons affect their judgment. I ask them to bear in mind that the net results of Friday and Saturday were: new buyers of Trinity were able to secure their stock, now worth 75, and which will be worth 100 and over, at 35 to 30, instead of 40 to 45, and at the same time the old holders secured an enormous profit. I ask them to remember that the course of Butte, while going from 2 to 130; that of Tri-Mountain while going from 10 to 125, and of Copper Range while going from 10 to 105 was identical with that of Trinity, and that in the course of each was the same thing as that which Friday and Saturday broke Trinity—false statements created and spread by Barron and his associates. Yet, it was found at the end that on these sensible holders of Butte, Tri-Mountain and Copper Range, who bought and paid for their stock, took it out of the market and held it, these statements had no more effect than if they had been asafœtida flies en route through Lubin "factories."

In my next advertisement I will give the holders of Trinity an exceptionally interesting page of reading.

COMMERCE SELECTS THIS CITY FOR ITS HOME

(FOR INDEX OF ADVERTISEMENTS SEE PAGE 26)

Chicago is now the world's greatest piano manufacturing point of the world.

Back of 1875 the piano played a very small part in American commerce, and it was not until Chicago began to produce pianos of the kind the people wanted that the instrument took its place among the things of active trade. Last year it is estimated that there were 251,800 pianos produced in this country. Of this large productiveness Chicago must be credited with 97,000. New York's share is given as 72,750, the balance having been made in Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Rochester, Buffalo and the cities of the middle west. Considering that Chicago was not in any sense a piano making center back of 1885, the figures just given assume remarkable significance.

It is related that when the English baritone, Russell, came to Chicago in the '40's he had difficulty in finding a piano upon which to accompany his songs. He finally discovered that Stephen A. Gale was the possessor of an instrument and borrowed it for the entertainment. But the first piano brought to Chicago for sale arrived the year after Russell's visit, or in 1844. It was brought here by the late Alanson H. Reed, whose "Temple of Music" later flourished on Dearborn Street just south of the old Tremont House until wiped out by the fire of '71.

It is accurately reported that the first Chicago piano was made in a carpenter shop that stood on North Clark Street on the present site of the Empress Hotel, near Schiller Street. It was in the middle of the '50's. But the first well equipped piano factory in Chicago was that of the late G. A. Gerold who came from Cincinnati in '67 and located at 72 Lake Street. Gerold committed suicide in '96 at his piano factory on North Clark near Illinois Street.

Chicago's piano factories at this time number thirty-four, big and little, and most of them are large ones. It is safe to credit Chicago with the largest exclusive piano industry in the world, and to say that each of at least three of Chicago's piano industries is more productive than any other single concern in the same line anywhere else in this country.

Wholly distinct from the piano and organ factories, but closely related to them, are the piano and organ supply industries, of which Chicago may boast some of the most extensive in existence. Several of the indispensable features or parts of the piano and organ are usually the products of factories other than those from which the completed instruments issue. Of these parts are the actions, the keys and the strings. Chicago possesses separate industries in all of these specialties and among them is the largest string-winding plant in existence. Chicago piano wire has the highest tensile strength of any used. It is drawn from rods of Swedish metal and the industry is a comparatively new one in this country, dating back only to the time of the Columbian Exposition of 1893. In fact American piano wire manufacture owes its existence to the tests made at the Columbian World's Fair, and its increase since that time has been amazing notwithstanding that the public is still under the impression that steel wire is only obtained from the European piano-wire factories. One Chicago piano string factory, with a branch in New York, produced more than 100,000 full sets of strings during 1906. It may be said also that many of the ingenious machines employed in piano manufacture are the invention of Chicago genius and industry.

Turning for a moment to consider the value of the output of Chicago pianos and the number of workers employed, it is found that last year's total manufacture of American musical instruments approximates $33,900,000. Of this total is is safe to credit Chicago with nearly $15,000,000, even after allowing for the preponderance of the so-called "commercial" character of the western pianos by which relative values may be somewhat reduced. It is estimated that the Chicago piano and organ industries give employment to 8,400 salaried clerks, officials and wage-earners whose aggregate income is approximately $5,563,000. This includes all classes, from officers to women and minors. It must be said, however, that the figures given include the workers in the out-of-town factories of the Chicago industries, as well as those located within the city limits, for within two or three years a number of the Chicago piano industries have removed their plants from the city to near-by towns, fully a half-dozen of them going across the lake to the Michigan shore. But executive officers and headquarters remain in Chicago and the factory products continue to carry the city's name and must therefore be classed as Chicago products.

Less than 25 years ago Europe supplied this country with nearly all of the picture and mirror frames used. Today Chicago alone supplies the entire world with this product. Crude importations are replaced by an article of artistic design, high class workmanship and superior finish. This change was brought about through the foresight of the Illinois Moulding Co., originators, designers and producers of over 5,000 high class frames daily, shipped world-wide.

Nor must it be supposed that the vast productiveness of Chicago pianos implies an inferior class of musical instruments. While it is true that in the matter of prices there are Chicago industries that easily compete with the most attractive in the east, it is nevertheless also true that the better grades of pianos produced here compare favorably with the distinguished makes of the older cities. It is equally true that the so-called "commercial" pianos from Chicago are accepted as models by eastern manufacturers and are usually preferred by the dealers because of their better finish and all 'round selling advantages. This is seen in the fact that Chicago pianos are found in the representative music houses of New England and other eastern sections in numbers often exceeding those of New York and Boston manufacture. In the far west, too, notwithstanding the freight discriminations, by which New York pianos are delivered west of the Mississippi at the same or lower rates than is permitted to Chicago, the large piano houses display Chicago instruments in preponderating numbers.

In the manufacture and sale of furniture the story is much the same as that of organs and pianos. Chicago began in a small way, with a dependence on the East for the better grades of goods, and then making a fresh start, passed all its competitors in the West, following it up by equal success in passing to the front of those in the East. Today Chicago is the largest manufacturing center for furniture in the United States.

Early in the '60's, furniture began to be manufactured in Chicago on a considerable scale, and by 1867 the output was sufficiently large to give this city a good standing in the furniture world. All goods manufactured were what is known as "staple lines," like tables and chairs. They were crude in construction and cheap in price. Black walnut was the wood used mainly, although some cherry and ebonized cherry were in demand. When the Chicagoan, however, wanted nice goods, he sent to Philadelphia, New York or Boston. Along in 1883, a Chicago firm startled the East by sending its goods to the seaboard cities and placed them on sale there. This was followed by other firms with the result of a rapid extension of trade through a region which had hitherto been closed to Chicago manufacturers. The quality of Chicago furniture from that time on improved rapidly. When early in the '80's oak began to displace black walnut, the position of this city, with its proximity and easy access to the oak forests around Lake Michigan, became commanding. It was the natural "assembling place" for the lumber of the lake region and the leather of Chicago tanneries. Business grew from year to year until there are now in Chicago 220 concerns manufacturing furniture and kindred goods. They employ some 27,000 people and the total value of their output in 1906 was between $28,000,000 and $30,000,000.

Every furniture center specializes more or less in the range of its manufacture, but Chicago less so than any of its competitors. However, this city has attained first place in the manufacture of school furniture, office furniture, desks, chairs, upholstered goods and metal beds. Its trade now extends from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Of late years the business on the Pacific Coast has been particularly good, while the South and Southwest have been fields of great activity. With the passing of oak from the Michigan forests an ample supply has been secured from the South and Southwest. Birch still continues to come from Northern Michigan, Wisconsin and Canada. Mahogany, which is coming more and more into popular use, is now coming direct from the West Indies and Mexico by way of Mobile and New Orleans. With Chicago as one of the great centers of the country in the manufacture of leather, none of the early advantages to which the marvelous growth of the furniture industry was due has been lost. There is every indication that the coming decade will witness as large an increase in business as the one just past. This is rendered more certain by the strong tendency among Chicago manufacturers to secure the highest quality and the most artistic finish. It has always been noticed in this industry that in good times manufacturers compete in quality and finish, while in hard times they compete in prices, resulting in a general deterioration of their output. During the present era of good times Western manufacturers have put forth prodigious efforts to produce goods equal to any made abroad, and in this they have met success. It is now claimed by experts that Western furniture is in an artistic way not inferior to that produced in any part of the world, while in the quality of material and in durability it sometimes excels. In all the classic lines this is true and European manufacturers are sending representatives here to study out the methods by which such results have been obtained. Taking the furniture manufactories of Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin, all of which are largely represented in the Chicago trade, as the Western field, that field is in the first place in the world's production.

Every year for the past ten years there have been sold within the borders of the United States 600,000 school desks. The regularity of sales is remarkable, the figures for any one year not varying 50,000 from this average. Of these 600,000 school desks, Chicago sells 90 per cent, or 540,000. No like volume of business can be shown in the world in a particular line of furniture making, nor has any other place such a natural monopoly. Whenever a school board decides to buy new desks there is only one place to go, and that is Chicago. Rivals have tried to do business in the South and West, but in the end they were gathered in by the companies whose headquarters were in this city. Of course all these school desks are not made here. Many big Chicago companies have their factories at other points where lumber is at hand, but the desks are made by Chicago firms and sold in Chicago salesrooms. It is always Chicago capital doing the business.

School desks began to be made on an extensive scale in this city during the closing year of the Civil War. Then lumber was to be had in unlimited quantities in adjacent Michigan and Wisconsin forests. The lead the city obtained at this period has never been lost, although the Michigan and Wisconsin forests have well nigh disappeared. In Southern Indiana, Kentucky, and Tennessee a new supply of lumber has been secured, and no falling off has been shown in the yearly reports from the manufacturers. Several attempts have been made to establish school furniture factories in the south close to the present supply of timber, but they have nearly met with disaster. People would simply not go anywhere except Chicago to fit out the schoolhouses.

Twice a year furniture expositions are held in Chicago, at which from 300 to 325 outside exhibiters make displays of their goods, in addition to the Chicago concerns. This has developed the Chicago market wonderfully, and has made this city the Mecca of furniture dealers throughout the union. Every factory in Indiana and nearly all those of Wisconsin, Illinois and Michigan outside of Grand Rapids come here to sell their goods during these exposition times and maintain extensive agencies during the rest of the year. The most reliable figures obtainable show sales of $45,000,000 of furniture in 1906, which was an increase of 12½ per cent over the preceding year.

"To what do you attribute Chicago's remarkable success in furniture manufacture?" was asked the head of a big concern.

"Of course the location of Chicago on the lake where we could receive by boat at low freight rates all the lumber we needed," he replied, "coupled with the fine transportation by railroad in all directions, is the direct cause, but we should not overlook the class of workmen we have in Chicago. We have always had all the men we needed and of the best class. This city has been peculiarly fortunate in that respect. While other points might at times be short of men we have always had all we could use at command. This has given us in later years a tremendous advantage over the smaller cities which were trying to compete with us. I do not think that the passing of oak, which seems to be at hand owing to its growing scarcity, as the wood of medium priced furniture, will have any effect in decreasing our manufactures. We will have to do like they have done in Europe—take other woods. Recent experiments have shown that the cheaper woods can be colored by extracting the sap of the newly-cut log and injecting in its place coloring matter which gives some very pretty effects. In the way of finer furniture, the Philippines have some magnificent woods which will doubtless come into use. There is not a bit of occasion for alarm regarding a shortage of furniture woods, for if one is exhausted something else takes its place and Chicago will be in the same position it has been in for the past forty years when its trade had been steadily growing with no sign of a stop in sight."

"What are the present tendencies in the trade?"

"For one, I think that Western manufacturers are ahead of the people. You must remember that our early firms had no idea of Louis XIV., Louis XV. or Louis XVI. They never heard of Colonial designs. All their customers wanted was a table or a chair which would stand up and look fairly good. That's what the manufacturers gave them. With the increase of wealth in the West the demand came for better furniture and then for artistic furniture. This demand, in my opinion, has been largely created by the Western manufacturers, who have spared no efforts to reproduce classic designs and build their goods on lines which would meet the sharpest criticism. The result is that the people are being educated by the dealers to know good furniture from bad in an artistic way and a vastly increased sale is certain to result as this education spreads. In this respect the manufacturers have created, not met, a demand which will have a potent influence on their business. I am proud to say that the West has been in the lead in this movement."

STARTLING GROWTH IN METAL BEDS.

Had not the centennial of the Fourth of July been celebrated with a World's Fair at Philadelphia in 1876, the manufacture of brass and iron beds might not today be one of the great industries of Chicago. The territory within 100 miles of this city might not be supplying 80 per cent of all the metal beds sold in the United States, without counting a big foreign trade. Up to the time of the Centennial practically no brass or iron beds were made in the United States. When people of fashion desired a brass bed, it had to be imported, and the price was high.

American manufacturers took great interest in the display of metal beds at Philadelphia, and the next year a small concern started to make them at Newark, N. J. At the same time, a Chicago firm began to make some experiments. A few beds were made here at a cost of $150 each, which were sold at $40. This firm decided that the scheme was not practical, and nearly dropped out of this line of business. A few experiments in cheapening the product were kept up, but no substantial results were obtained.

It seems to have been the fate of the metal bed to depend upon World's Fairs for its popularity, for it was not until just before the Columbian Exposition that manufacturers again turned to metal beds as something extremely desirable in caring for the expected crowds at Chicago in 1893. One concern after another fell into line, and from that day to this, Chicago's trade has jumped from year to year. One concern reports an increase of 100 per cent in its business in 1906. All were behind in their orders throughout the year, and the outlook for 1907 is as good.

The number of beds sent out in a year from this city has grown to startling figures. Between 5,000 and 6,000 beds a day is the ordinary production. One big company, whose headquarters are in Chicago, although its factory is in a nearby town, has a record of 2,500 beds in a day. During 1906 it sold 600,000 beds. It is said that many more could have been made had copper been more plentiful. For brass beds only the pure copper from Lake Superior can be used, and it was impossible last year to obtain enough of it to fill the orders.

While some export trade is done in metal beds, the eight firms whose headquarters are in Chicago have been too busy taking care of the home demand to pay much attention to the outside world. Shipments have, however, been made to every part of the world. Japan has sent for a large supply, and it is believed that the Chicago-made beds are now being used as samples in the Mikado's kingdom. If that is true, Chicago designs will soon be seen throughout Japan, for the Japanese are the best copyists in the world. In seeking designs they came naturally to Chicago manufacturers to get the best to be had anywhere. Australia is a liberal buyer for general use, although the new Australian tariff may tend to cut down the demand.

As for the United States, that market has been fairly gathered in. The imported bed, which ruled forty years ago, has been almost wholly displaced. Last year the total imports of brass beds into the United States were only $7,500. Before the Centennial one English firm alone sent 17,000 metal beds into New York.

"The reason for this wonderful success," a pioneer in the trade said, "is that Europe does not turn out anything that compares with American metal beds. We have simply passed the Old World manufacturers, and they are now outclassed."

NO RIVAL IN FEATHERS.

Feathers and pillows form an industry in which about a dozen big firms have extensive plants. There are a number of smaller concerns and the aggregate of capital involved will reach into the millions. As most of the work is done by machinery, the number of men employed is now not as large as the volume of business might indicate. Feathers and pillows from Chicago are shipped all over the United States and to Europe.

The supply of feathers comes largely from the West, although at times shipments are received from the East and sometimes even from Europe if market conditions are favorable.

This industry began at the close of the war and the ingenuity of the Chicago men who engaged in it soon extended their trade, first to adjoining states and then throughout the country. A thorough treatment of feathers was inaugurated which vastly improved their quality. They were first thoroughly dusted and then saturated with dry steam, by which all germs contained in them were killed. They were then dried and put through a blast, opening up the fiber thoroughly. Various improvements were made in handling the feathers until the present high state of efficiency, in which one man can do the work of a dozen, has been reached.

Various experiments have been made with feathers other than those of the goose, and Chicago firms have been able to produce a cheaper variety which has met with a large sale. This industry, like most of the other smaller interests, is now experiencing great prosperity and trade is rapidly being extended.

Vast plants testify to what extent the business of handling feathers and the making of pillows has attained. An industry that few would give a second thought of being of any importance has reached dimensions where bank accounts run into six figures and where estates amounting to millions have been left to heirs. These results have been obtained by sticking to one proposition, however small it might seem, and developing it to the utmost. It is said that the proper treatment of feathers and their handling with the least possible loss is a life study in itself. Of late a big stock yards company as an adjunct to its cold storage business has gone into the feather trade as a by-product. All manner of experiments, it is said, are being tried to make chicken feathers as good as those of the goose. Every tough fiber is crushed, and with steam and the blast it is hoped that the downy characteristics so necessary for success can be obtained Other firms are engaged in the same line of experiments. An article which can be sold for much less than goose feathers has been obtained, and it seems to supply a legitimate demand for the filling of cheaper goods.

GREAT IN HOUSEHOLD GOODS.

Seventy per cent of all the refrigerators sold in the United States are made within a radius of 200 miles of Chicago, and this city naturally becomes the headquarters for the sale of refrigerators. Nearly all these factories are located on Lake Michigan and their products come in on lake steamers, with this as a distributing point.

In the manufacture of refrigerators for special purposes Chicago has a number of firms which do a large business, but the larger showing is made by Chicago firms which have located their factories in the lumber regions of Michigan. Two or three of these concerns are among the largest in the United States in the number and value of refrigerators put on the market.

The state of Illinois occupies a commanding position in the manufacture of stoves and ranges and the city of Chicago has its full share of the business.

Stoves and heaters of all conceivable kinds form part of the varied products that are shipped from Chicago to all parts of the country, and the demand for Chicago heaters is ever on the increase.

Six large foundries in this city are devoted exclusively to the manufacture of stoves and steel ranges. The largest of these have each a capacity of probably 20,000 stoves of all kinds a year, and they are usually pushed to their full capacity.

The amount of capital invested in the stove industry in the city of Chicago probably aggregates $4,000,000 or $5,000,000 and the total product of Chicago foundries—stove foundries, that is—will undoubtedly run up to 50,000 or 60,000 stoves and ranges in a year. The largest foundries maintain branch houses throughout the west and each year's product is marketed the same season, for styles in stoves change just as they do in all other goods used by the queens of the American households. Though there are certain makes of stoves and ranges that are well established by name and are in constant demand, the manufacturers nevertheless are constantly making improvements, and every year sees some addition to even the best known lines.

The total number of men employed in stove and range making in Chicago is probably in the neighborhood of 3,000. Their work is well paid and a perfect working agreement exists between employers and employed.

In the manufacture and sale of stoves and ranges Chicago has no rival as the great central market of the United States.

Chicago's pre-eminence in the manufacture and sale of food products has come to be absolutely unquestioned. A larger volume and a greater variety of food products are manufactured and sold in this city than any other city of the world. The trade in wholesale groceries last year alone exceeded $163,000,000. Every year has shown a marked growth, that for 1906 being 15 per cent.

Legislation, the State and National, has been busy in recent years in providing protection for the purchasers of manufactured food products. It is noteworthy that with every extension of this protection the business of Chicago houses has increased in volume. One by one the popular prejudices against articles of food prepared in factories have given place to confidence due to rigid inspection by officials.

Owing to the general adoption of pure food laws by most of the states in the Great Central West, Chicago firms were well prepared for the new National pure food law which went into effect the first of the year. They learned that they could do things in compliance with the law which they would have believed impossible a few years ago. In the time between the passage of the pure food act and its going into force manufacturers prepared for the change in conditions of the interstate business. The new law was accepted without a murmur by all the leading firms. They prepared at once to meet all of its exactions in good faith. Reports from hundreds of merchants supplied by Chicago firms throughout the west indicate that the law has given general satisfaction.

The general publicity of "factory-made" articles of food which the agitation for purer food laws resulted in giving these articles, it is said, gave them a publicity which could not have been obtained by years of advertising. With this publicity there was also given the guaranty of purity under State and National laws. Nothing could have been devised which would have done pure food products of Chicago more good than just the way everything has come out.

At present there is a general feeling in the trade that the local legislation in the various states should be made to conform more closely with the National pure food law. By conforming with it they will conform with one another. Much of the pure food legislation in the various states was enacted entirely independent of one another, all having, however, the same object in view—pure food. In consequence, one state rigidly prescribed that all labels shall read in one way. The next state may have a law as rigid that labels shall read another way. Then the National law comes along and says how goods shall be marked. Big concerns with a wide range of custom are being compelled to have especially labeled goods for the various states. They must have stock on hand to meet the demands of merchants of the various states entirely independent of one another. In shipping considerable confusion results. There is also trouble with goods labeled in accordance with the Minnesota law should they accidentally be sent out to Iowa.

"What we need now most," said a representative of one of the largest Chicago houses, "are changes in legislation which would bring uniformity in labels. We do not care how strict the legislation, but we would like to have the same label go in every state."

"What other change do you suggest?" was asked.

"Chicago firms, I think, would unite in asking that all states where they sell goods pass pure food laws in conformity with the National pure food law. As it is now manufacturers and wholesale firms in states without pure food laws can sell within their own borders anything they like. Firms from outside the state, being under the National law, are compelled to obey its provisions. It is a condition which is bad for the people in states which have no pure food laws, for there is a great temptation to the manufacturers and wholesalers within their borders to meet competition by adulterations."

Too great stress, it is urged, cannot be placed upon benefits of public confidence which pure food laws have given to the food products of Chicago. The old mystery about the ingredients of goods made in factories hundreds of miles away has disappeared. Consumers now know exactly what they are buying. Merchants report that hundreds of families are now buying such products as they had hitherto put up themselves. The American housewife is willing to look to her grocer for preserves, jellies, and the like, knowing that she will get exactly what appears on the label. The higher prices at which some lines of good products must be sold under the pure food laws has been found to have no effect in cutting down the sales. People, as a rule, are willing to pay a few cents more when they know that they are getting exactly what they pay for. This is a condition which exactly suits Chicago houses. It places them at a marked advantage over competitors who have tried to meet their competition in the past by adulterations and other methods of secretly cheapening their products.

PREMIER IN PAINTS.

"I confidently predict," said a leader in the paint trade, "that in the next decade the business of Chicago in both paint and varnish will be doubled from the figures of 1906. It will take no more efforts to accomplish than are daily being put forth by our leading concerns in the industry. The outlook could not be brighter, taking it all in all."

It was in 1850 that the first plant of the manufacture of paint was started in Chicago. At that date Galena supplied most of the lead. The flaxseed, then as now, was mostly grown in the West, and so it was natural that the manufacture of paint with these two prime ingredients should soon gain a firm foothold in the growing metropolis of the prairies. The next year another concern entered the field of paint manufacturing, and from that day until this Chicago has been the headquarters of this great industry. When Galena ceased to furnish the lead a new supply came also from the West. The virgin fields sown to flaxseed were also in the same territory. Early advantages were never lost, for Chicago continued to be at the meeting point of the two great sources of supply for raw material, and today this city sells its paint from Maine to Oregon. The Central West, however, has remained the center of the greatest sales. More paint is used in the Northern Mississippi Valley than, perhaps, throughout all the rest of the country put together. This is due, it is said, to the prosperity which has prevailed in that region; well painted farm houses and barns denote the good times which farmers have long experienced.

In the early days the paint business consisted mostly in the selling of white lead and linseed oil, with different kinds of coloring material. The painter did the mixing when he got to the job. Twenty years ago the preparation of paint ready for use was started, and this industry has grown until it has become the leading item in the business, more mixed paints being now sold by far than white lead and oil to the consumer.

In the course of time the pioneers of the paint industry have been joined by the branch houses of concerns in other cities, and some of the latter now exceed in their capacity the "home" plants.

With their salesmen and office forces these paint companies employ about 5,000 men. Owing to the adoption of labor saving machinery one man can now do the work in paint manufacture of four men a few years ago, and this has cut down the forces of the factories materially, compared with the pay rolls of concerns of equal importance in other lines of trade. Perhaps in no single line of business has there been such a general adoption of the most modern labor-saving appliances, and to this cause is due to some degree the continued pre-eminence of Chicago houses in the general field of paint.

Enamel, which is simply a mixture and preparation of paint and varnish, has of late years become extremely popular in many kinds of decoration, and the Chicago houses were in the field early in its manufacture. Chicago enamel is now sold everywhere and its reputation is steadily growing. Lacquers are much the same as enamel and are extensively manufactured by all Chicago paint concerns. There seems to be a great field in the future for lacquers, and much attention is being paid to their preparation.

Gum from Africa, New Zealand and the island of Luzon, linseed oil from the West, turpentine from the South and naphtha from the East meet in Chicago and are joined in a varnish which is sold from the Atlantic to the Pacific and in Europe.

THE LARGEST ELECTROTYPE FOUNDRY ON EARTH.
GLOBE ENGRAVING & ELECTROTYPE CO.
AN ENGRAVING PLANT EQUAL TO ANY ON EARTH.

A NATIONAL FIELD FOR VARNISH.

The beginnings of the industry were on a very small scale. The pioneer firm started in 1865 and was joined by a second plant in 1866. From this small start there are now in Chicago twenty varnish factories, which give employment to 2,500 men. At the outset, Newark, N. J., was the headquarters of varnish manufacturers. For many years the quality of varnish manufactured in Chicago was not high and its sale was somewhat restricted. Some twenty years ago, however, the Chicago firms entered the field of varnish with the highest grade and have established a reputation for quality not excelled anywhere. The seaboard cities have been invaded and most of the big concerns now maintain branches at Boston, New York, and other Atlantic points. Considerable shipments are made abroad from these branches. The product of Chicago factories is greater than that of any other city in the union and probably equals the entire output of the rest of the Central West. In the making of varnish a large amount of capital is required, as it must lie for a year in the storehouse in order to give time for the sediment to settle. With ample funds at their command, all the Chicago companies are now able to push their business to the limit, and the year of 1906 showed a marked increase over any year before.

In the manufacture of both paint and varnish nothing is so important as "good faith" in the quality of material. In most everything else buyers can tell the good from the bad when they purchase, but not so with paint and varnish. The test can only come with use, and once used the material, if below grade, cannot be returned. It cannot be sold "on approval." Reputation is what counts, and this Chicago manufacturers have carefully guarded. Their brands are what the labels call for. People everywhere have come to recognize this, and their trade has extended year by year in accordance with the policy of good faith towards the buyer, which has been the fundamental policy of the paint and varnish trade of the city.

For the future the limits of expansion now seem to be only the number of people who use paint and varnish. Every year sees a steady advance of the Chicago output in all directions. Nothing can happen to take away from this city the mighty advantage of being the natural meeting place of raw material in all the leading articles of the industry. Flax must come from the west and so must the lead. Turpentine must come from the south. All these can meet in no central city so naturally and economically as in Chicago. Here there is unlimited capital and unlimited labor to work over the raw material and send it out to the country in the finished product. Nowhere else is there so much energy in the development of trade, and nowhere else is the machinery for handling a large volume of business at the lowest possible cost so perfect.

In the manufacture of mirrors exclusively between 250 and 300 are constantly employed, but nearly all concerns engaged in their production also produce a wide range of articles, of which plate glass and nitrate of silver are the basic parts. Some devote themselves exclusively to art glass, in which Chicago also takes the lead. Taking mirrors and glass together, this city has an annual business of $12,000,000. It has long been the great distributing center of the west clear to the Pacific Coast, while sales of special lines are also extensive in the east. The same enterprise which has caused Chicago to win in similar lines of manufacture, even when far from the supply of raw material, has brought a vast region to this mart in preference to all other centers of trade.

Some 250 men are employed in making mirrors in Chicago, and their product finds a wide sale. The manufacture of art glass and of glass signs has also grown to large dimensions. The total sales in the glass trade of the city have reached a mark of $12,000,000 a year. A wide territory draws its supplies wholly from Chicago, and the range is expanding constantly.
